Rusk Asks NATO Allies For Viet Nam 'Support'

Urged to Supply Medics, Teachers

PARIS (CP)—The United States today asked its North Atlantic allies to send doctors, engineers and teachers to South Viet Nam, American sources reported.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, in a review of the Viet Nam conflict, told the NATO council of ministers there is room for more troops in South Viet Nam. But the sources said that he did not ask the NATO nations to supply them.

In calling for greater allied understanding and support of the American effort in Viet Nam, Rusk warned that the fate of the North Atlantic alliance might be decided on the distant battlefields there.

He told the annual meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's foreign, finance and defence ministers that a Communist success in Viet Nam might lead to new Communist adventures elsewhere.

SUPPORTED BY BRITAIN

British Defence Minister Denis Healey, deputizing for ailing Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, supported Rusk's argument.

Rusk said U.S. commitments in various parts of the world to halt the spread of communism represent a "main pillar of peace."

While Southeast Asia is a long way from the frontiers of Europe, he continued, the United States cannot and will not choose between various commitments. He implied that to do so would destroy the credibility of NATO itself as a defensive shield for the Western world.

READY TO TALK PEACE

On the Viet Nam conflict, Rusk called it a dangerous issue that is clouding U.S. relations with Communist countries.

He reiterated the U.S. desire to enter into peace negotiations on Viet Nam without any preconditions. A ceasefire could come before a peace conference was convened, or it could be the first order of business of such a conference.

Rusk said the 1954 Geneva agreements on Indochina—Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia—and the 1962 Geneva conference making and keeping Laos neutral could serve as an adequate basis for peace in Southeast Asia.

In a long account of Western efforts to try to get the Viet Nam problem from the battlefield to the conference table, Rusk said it still is the U.S. impression that China is against peace talks.

Sir Paul Gore-Booth, permanent undersecretary of the British foreign office, said Foreign Secretary Stewart found the Russians still had some interest in negotiating a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

GEMINI ILLUSION

Space 'Crash' Scares Aussies

HOUSTON (AP)—Bearded and beginning to itch, astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell raced on in their record-busting space flight today after giving Carnarvon, Australia, a few scary moments.

Both the Gemini 7 spacecraft and the five-year-old Echo II satellite showed up in the skies over Carnarvon at the same time, and seemed to be converging on a collision course.

As residents gasped at the sight, the two vehicles appeared to collide, but the North American Air Defence Command at Colorado Springs, Colo., said they actually were in orbits 434 miles apart.

If they had been at the same altitude, "they certainly would have collided," said Ed Dunbar, a member of the American flight control team at Carnarvon.

Gemini 7 entered its 147th orbit at 8:30 a.m. EST.

GRIPE ABOUT FOOD

Borman and Lovell woke up this morning scratching and griping about the food.

"We're starting to itch a little — getting kinda crummy," Borman reported.

Astronauts in flight are not permitted to shave because of the danger that whiskers floating in the weightlessness of the spacecraft might get into its delicate instruments and cause damage.

Lovell told the Houston tracking station that "this 'chicken with gravy' should be labelled 'gravy with chicken.'"

"They woke up full of beans," commented flight director John D. Hodge of the overnight shift at Houston.

In the 10th day of the demanding 14-day mission, Borman said "Jim and I have been noticing the days seem to be lengthening a little."

Travelling at five miles a second, Gemini 7 kept tuned in with preparations to launch Gemini 6 from Cape Kennedy. The firing, scheduled for Wednesday, would culminate with the first rendezvous of orbiting space ships.

The Gemini 6 liftoff was set for 8:37 a.m. EST (5:37 a.m. PST). The two ships were expected to begin flying in a unique "nose to nose" formation about 5½ hours later.

If the space rendezvous comes off as planned the Gemini 6 astronauts will sleep in their spacecraft Wednesday night and splash down Thursday. The Gemini 7 spacemen will come down Saturday.

Borman and Lovell spotted a fiery run by the world's most powerful rocket sled today and the blazing reentry of a minuteman "instant ICBM" over the mid-Pacific.

On their 148th trip around earth, Gemini 7 pilots looked down at Holloman air force base, N.M., and saw the 100,000-pound-thrust rocket sled churn up smoke and water 185 miles below. "We can't see much," Borman admitted.

"We sa.. a little smoke, that's about all. We had a beautiful view, though."

CIVIL SERVICE PAY HIKE

Premier Bennett today announced "there will be increases in salaries for all civil servants including deputy ministers in the next budget."

The premier did not announce the size of the increase but for the past four years he has boosted civil service salaries an average of 5 per cent annually.

Speculation that the coming increase will be even larger than 5 per cent was strengthened by Mr. Bennett's additional remarks:

"This year has been the best year in the history of our province—for more people than ever before and in every part of B.C. And I think as premier 1966 is going to be an even better year and it will be a good year for the civil service too."

Spaceship Landing Tests Set

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union will carry out tests of "a variant of a system of landing space vehicles" between Dec. 16 and June 1 next year, the Soviet news agency Tass announced today.

Tass said some elements of the booster-rockets will fall into the Pacific and issued a list of co-ordinates of the locations. The locations were roughly midway between Hawaii and the Aluetian Islands.

The Soviets have issued similar warnings in the past when preparing for rocket flights but never have tested space vehicles with a water landing. In previous space flights, the Soviets have always brought their space vehicles down on land.

The United States in every orbital flight has brought its space vehicles to a safe landing on the water through use of parachutes and a space vehicle with floats. One sank after the pilot, Virgil Grisson, was rescued.

Tanzania Cutting Links With U.K. on Rhodesia

RHODESIANS TO FACE OIL BOYCOTT

LONDON (UPI) — Britain and the United States will shortly announce oil sanctions against Rhodesia, informed sources reported tonight.

The sources said the announcement was expected to come when the UN security council meets in New York to debate what to do about the breakaway African colony and rebel Premier Ian Smith.

The UN debate coincides with a day of intensive consultations by British Prime Minister Harold Wilson in the face of increasing African pressure to suppress the Smith Rhodesian rebellion immediately or face a break off of relations by many African states.

LONDON (CP)—The Tanzanian high commission took steps today to close down even as British and Commonwealth diplomats were trying to avert an open rift in the Commonwealth because of the Rhodesia crisis.

A Tanzanian spokesman said the East African country's office in London would close Thursday and High Commissioner C. P. Ngaiza would return to Dar es Salaam next Monday.

Tanzania was the only one of the nine African Commonwealth governments firmly committed today to a Dec. 3 ultimatum of the Organization of African Unity to break relations with Britain if the rebel white-minority regime in Rhodesia has not been ousted by Wednesday.

Ghana has said it would carry out terms of the 36-nation African resolution. But a spokesman of the Ghana high commission here declined today to say whether the office would close.

Fog in London delayed the arrival of Nigeria's prime minister, Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, who flew to Britain to press plans for an emergency meeting of Commonwealth heads of government next month in Lagos.

Nigeria, in common with most other African states, has had second thoughts about breaking relations with Britain. Balewa has proposed instead the Lagos meeting to discuss how the Rhodesian rebel regime could be "speedily and effectively brought to an end."

Balewa's plane was diverted to Manchester and landed there just before 1 p.m.—about the time he was originally due to confer with Prime Minister Wilson in London.

The Nigerian leader also is scheduled to meet with Commonwealth Secretary - General Arnold Smith of Canada, who would play a major part in organizing any Lagos meeting. Smith has been engaged in a continuing round of conferences with British and Commonwealth officials here in an effort to ease strained relations.

African leaders have been pressing Britain to take tougher action to topple the Rhodesian rebels, including military action to protect the Kariba Dam and power station on the Rhodesia-Zambia border. One idea circulated here is for a white Commonwealth force to move in and guard the Kariba plant on the Rhodesian side of the Zambesi River.

Mail Service Suspended

NAIROBI (Reuters) — Kenya is suspending all post office telecommunications with Rhodesia, a post office spokesman said today.

Tanzania and Uganda, which run joint postal services with Kenya, are expected to follow suit.

Russian Bar

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet government has assured Britain it will stop buying tobacco from Rhodesia, reliable sources said today.

The assurance, at diplomatic level, is the first practical sign of Soviet support for British sanctions against the breakaway regime of Ian Smith in Rhodesia.

Western statistics show Russia bought tobacco worth $700,000 from Rhodesia last year.

UN Peace Negotiation System Urged as Substitute for Force

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg called Tuesday for creation of a comprehensive United Nations peace service that would provide the world with an adequate substitute for all armed conflict.

He made the proposal in a speech to the UN General Assembly's special political committee in support of a British resolution to launch a UN study on how to speed the peaceful settlement of disputes.

Goldberg made clear that he regarded the Viet Nam conflict and all others in which the United States might be involved as subject to peaceful settlement.

He said the U.S. is proposing "nothing less than the creation of a United Nations peace service—a flexible set of procedures so efficient and so comprehensive that it will provide an adequate substitute for armed conflict."

He said the UN peace service should include improvements in present procedures to meet three main needs:

—Assurance of greater availability of qualified persons for tasks of peaceful settlement.

—The provision of additional incentives for governments to resort to peaceful settlements.

—Incorporation of new approaches to dispute settlements whose utility has been demonstrated by recent experience.

This Story Is Christmas Gift For Seven Sharing Youngsters

LITTLE GIRLS like this one from a hungry village of India become happy and well-fed with help from the Unitarian Service Committee, aided by the Times-sponsored Children of Asia fund. Milk, barley and biscuits bought with Canadian dollars help feed thousands of hungry children overseas each year.

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

For seven cousins who live spread out across Canada and the United States, Christmas means more than just gifts and goodies for themselves.

It means giving up something, and knowing that because they did, needy children overseas are sharing their happiness.

The seven cousins (Carol-Ann, David, Janet, Gregg, Scott, Patricia and Pamella) have an aunt, a very special one, who lives in Victoria.

Every year she makes a donation, in their name, to the Times-sponsored Unitarian Service Committee Chrsitmas fund.

It all began 12 years ago, when Carol-Ann was only four and her brother, David, just a baby.

Then their aunt gave $10 to the USC fund under the names of her niece and nephew who live in Seattle.

This year her contribution was $25, and the youngsters named included two brothers who live in Minneapolis, Minn., and the babies of the family, five-year-old twins Patricia and Pamella.

Their aunt remains anonymous, but each year, the Times clipping with their story in it is sent to the children as their Christmas gift.

This year their aunt writes: "The desire to share at Christmas is now a vital and happy experience and the children gladly offer this part of their Christmas in lieu of gifts from their Victoria aunt."

She adds a hint that might be adopted by other Victorians.

"Our minister suggested to the congregation that we leave the collection can on our dining table till Christmas—a mute reminder of hungry children"

Donations may be sent care of this newspaper, and cheques are made payable to the Children of Asia Fund.

AGREEMENT SEEN IN MID-JANUARY

Lucrative U.S. Air Routes Open to Canada

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canadian airlines will be able to fly into lucrative new United States areas under a proposed new Canada-United States agreement to be signed in mid-January, it was learned today.

Negotiations on the agreement have dragged on for months. Earlier this year the Americans said flatly they would not be interested in resuming negotiations if Canadians insisted on the Winnipeg to Minneapolis and Chicago run.

The negotiations were resumed this month. Indications are that the Canadian government while still declaring interest in the Winnipeg southward run, have eased up somewhat on that insistence in the interests of finally getting a bilateral agreement.

Canada has battled for years to get more than just border-hops for Canadian airlines. The Canadians wanted to crack some of the more lucrative runs in the United States.

Air Canada is understood to be in line for permission to fly from Montreal to Toronto and directly to Los Angeles. Under existing agreements passengers from Montreal and Toronto have to change planes at Chicago.

DIRECT ROUTES

Air Canada will be also allowed to fly directly to Miami from Canadian points. This is a lucrative run that the Canadian authorities have been striving to get for years. At present Canadians on Air Canada can fly only to Tampa, Florida and must change to American lines to fly to Miami.

Canadian Pacific Airlines would be permitted to fly from Vancouver to San Francisco under the proposed agreement, it is understood. But in return United Airlines would fly directly from Montreal to Chicago.

Government air authorities here refused to comment on reports that the new agreement would be signed in mid-January. However, it was learned from their well-informed sources that the negotiations now under way again on an official level are close to completion with the signing expected about the time Parliament will open, Jan. 18.

One source said that the fact that the negotiations had been resumed was a clear indication that Canada had backed away on its insistence that the Winnipeg south run must be agreed to by the Americans or it would b "no deal."

18 VOTES ON SHY SIDE FOR FLUORIDES BALLOT

An official count of Oak Bay's fluoridation ballots completed today left the total of "yes" votes only 18 short of the needed 60 per cent majority.

New totals are 3,141 to 2,125 in favor of the chemical being added to the municipality's water supply.

The recount boosted the favorable percentage up one per cent to 59.646.

First count Saturday night revealed a "yes" vote of 3,083 to 2,125 or 58.6 per cent.

The returning officer for the hospital and parks vote in Langford, Colwood, Metchosin and Sooke last Saturday was F. J. Willway. Boundary for the unorganized district, for voting purposes was the boundary for Sooke Schol District, district 62.

So naturally, when F. J. Willway was elected to Sooke school board, we asked some questions about possible conflicting interests.

A municipal affairs department source explains that though Mr. Willway conducted the voting for hospitals and parks, he had nothing to do with the school board vote, which was handled by another appointee. The voting places for the three questions were all in the same schools, but at separate polls in different rooms.

"So there was no conflict of interests," said the department official.

VISITS JOHNSON THURSDAY

Wilson Repeats Support For U.S. Action in Viet

By JOHN HEFFERNAN

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson reiterated Britain's support for United States policy in Viet Nam. He told the House of Commons he hoped to discuss "all aspects of the Viet Nam problem" with President Lyndon Johnson during White House talks.

---

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The search for peace in Viet Nam is expected to dominate Harold Wilson's talks with President Johnson at the White House this week.

Other issues, such as NATO nuclear sharing, non-dissemination of nuclear weapons, defences east of Suez, and Rhodesia's seizure of independence will be reviewed.

Prime Minister Wilson will go to the White House Thursday, soon after addressing the United Nations General Assembly in New York, and will continue his meetings with the U.S. president Friday.

Wilson is likely to find that U.S. objectives in Viet Nam have crystallized into a determination to keep open channels to a peaceful settlement and plans for an even greater military effort should peace moves fail.

WILSON
... all aspects of Viet Nam

Johnson is certain to reiterate U.S. backing for the economic moves Britain is taking against the breakaway regime of Ian Smith in Rhodesia.

MALAYSIA A TOPIC

Malaysia and Britain's commitment to its defence will be included in the review of South-east Asia.

So, too, will the Kashmir problem and India's relations generally with Pakistan.

The United States is sympathetic to Britain's desire to reduce defence commitments, but wants it to maintain its present strength east of Suez, which has been boosted considerably.

If Wilson, as reported, asks Johnson for an extension beyond the Jan. 1 deadline of the British option to buy the U.S. F-111 fighter-bomber, the belief here is that the extension will readily be granted.

RCAF MAY PURCHASE JAPANESE AIRCRAFT

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF is investigating the possibility of purchasing about 30 Japanese-built MU-2 light aircraft, a defence department spokesman said Monday.

The RCAF has been "looking at" several different models to fulfil a requirement for an aircraft to be used for liaison purposes.

The MU-2 has a maximum speed of 310 miles an hour and cruises about 285, which is reported considerably faster than similar planes developed in North America. No cost estimate was available.

The defence department source emphasized no decisions have yet been made.

Cuba Holds B.C. Man On Smuggling Charge

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canadian technician prevented from leaving Cuba Monday for allegedly infringing customs and currency regulations has been given refuge at the Canadian Embassy in Havana.

Roland Ramsay, 24, from suburban Coquitlam, told his employer, L. H. Potvin, via telephone Monday night he had been treated courteously by police and had been turned over to the embassy until the case is resolved.

Mr. Ramsay, in Cuba since February, was detained by police at Havana Airport when customs officials discovered a package containing U.S. currency and considerable jewelry in his luggage.

He was boarding a plane for Mexico, where he was to have made connections for a flight to Vancouver to spend Christmas with his parents.

Ramsay told his employer he was taking the package to Cubans now living in the United States as a favor, without any profit to himself.

Mr. Potvin said arrangements have been made to retain a Havana lawyer. He expects the matter to be cleared up in a day or two so Ramsay can return to Vancouver for Christmas.

Ramsay has been working as an electronics consultant, assisting Cubans installing communications equipment in Cuban fishing boats.

'Adlai Supported U.S. Policy'

NEW YORK (AP) — Clayton Fritchey, who was Adlai E. Stevenson's special assistant at the United Nations, says the late UN ambassador expressed support of U.S. foreign policy shortly before his death last summer.

Fritchey said in his column in Newsday, a Long Island daily:

"Despite a number of highly publicized reports to the contrary, Adlai Stevenson did not die an embittered and disappointed man, weary with frustration and disillusioned with public office."

Fritchey said Stevenson expressed his views in an unmailed letter to a group of writers, artists and scientists who had urged him to resign his UN post.

The letter, written a few days before Stevenson left for London, where he died July 14, said, according to Fritchey:

"Whatever criticisms may be made over the detail and emphasis on American foreign policy its purpose and directions are sound.

"I do not believe the policy of retreat in Asia or anywhere else would make any contributions whatsoever to the idea that violence cannot be the formal arbitrator in world affairs."

Three Main Objectives In U.K. Peace Policy

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government's general Viet Nam policy aim is to convene another conference leading to a settlement that will assure both South and North Viet Nam against aggression, a white paper said today.

Though the North Vietnamese have rejected the British suggestions, the white paper said Britain will continue to press ahead with this peace-seeking policy.

Britain wants a conference leading to a settlement assuring both parts of the country against aggression, without binding South Viet Nam to any military alliance. Future relations between the North and the South should be left for the free decision of the peoples of both zones, the white paper said.

The document said this also is the policy of the United States, whose troops would be withdrawn from Viet Nam should the South be firmly as-

SEE OBJECTIVES

The white paper added that successive British governments had tried to achieve three objectives in their Indochina policy:

These were:

1. To promote peaceful settlements in Indochina—Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.
2. Support and assist their allies.
3. To promote the right of the peoples of Indochina to pursue in peace their chosen paths towards independence and prosperity.

These basic objectives, the white paper said, continued to determine Britain's policy today.

Britain and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the seven-year war in then French Indochina states of Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.

Pakistan Peace Offer Shot Down by India

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pakistani President Mohammad Ahub Khan arrived today for talks with President Johnson that are expected to focus on the Kashmir dispute between India and Pakistan and other Asian problems such as the war in Viet Nam.

Johnson and Ayub met behind closed doors without advisers.

With Ayub on his U.S. trip is his foreign minister, Z. A. Bhutto, considered an advocate of closer Pakistani ties with Communist China and stronger moves against India.

Ayub, who has labelled his mission here a "quest for peace," told the UN General Assembly Monday that Pakistan is willing to sign a no-war pledge with India, if India agrees to self-determination for the people of Kashmir. The two nations have been feuding over rival claims to the border province for years.

DENOUNCES THE SPEECH

But Indian Ambassador Gopalaswami Parthasarathi immediately denounced Ayub's speech as partisan and tendentious, and said he should not have even raised the Kashmir dispute before the 117-nation General Assembly.

With little prospect of an early solution to the Kashmir problem, official sources here said they did not see much likelihood of any immediate U.S. response to Ayub's request for resumption of American economic and military aid.

Since 1954, the United States has supplied $1,000,000,000 in military aid and $3,200,000,000 in economic assistance to Pakistan. But the 22-day border war between India and Pakistan in September brought a freeze on U.S. military assistance to both countries.

On Viet Nam, U.S. officials feel that Pakistan, a member of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, has been more friendly to Peking and Hanoi than the United States would like it to be.

The two countries also disagree on the issue of Communist China's admission to the United Nations, which Ayub favors and the United States opposes.

West German Drill Scored In Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP)—A meeting protesting the presence of West German troops at Camp Shilo in western Manitoba was held here Sunday. The 250 people who attended were urged to demonstrate outside the base Thursday.

Floyd Williston, secretary of the Manitoba Peace Council, said his organization, the United Jewish Peoples Order and veterans will demonstrate with placards and other means of "letting the German soldiers know we don't want them here."

Mr. Williston said the demonstration was planned for Thursday to coincide with a press tour of the German operations arranged by the national defence department. He said the demonstration could divert the attention of reporters from the soldiers to the groups' protest.

Approximately 200 German soldiers and technicians are carrying out winter equipment tests in manoeuvres that will continue until February at the Canadian army training establishment.

More Letters Oppose 80-Unit Apartment

Letters from three more Oak Bay Junction residents Monday protest a proposed 80-unit garden apartment development for the former Pearse estate on Begbie.

They were addressed to the mayor and council of Victoria, which will hold a public hearing on an application by Edca Holdings Ltd. to rezone the 4.25 acres to garden apartment use.

The hearing was first set for last month, but was postponed to Thursday when council was shown that first notice was as short as two days before the scheduled day.

To date, four lengthy letters outlining protests in detail have been addressed to city hall.

In addition, some 50 area residents held their own public meeeting a week ago and are now circulating a petition against the development.

"We feel that as local taxpayers . . . there is a great danger to life if this is allowed to proceed," wrote W. O. and Eleanor Allan, 1576 Vining.

Begbie is used as a direct route to Royal Jubilee and Veterans' Hospitals by police cars and ambulances, the letters said.

Any development which encourages traffic and school children would add to the hazard already involved because of an intersection with poor visibility and a "deaf zone" due to a sharp rise, the Allans said.

In addition, school facilities in the district are already crowded, and there is a shortage of playground space.

LAND VALUE

Donald E. and Constance M. Broadworth, 1568 Vining, wrote pointing out that council should consider:

Promotion of health, safety, convenience and welfare of the public; overcrowding of land; securing adequate light, air and access; land value and character of use.

The terms are contained in the Municipal Act.

The writers point out the additional factor of low water pressure in the area, which could become dangerous with a large-scale development in case of fire.

'Copter Crashes After Hitting Top of Trees

GOLDEN (CP) — Three men escaped injury when their helicopter crashed during claim-staking work at Bugaboo Creek, 65 miles southeast of here.

The pilot of the $65,000 helicopter, owned by Okanagan Helicopters Ltd., was identified as Henry Sands of Nelson.

His two unidentified passengers on the Saturday expedition were prospectors who had just staked a claim. As the helicopter took off it struck a treetop and fell back to the ground.

The men spent the night at an abandoned mining camp and were flown here Sunday by another helicopter.

Missing Plane Carried 81

PLEIKU, South Viet Nam (AP)—A U.S. Air Force C-123 cargo plane with 81 persons aboard is missing on a flight south of Qui Nhon along the South Vietnamese coast, reliable U.S. sources report.

There were 77 government soldiers and four American crew members aboard the plane.

Greater Victoria Regional Boy Scout Association Council will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. at Scout Headquarters on Johnson Street.

Fire Kills 6 At Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—A family of six died in a flaming west end house today, one five-year-old girl vainly clawing at a plastic window covering after smashing the glass.

Firemen said winter coverings on some of the windows kept heat in and turned the small house into a deadly oven for three children, their parents and an uncle.

The victims are Walter Sonier, 28, his wife Gloria, 29, their children, Donna Lynn, 5, Charmaine, 2, and Lynda, 1, and Sonier's brother, Stanley, 42.

Gooderham's 1832 is an unusually light and mellow Canadian whisky.

Thanks to our windmill.

When we started making whisky back in 1832, we built a huge windmill on our first distillery site.

Our founder, William Gooderham, used it to grind the grain that went into his first whiskies. (35 years before Confederation.)

Even back in those days, we were very choosey about the things that went into our whisky. Like our ryes and our barleys.

And as we've grown older, it's one of the lessons we've never forgotten.

That's why when you first sip 1832, you'll know it's a special whisky. With special touches that Canadian whisky-drinkers have come to expect from Gooderham's.

So, when the talk gets around to whisky, remember 1832. And our windmill.

It's a sure-fire way of not getting just an ordinary run-of-the-mill whisky.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832.

Our Largest Warship Smuggler's Paradise

OTTAWA—Yo, Ho, Ho and the HMCS Bonaventure's booze is going down the drain.

And Christmas is going to cost more than some of the crew had thought.

But at least they won't have to face the law.

More than $5,000 in undeclared goods was seized after the aircraft carrier docked at Halifax Nov. 19 after a cruise in foreign ports.

Some of it was aboard ship and some of it at homes of crew—and it was seized from both officers and ratings. RCMP made the raids.

The booty included radios, record players, toys and liquor.

Hugh Hawkins, chief of the Seizures Branch of National Revenue, said today that all the goods appeared to be for personal use and no charges are planned.

The former owners are being notified that they will have the first chance to recover the goods.

But at Canadian prices, plus excise tax, most of them will be more expensive than in any store.

Unrecovered goods will go on auction at one of the department's twice-annual sales.

All except the liquor—it will be destroyed.

GAS LINE RESTORED

Heat Return Welcome In Northern Towns

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP) Gas service was restored in this northeastern British Columbia town and nearby Pouce Coupe around midnight Monday.

Most of the communities' 16,500 residents had spent the previous 24 hours in houses heated only by electric appliances. The temperature was below zero.

Gas from Peace River fields fires the boilers at the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority generating station and heats almost all the homes in this area.

A Westcoast Transmission Co. pipeline burst under the bed of a river 14 miles north of here Sunday night. As a result Pouce Coupe, a village of 1,600 had no gas. Dawson Creek, population 15,000 had gas for only 20 per cent of its houses.

Hospitals used oil heat. Hydro switched to diesel power but this was inadequate as residents used every possible electrical appliance to keep warm. As the system became overloaded, whole blocks were blacked out for varying periods.

The pipeline runs 22 miles from Taylor, B.C., in the north through Dawson Creek to Pouce Coupe. Westcoast reversed the flow in the pipe, supplying gas from Alberta fields east of Pouce Coupe.

But before it could do that it had to cap the pipe near the break. Twice workers dug 30 feet to the pipeline, only to have the hole cave in. A second hole was successful.

New Republic

LOBATSI (AP) — Bechuanaland, the British protectorate in southern Africa, will become a republic within the British Commonwealth on gaining its independence next September, Prime Minister Seretse Khama said Monday. He said the country would change its name to Botswana. The territory has slightly more than 3,000 whites and nearly 300,000 non-whites.

CONSULTATION STRESSED

More Talk, Fewer Guns Canada Plan for NATO

PARIS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Paul Martin today called for efforts to "rationalize defence planning" and improve nuclear collaboration as he opened a three-day conference of North Atlantic foreign, defence and finance ministers.

Speaking as this year's president of the NATO council, Martin urged caution in attempts to build up NATO's military strength to such a degree that the consequent hardening of East-West relations makes peace more difficult to obtain.

"As a defensive alliance intended to prevent Communist expansion in the NATO area, we have a responsibility to maintain the military force necessary for this task," he said. "We must, however, develop our defensive arrangements in such a manner as to keep open the prospects for negotiation with our adversary and to seek and develop such possibilities as may exist for a successful outcome to such negotiations."

While Martin agreed there is a need to improve collaboration in nuclear matters among the 15 member countries, he emphasized that efforts should be made to rationalize defence planning, ensuring that the military plans members had accepted were in fact attainable and best designed for common defence.

This appeared to be a suggestion that the alliance ought to slow down a bit in its military expansion, a proposal that would find favor with Britain which believes NATO has been planning on military principles that never would be realized—a 90-day conventional war in an age where nuclear weapons decide the outcome in a matter of days.

Martin noted that the current world fighting areas were outside NATO. The period of peace in the NATO area demonstrated its success and provided an opportunity to put NATO's house in better order. The alliance, he said, was based on the assumption that members trusted one another to come to each other's assistance if they were in trouble.

On this point, he called for stronger consultations within the alliance on East-West relations so that all members would have a better understanding of Soviet objectives and tactics and of any possibilities which would open the way for fruitful East-West negotiations.

He suggested also that before NATO members make moves which might affect the interests of other allies, they should consult more by deepening exchanges on world problems.

This appeared to be finger-wagging at the United States which has made moves in Cuba, Dominican Republic, Viet Nam and other trouble spots without fully consulting with its NATO allies.

MOSCOW VISIT by chairman of Algerian Revolutionary Council, Col. Houari Boumedienne, began today. Week-long visit is his first to another country since he led the coup that overthrew former president Ahmed Ben Bella last June. ## FOR FIRST TIME

De Gaulle Faces Questions on TV

By HAROLD KING

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle, campaigning vigorously for another seven-year term, Monday night faced a newspaper man on television for the first time.

The French presidential election campaign now is in its second leg following the first inconclusive ballot. The second ballot is Sunday.

De Gaulle was questioned by Michel Droit, editor of the weekly Le Figaro Litteraire, who told him that "many Frenchmen feel that you . . . are not very interested in bread-and-butter questions."

De Gaulle responded that "in reality, this is not true. To exist, the French must be strong, and to be strong, they must be prosperous."

He said French prices have risen only 2½ per cent a year since his return to power in 1958.

His opponent, left winger, Francois Mitterrand, also appeared on TV to fire a broadside at de Gaulle's foreign policies.

He repeated almost word for word his attack of Sunday on Gaullist foreign policy for being "anti-American with the Russians, anti - Russian with the Americans, anti - British with Germany, anti-German with the British. . . ."

He also castigated de Gaulle's policy of giving France its own nuclear deterrent.

"French military strategy consists of letting loose an atomic war from the first minute of a conflict. This is a remedy that is worse than the disease."

L'Express Monday predicted that de Gaulle—who received 44.6 per cent of the vote in Sunday's first round of the presidential voting — now has the support of 57 per cent of the voters.

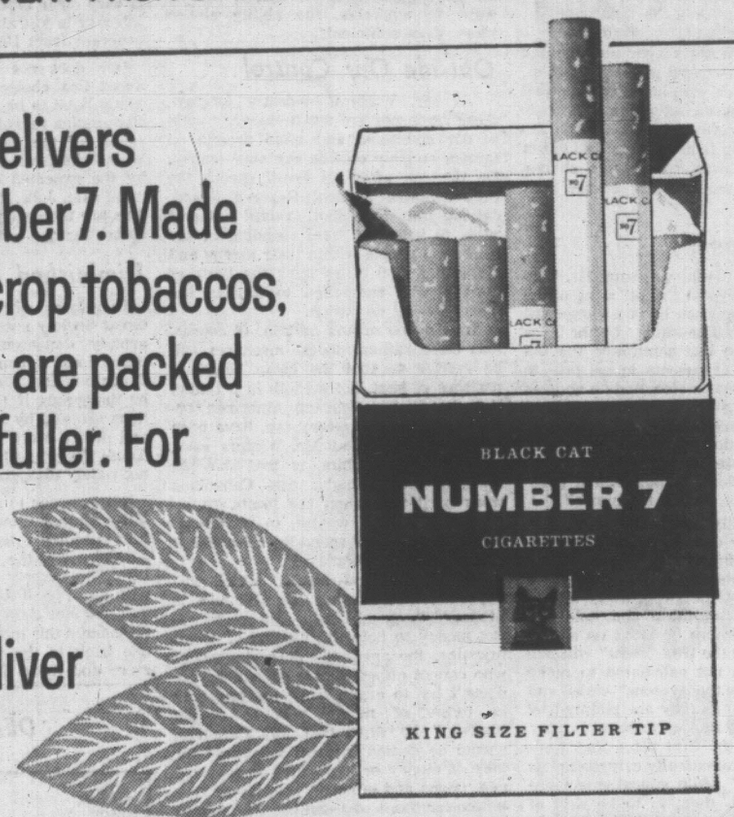

The opposition weekly estimated Mitterran's support at 43 per cent.

Within the Family Circle

AS MIGHT HAVE BEEN EXpected, Prime Minister Pearson was quick to support a Nigerian suggestion of a top-level Commonwealth conference in January to discuss the Rhodesian problem. With his notable background of international trouble-shooting, Mr. Pearson is naturally alive to the possibilities of successful agreement through discussion and compromise. He evidently feels that the Rhodesian situation could benefit from such a process. The leaders of the other countries of the Commonwealth should share his hopes for fruitful results.

The proposal is interesting from two standpoints. First, some formula may develop from group discussion which could contribute significantly to solution or amelioration of the Rhodesian crisis, and in the process smooth the ruffled feathers of African members of the Commonwealth who recently voted to sever displomatic contact with Britain if the latter country did not solve the Rhodesian conundrum by mid-December.

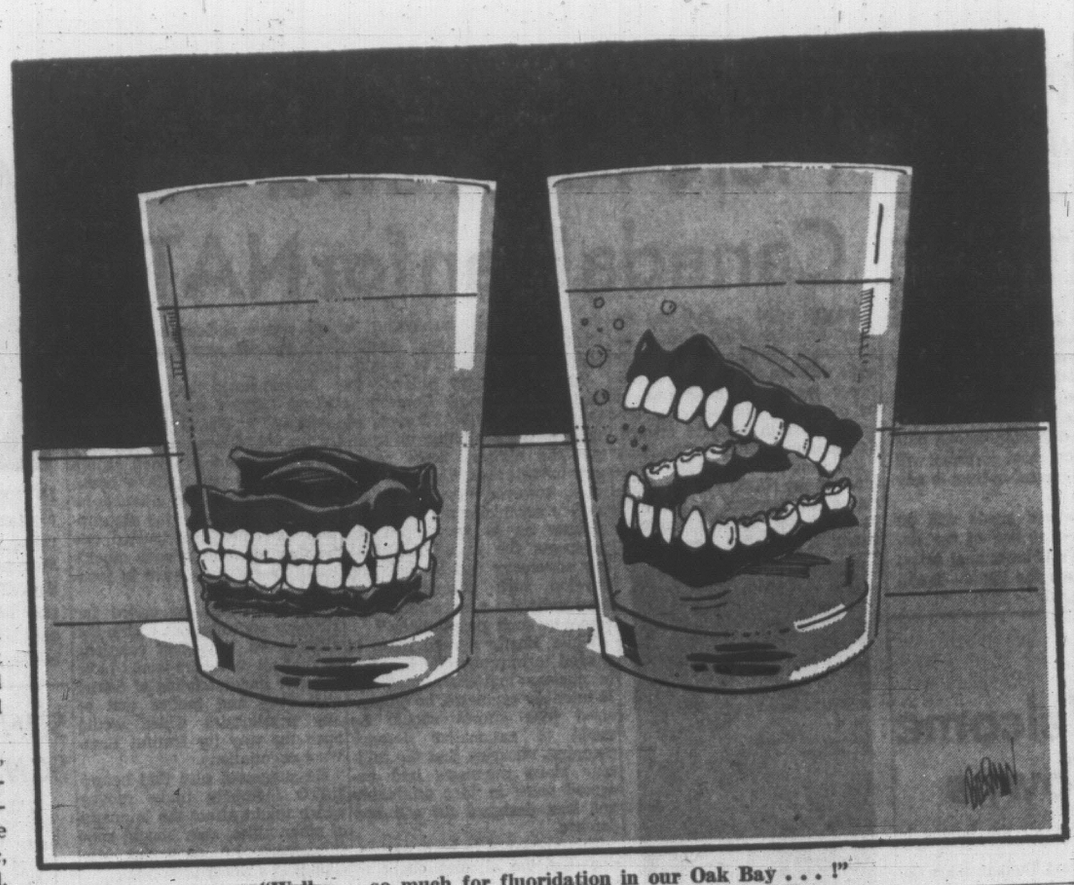

Enthusiasm for such a move — which would have been very hazardous for some of the Commonwealth members—has since cooled, leaving only Tanzania and Nigeria still threatening, with the United Arab Republic also participating. But the fact that the idea was at first seized on with widespread interest indicates that a good family conference might not do any harm at this time.

The second consideration could be of greater import than the immediate task of getting Rhodesia out of the dilemma in which it now labors. This concerns the Commonwealth itself, often extolled as a unifying force between black and white elements, an example of inter-racial co-operation, and an important link between the industrially advanced nations and the under-developed lands.

If such a family group has merit, surely the present Rhodesian situation is one in which it should function. If the laudatory references have meaning beyond ceremonial rhetoric, surely now is the time for some hard, back-room negotiating, and realistic advice to the rebel regime in Salisbury. Even partial success in such an undertaking would raise the world status of the Commonwealth immeasurably and impart solid meaning — for future use — to the traditional words.

Mr. Pearson no doubt had such considerations in mind when he gave quick support to the plan. He saw such talks as reducing "the areas of possible misunderstanding" and furthering the Commonwealth aim of "bringing the illegal situation in Rhodesia to an early end."

There will obviously be no disposition on the part of the Canadian delegation to condone the action of Rhodesia's white population — and the rest of the Commonwealth members will agree. Straight — even tough — talk from "family" friends might do Rhodesia's Mr. Smith a world of good at this time and discourage his regime from continuing the present dangerous situation beyond the breaking point.

"Well . . . so much for fluoridation in our Oak Bay . . . !"

Poverty War Battle Lost

By MAURICE WESTERN
From Ottawa

THE "war on poverty" conference may have noted, among other reports, the communique from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics indicating that the consummer price index rose by almost a full point in November to its highest level in history. This amounts to a lost battle. All the people with whom the conference is concerned are worse off than they were before the price surge. They are worse off in absolute terms and they are worse off relative to other groups in the population.

Western

There are well-known ways in which the strong and the well-to-do can protect themselves from losses due to inflation but these are of no help to persons at the subsistence level and without bargaining power.

What is now called the "war on poverty" did not begin with last year's speech from the throne. It is interesting to observe that it is equated in that document with economic expansion. The problem a few years ago was that we had unused resources and a good deal of unemployment; the whole "mix" of policies since that time has been intended to take up the slack.

While this situation existed it was tempting to go on adding program to program. The only criticism to be expected in Parliament was that the government was over-cautious; that it ought to do more. So great was the economic surge that revenues increased even faster than public spending with the happy result that it was possible to bring the budget into balance. Indeed, the prospect now is that, barring changes, the next budget will show a surplus.

Plain Warning

The DBS finding that the price index has advanced by 3.2 per cent in a year is a plain warning, however, that the strategy of the war on poverty requires revision. In the present conditions of economic strain, the politically attractive technique of adding new programs to old may simply make matters worse. There is no doubt, as the conference papers show, that more ought to be done in particular fields but the price of addition may be the substraction of other programs which have outlived their usefulness and now feed inflation.

In so diversified an economy as that of Canada, there will always be possible to show that the expenditure of so many tens of millions to meet a particular situation will lift a certain group out of the poverty class. But if the effect of such programs, added to existing expenditures, is to stimulate further inflation, the gains of the relatively few will be offset by losses to the many. For inflation operates throughout the economy and the people who are vulnerable to it are found everywhere in the country.

The government is in this difficulty; that any proposal for the abandonment of a program normally provokes howls of protest, not only from the opposition but often also from its own members. A case could be made out for a sharp curtailment of the municipal winter works program (developed at a time when there was much slack in the economy) because there is already too much pressure on the construction industry.

New 'Mix' Needed

It will almost certainly be argued, however, that the program is an absolutely essential stimulus in some areas even though it may not be needed and may instead have an inflationary effect elsewhere in the country.

The need for a new "mix" of policies seems nevertheless to be clear. For unless inflation can be curbed, there is an obvious risk that the war on poverty may be self-defeating. If an uncontrolled boom is followed, as in the past, by an economic slump, we will find ourselves with a very much larger problem of poverty and social wastage than that to which the conference in Ottawa has addressed itself.

Going Higher Faster

THE COST-OF-LIVING INDEX nudged upward again in November, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, and now stands about 3.5 per cent higher than it did in November last year.

That's a walloping increase in prices for a one-year period—a good one to 1½ per cent more than is generally conceded to be acceptable in a stable economy—and it seems a stiff price to pay for the "good times" in which Canadians have been living. Perhaps we should qualify that to say "most Canadians" for the fact is that those on fixed incomes of various sorts have not been enjoying "good times" unless they have been able to find some means to supplement their incomes.

Interestingly enough, at about the same time the new cost-of-living figures were released, the Gallup Poll published a survey on the reasons why Canadians thought prices were going up. The answer given by the largest segment of those polled, 46 per cent, was "big profits" in business and industry.

In actual fact, however, those Canadians who believe that big profits have brought on higher prices are quite wrong. Business and industry, no less than the individual, have been caught up in the inflation squeeze and corporate profits, with some exceptions, have been dropping.

The latest figures available from the bureau of statistics are for the second quarter of this year and they show a decline in over-all corporation profits of about $8 millions from the first quarter—from $1,235 millions to $1,227 millions before taxes. Profits in the paper industry declined 11.5 per cent, in the electrical industry 10.4 per cent, in primary metals and fabricating, machinery and transportation equipment 3.8 per cent. There was a drop in profits in the service industries, too, ranging from 2.8 per cent in transportation, communications and storage to 12.5 per cent in utilities. Finance, insurance and real estate were down 7.1 per cent and other non-manufacturing industry was off 12.1 per cent.

The profits total would have been much lower had it not been for sharp rises in a few sectors of the economy, primarily in building materials, petroleums and chemicals.

What has caused price increases over the past year has not been "big profits" but "little profits" and there is every reason to believe that the trend will continue even more sharply in the coming year as business and industry strive to increase their earnings so that they can pay interest and dividends and have enough left over for upkeep, expansion and modernization.

An increase of 3½ per cent in the cost-of-living index—and the same in the wholesale price index—in a one-year period is not yet runaway inflation. But it is far enough above the two to 2½ per cent average rise of recent years to be clear warning that inflation is indeed the greatest danger now facing the Canadian economy.

If recent measures taken by Ottawa to stretch out the current capital boom are not effective, and quickly effective, the situation can only grow worse and Canada will find its recent efforts to boost vital exports in jeopardy. A rising cost-of-living index means higher prices for individual Canadians; for the nation as a whole it means a weakened competitive position in world markets on which the country, in the final analysis, depends for its well-being.

No Marriage of Love

TWO REASONS HAVE BEEN advanced for the relative coolness of South Africa's welcome to Rhodesia in the highly exclusive white supremacy club of that continent.

The South Africans, according to some observers, believe that the Rhodesia of Mr. Ian Smith may prove the effectiveness of world sanctions by falling victim to them. Hence, goes the theory, similar sanctions might be intensified against South Africa to its great discomfort and possible disaster.

Moreover, Rhodesia, while opposed to Britain's plan to foster black and white integration within the government, has not entirely slammed the door on such an eventual development. South Africa's present government has. Hence, it is argued, Rhodesia is too liberal.

It is probable that the reaction of the outside world to Rhodesia, along with continued hostility to South Africa, may force the two nations into partnership. At this point, however, it looks like anything but a marriage of love.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Edginess From the Budget Bind

PRESIDENT Johnson is in a bind on the budget; the bind has reportedly made him exceedingly edgy; consequently, the whole city of Wahsington is suffering, at the moment, from extreme reflected edginess. In order to get a clearer notion of the problem, the best place to begin, curiously enough, is the one place where the shoe has rather abruptly ceased to pinch. Unemployment has already dropped sharply, and the wisest forecasters are beginning to talk about a further drop to the three per cent unemployment rate attained during the Korean wartime period of fairly uncomfortable economic super-heating.

Alsop

Thus, the big, job-creating programs on the poverty-Great Society front that were on the verge of presentation only a month or so ago do not need to be thought about any longer. And they were very big programs.

To dry up poverty pockets, in fact, the Office of Economic Opportunity had a plan for job creation that would eventually have taken 750,000 persons off the unemployment rolls, at an average cost of $5,000 per person, or about $3.75 billion for the program's duration—which would have gone well beyond one year, naturally. If unemployment is to drop to three per cent of course, such a program would make problems, not solve problems.

But the reason the forecasters think unemployment may drop to three per cent is also the reason the President is now in a bind. Briefly, military spending must undoubtedly increase by a large total — $10 billion is a good, perhaps minimum, guess.

Irreversible spending commitments under the great Johnson education act will add about $1 billion more to the new budget. Other Great Society commitments, unless abandoned, can be counted on to add a further $1.5 billion, plus or minus. Private industrial investment in new plant and equipment is up a whacking 15 per cent, or about $3.5 billion. And there is nothing to counter all this except an increase of about $2.5 billion in the annual Social Security withdrawal from the economy.

No wonder, then, that "inflation" is the word they mutter nowadays with bated breaths in policy-making circles. A desire to prevent "inflation-psychology," in fact, dictated the misleading manner of the recent announcement of B-25 and B-58 superannuations and new Defence Department base closings.

If you look at the fine print you discover that this sensible program will get rid of very few planes and bases and save very little money this year. The fact that most of the superannuated planes will be replaced by a bomber version of the F-111 was also elaborately played down. No doubt by President Johnson's personal direction (for he is great old stage manager) all this stage managing was meant to convey the impression of ruthless, almost bloody-minded economy.

Deficit Threat

The reality behind the impression is the threat of a projected budget deficit as great as or even greater than the famous record deficit of $12.4 billion achieved by President Eisenhower in 1959. And no amount of stage managing will prevent a deficit of these dimensions from being hotly, perhaps fatally inflationary.

The money must be found to pay for the Vietnamese War. That leaves the President with the painful choice already underlined in this space. Either he can take the road hinted at the other day by the brilliant liberal economist, Paul Samuelson, when he said to the secretary of the treasury, "You know, Joe, fiscal flexibility has to work both ways."

Either, in other words, the President can raise taxes or he can get the budget deficit under control by abandoning—one might almost say dishonoring — his Great Society commitments. For the promise to go forward, to do more rather than less, is very clear indeed; and this promise is inherent in just about every Great Society program from Head Start to VISTA.

One does not want to be emotional about this choice that will almost certainly have to be made. The frightful inflammation revealed, for instance, by the report of the commission studying the Watts riots will be immensely reduced by the expected drop in the unemployment rate. Jobs, more jobs and still more jobs are the best poultice for this kind of social ulcer.

Diminished Danger

Therefore, whereas cutting back on Great Society spending would have been acutely dangerous, with different job projections it cannot be called acutely dangerous now. Or at any rate it will not be dangerous if the hopes and expectations aroused by such projects as VISTA and Head Start and the Neighborhood Youth Corps and by the education act are not rudely disappointed.

But in order to avoid this kind of rude disappointment, overly severe cuts in current spending rates have to be ruled out. Furthermore, the rates have been rising fast. The poverty program, for instance, with an over-all appropriation of $1.5 billion, reaches a spending rate of $2 billion per annum this month. All of which brings one back to the tax alternative that is more and more discussed.

WHERE HE STANDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Mr. Winters, the Liberal

MR. Robert Winters is perhaps the best example and worst victim of a current political fad — the fad which puts every public man into a pigeon hole labelled "right," "left" or "centre." But he refuses to play this silly game. He will wear no label and fit no neat category.

Hutchison

His declaration of ideological independence was issued a few days ago at Banff. Knowing Mr. Winters very slightly and having never discussed politics with him, I read his speech with an open, skeptical mind. It seems an interesting and possibly an important document. For obviously this man is among the half dozen Canadians, no more, who have a chance to become prime minister in the next year or two.

'Labels Game'

According to the labels game, Mr. Winters stands on the far "right" wing of the Liberal party because he is a competent engineer and businessman. In the eyes of the "left" he has committed the unpardonable sin of success in his private life. The fact that he also made a success of his public life in the St. Laurent government is conveniently forgotten. He must be a reactionary, a conservative in disguise, because he used his skills to develop the nation's resources and probably made some money for himself.

This apparently is shocking to those who have never done anything in particular. It is shocking to Mr. Winters, in any case, that he should be so labelled, or libelled. At Banff he swept away all the meaningless generalities and told the public frankly where he stood on specifics. I doubt that the true "right" will like his credo. It is not calculated to make him popular in the tycoons' clubs and executive suites, as they are pictured by the cartoons and movies anyhow.

He notes in the first place that businessmen are automatically categorized as being "rightist" while educationists are "leftists." What, then, is to be said of him when he has spent half his time during the last decade in each field? Mr. Winters answers that he is simply a "Liberal."

But what is a "Liberal?" The question can't be answered easily since Canadian Liberalism, like all human ideas, has undergone shaking changes for at least 30 years and, roughly speaking, has reversed its entire position. Once the prophet of laissez-faire and the unrestrained market, it is now the sponsor of huge state services and pretty drastic state intervention in the economy.

Practical Worry

This doesn't worry Mr. Winters, the distinguished private enterpriser. What worries him is something much more practical than the quarrels of ideology and it should worry us all.

He says he will be glad to accept a "conservative" label "if that means I am deeply concerned to see that we have the means and ability to ensure that our economy remains healthy and expanding, that the nation prospers and that wages and income increase and that the dollar remains sound; that I want to see our budgets balanced in good times and our adverse (trade) balances on current account reduced." But "I am in favor of government assistance at any point where it meets real need and enables men and women to live in dignity or stimulates them to useful and productive lives."

Why should these unexceptionable sentiments raise any question? Because Canadian society and its two recent governments, Conservative and Liberals, have rarely concerned themselves with "means and ability." They have spent, planned and hypothecated the future on the assumption that the means will always be available, the ability always more than sufficient.

Outside Our Control

As Mr. Winters evidently foresaw, those resources are not necessarily within our command and often depend on factors entirely outside our own control. On the day after his Banff speech the United States Federal Reserve Board, defying the President, raised interest rates to keep the total spending of the American people within their means and ability. A few hours later the Bank of Canada was compelled to imitate the move, having no option.

It is by no means certain, of course, that these rather modest measures will be enough to cool the boom before it perishes of heat like a moth in a flame, but the limits even of American resources, massive as they are, have been recognized. All that Mr. Winters asks, as I understand him, is that they be recognized in Canada, that Canadians work hard to expand the limits, to increase their total wealth, to earn their money before they spend it—a somewhat radical notion nowadays.

Within the real limits (which are physical not financial) Mr. Winters is prepared to spend freely. He would use tax money to help the victims of social injustice, the aged, the deserving youth who cannot afford higher education. He doesn't try to argue these matters only in terms of money. It is simply "wrong," he says, that any Canadian should be denied medical treatment for lack of money or compelled to face old age "alone and in need." He favors free tuition for those who can use it, financed by government and private enterprise together, a medical care program within the nation's means and portable pensions for all workers.

Doctrine of Change

For conservatives (in both partisan and non-partisan terms) Mr. Winters has the highest respect but he rejects their central doctrine because they cling instinctively to the past and resist change when change is the essential nature, the final imperative, of our age. Liberalism, in his view, is the doctrine of change not merely accepted but welcomed, and the Liberal party is the party of "reform." This from the so-called "rightist."

To be sure, the Liberal party isn't as consistent, enlightened and virtuous as Mr. Winters assumes in a public speech, and a speech, however frank, is very different from a private debate within the cabinet. There, and not at Banff, Mr. Winters will make or fail to make his mark as a potential party leader. In preparation he has cleared away a mass of underbrush, a litter of labels, before he starts to build his future house.

BRAIN AND BEHAVIOR

When I entered psychiatry 25 years ago, it wasn't the "done thing" to compare the brain and behavior. Behavior was due to the soul and the mind, and not very much to do with the brain, it was thought. Now we are beginning o reatlize that the brain is very important in behavior, And I don't see why we should not get a drug to increase the speed of brain maturation, because this is a physiological process.

Looking Back

From The Times of Dec. 14, 1905:

From an editorial cartoon titled "B.C. Ministers in the East", showing the premier and his minister about to enter the Toronto office of the president of the railway. The premier is clutching a satchel labelled "Campaign Funds."

The Finance Minister: "I'm tired of visiting these people. When are we going to Ottawa to discuss departmental affairs?"

The Premier: "Tatlow, you have not a soul above trivialities. Study me and learn statecraft."

South Africa's Apartheid Separating Family Groups

The Manchester Guardian

Within the last month important bodies of the Dutch Reformed and Anglican churches in South Africa have strongly criticized the growing disruption of African family life and morality under the intensified migratory labor system arising from the government's "race separation" policy.

Recently the Anglican synod referred to the "destruction" of African family life, and a commission of the Cape synod of the Dutch Reformed Church called the African social breakdown under it a "cancer" raging in the life of the community.

It is largely the South African Race Relations Institute and the women's Black Sash organization, working tirelessly to mitigate some of the worst effects of the system, which provide the authenticated examples of individual suffering and misery on which these judgments are based. In the Institute-Black Sash advice office at Athlone, Cape Town, there are files on 8,594 such cases.

693 Women

The Black Sash has authenticated records of 693 mostly married women who had been "endorsed out" of the Western Cape between October, 1963, and September, 1964. This means that the married women were separated from their husbands, who were legally working in the area, and sent to some statutory place of domicile, generally 600 or 800 miles away in a "homeland" or "Bantustan."

The Black Sash also gave individual cases. One African woman in trouble about her "pass" or "reference book" was removed to police cells to await deportation. She had to leave her sick child in the arms of a friend. The Sash comments: "Without our intervention she would have been removed from Cape Town without the baby, which could have died."

Another woman was arrested while her husband was absent, had to leave four children behind at home—the youngest was 2. These were left unattended for several days until a neighbor, a man, stayed away from work to look after them.

Test Area

The Cape western province, and particularly the Cape Town district, is becoming a test area for the feasibility of the scheme to move great mass . . . the Africans out of the "white" areas back to the African or Bantu "homelands." This is being done under the Western Cape removal scheme. Although the numbers of Africans have tended to rise rather than decrease under the scheme, their security of tenure and family life tends increasingly to be destroyed.

Women appear to be suffering the brunt of the removal. Bishop Savage said at the Anglican synod, "From 1955 the watchword in the Cape has been to get rid of the women—not the loafers, but decent married women whose only crime has been that they wanted to be with their husbands . . . there are now seven men to every two women in the Langa African township.

The Black Sash reported on the increasing numbers of Africans coming to the Cape as migrant workers, mostly on one-year contracts. Many are housed in the so-called bachelor barracks at Langa. "There are 18,000 so-called bachelors living as single men at Langa, and 68 per cent of them are married men." The moral effects of such a system and such a disparity in the sex ratio can be judged.

Qualifications

No African, man or woman, is qualified to live in a "prescribed area" unless he or she has (1) lived there continuously from birth, (2) worked there continuously for one employer for not less than ten years, or (3) has lived there for not less than fifteen years lawfully and continuously, is not employed outside it, and has not while there been sentenced to more than six months' imprisonment or received a fine of more than 140 dollars.

The latest amendment to these law turns the screw on the women again. Formerly an African woman could live in a prescribed area if she was the wife or unmarried daughter of a "qualified" African. Now she cannot live permanently in a prescribed area (a white area) unless she has entered that area legally or she has normally resided with her husband or father.

The Black Sash leader in the Cape says "We have several cases where Africans, born in this area and who have lived here continuously and legally ever since, have married girls from other areas. The wives have promptly been "endorsed out" and it would seem that these men will never be able to have their wives to live with them."

The case is given of Audrey Sibisa. She was born in Cape Town but went to school, living with an aunt, in a town 400 miles inland. She returned to live with her parents when she was 17, but was considered by the authorities to have entered the area illegally. She married Samson Dungwa, who was born in the Cape Town area and has lived and worked there ever since. But because of the break in residence in her school years they can find no means of legally living together in her husband's area, and he cannot live outside it.

Often Refused

Until recently younger girls and boys and even unmarried daughters were never refused permission to return to their families living permanently in one of the townships. Now, however, all have got to get permission, even school children, before returning home, and this is often refused, according to the Black Sash.

They quote the case of Constance Ntombeni, who was born at Whittlesea in 1942, about 500 miles from Cape Town. She stayed on living with her grandmother after her mother had come to Cape Town to join her (Constance's) father. Her parents live perfectly legitimately in a neat brick house near Cape Town, and Constance used to spend her school holidays with them.

When she returned finally from school in April, 1963, she was given permission by the authorities to live with them till June. The authorities caught up with Constance again in August this year. She was given a fortnight to prepare to leave for "home." She was then with her parents. Her father appealed to the authorities, saying that she was required to help to take care of her mother. The authorities gave her a six-month extension—after which she has to go "home."

No 'Home'

Some are not even so fortunate as to have a terrestrial "home" to go to. Rebecca Thejane appears to have lost her qualification to live around Cape Town because she married a Basuto living in the Stellenbosch area 30 miles away. The authorities there would not allow her to take up residence with her husband. Her husband has no relatives left in Basutoland to whom he can send her.

A judge, his hands tied by the law, could only appeal to the authorities to find some way to allow her to live with her husband "in accordance with civilized standards and, indeed, Christian ethics." The judge added: "She exists in what I may best describe as a legally created limbo." Unfortunately the authorities also have their hands tied, and the legislators are hypnotized by the need for "white self-preservation."

Famous Last Words

Anthony Benezet (1713-1784)

Of Hugenot parentage, Benezet came to Philadelphia as a Quaker and organized the first anti-slavery group. His last words were: "Alas—we are poor creatures; I can take no merit for anything I have done; there is mostly something underneath that is selfish, which will not bear sifting."

Chief Crazy Horse (1844-1877)

The leader of the Custer Massacre, mortally wounded on his way to jail, died saying: "All we wanted was peace and to be left alone. Soldiers . . . in the winter . . . destroyed our villages. Then Long Hair came . . . They say we massacred him, but he would have done the same to us . . ."

Baldan Czalcha, a Mongolian herdsman, and his wife, Gelge Dulma, have spent their lives roaming the plains of Mongolia with their pony cart and yurt. Most of the livestock they now guard is owned by a state farm. The herdsmen have resisted forcible collectivization but the nomadic life is slowly being curbed through the establishment of small communities in isolated areas.

Land of Genghis Khan Emerges From Feudalism

By JOHN BEST

Mongolia — the land of Genghis Khan — is no longer a feudal society but it still has a long way to go to catch up with the 20th century. John Best, Moscow correspondent of The Canadian Press, gives his impressions of the changes taking place in the country.

ULAN BATOR—Mongolia, a landlocked country of 1,000,000 sandwiched between the Soviet Union and China, is trying desperately to catch up with a world that once trembled at the feet of its most famous son.

Only yesterday it was a feudal realm ruled by lamas and princes, loosely tied to China but to a large extent left to wallow in its own backwardness, chiefly noted as the home of the great warrior Genghis Khan.

Today, 44 years after communism took over, the princes have gone and the lamas, a tiny fraction of those who once chanted and prayed in Mongolia's Buddhist monasteries, don't count for much.

Mongolia, known also as Outer Mongolia and, in Communist jargon, the Mongolian People's Republic, has traditionally been a land of nomadic herdsmen. Sheep, goats, cattle, horses and camels represented its entire source of wealth.

For Industry

There are still 23,000,000 of these animals — 23 times the human population. But while much of the nation's limited resources is going into rural development, even more is being plowed into industry.

Though dwarfed by its two huge neighbors, Mongolia is still a big country in its own right, with an area about the size of Alberta and British Columbia combined.

It is even emptier than Canada, with a population density of 1.6 persons per square mile. A rugged land of mountains, taiga, steppe and desert, it is bordered on the north by Soviet Siberia and on the east, south and west by China.

Part of its frontier with China runs through the Gobi Desert and separates Mongolia from Inner Mongolia, now a part of China and long under direct Chinese control.

The most important fact of life for Mongolia today is that the U.S.S.R. and China, once buddy-buddy, have come to loggerheads over a variety of issues arising from the clash of Peking's revolutionary zeal and Moscow's absorption with goulash communism.

Now Compete

Where once they co-operated in Mongolia, or at least appeared to, today they compete for influence. At the moment the Soviet Union appears far ahead but there are some in Mongolia who are not happy about the satellite status this has imposed on their country. And the Chinese have not altogether vacated the arena.

Probably less than 30 per cent of Mongolia's people are urban dwellers, and most of these live in Ulan Bator, a city of 200,000 whose name means "Red Hero."

A sprawling, roomy city that stretches for 30 miles through the Tula River valley 200 miles south of the Siberian border, Ulan Bator is a community caught in the process of change.

Wide Streets

It has wide thoroughfares and handsome, well-construeted buildings. But it also has gers—better known by the Russian name yurts (small tent-like dwellings that Mongolian herdsmen have lived in for ages).

Sixty per cent of Ulan Bator's people live in yurts, pockets of which are scattered around the city, usually surrounded by board fences that seem intended to banish the thought that the yurts are there at all.

On the streets well-dressed young men and women walk briskly past sage-like figures in the belted robes of the ancient Mongol.

Outside the Mongolian Academy of Science stands a big monument to Stalin, and busts of the late Soviet dictator can be seen in other parts of the city. There has never been a destanlinization campaign here.

A new department store carries Chinese pork, Russian washing machines and Skoda automobiles from Czechoslovakia.

Excited People

On a recent evening there was a crush of excited people at one of the counters, caused by arrival of a shipment of processed bananas from North Viet Nam selling in small packages for the equivalent of 10 cents each.

In minutes the supply was exhausted and the crowd melted away to look for goodies in other parts of the store.

Outside the capital is a different world. Within a few miles you see bush-tailed horses galloping across rolling plains ridden by men with wide crimson faces and high cheekbones who look as though they have just returned from a campaign with Genghis Khan.

Single Route

Except for a single hard-surface route running north and south from Ulan Bator for 95 miles there are few roads worthy of the name.

Overland transport is by primitive tracks that bend and twist around mountain slopes, across river beds that may be chassis-deep in flood, and over rock outcroppings that scrape a vehicle's underside. Sometimes the trail disappears altogether and the Mongolian driver heads straight across open fields that are often remarkably smooth.

In a 250-mile journey one is unlikely to pass within sight of more than three or four permanently-inhabited localities. Though farming has been collectivized, a high proportion of Mongolia's herdsmen are still nomadic or semi-nomadic, only gradually being forced into closer association with settled community life.

Two Soviet Leaders Suffer Power Loss In Latest Shuffle

By VICTOR ZORZA
The Manchester Guardian

LONDON — The most spectacular of the leadership changes announced in Moscow — Anastas Mikoyan's retirement from the presidency — is also the least important. Mikoyan's request to be released from his post on the grounds of age and ill health may, for once, be accepted as genuine.

He is replaced as president of the Soviet Union by Nikolai Podgorny, who will presumably have to give up his post as party secretary, and will thereby suffer a loss of the kind of power that counts most in Russia — power in the party secretariat. Podgorny, in short, has been given a hefty kick upstairs.

The most important of the changes is the loss by Alexander Shelepin of the post of deputy prime minister, and his departure from the chairmanship of the party-state control committee. This, together with his other posts, had given him the potentially most powerful position in the Soviet leadership, which he could have used to promote his own widely rumored ambition to climb to the summit of power.

There is good reason to believe that it was the attempt to give effect to this ambition that brought about his demotion.

Shelepin will retain the post of party secretary. The official reason given for his departure from the other posts was that he would now be able to concentrate on his work in the secretariat, but the criticism of his previous work, though disguised, is so obvious that Shelepin will not recover easily from the present debacle.

Great Power

The committee of party-control had virtually unlimited powers to inquire into the work of any Soviet establishment, from a farm in a backward village to an important ministry in Moscow, and to secure the punishment, demotion and dismissal of officials it had found to be inefficient or dishonest.

It was the most powerful of all Soviet organizations other than the Communist party, and provided the perfect base for the building up of a position of political power.

The changes do not appear to be directly connected with the only major political dispute to have affected the Soviet leadership since the fall of Krushchev, between those who believed that more resources should be devoted to the military effort, and those who wanted to go all out to build up the civilian economy.

In that dispute Shelepin, at least so far as the public record goes, took a neutral position. Podgorny, however, was one of the first to declare himself in favor of increased consumer goods production, on the grounds that Russia's military requirements could be adequately met from existing industrial resources. In between the two extremes seems to have been reached among the Soviet leaders.

Stay In Party

Mikoyan's duties, though certainly arduous, have been mainly representative in character. He will probably retain his membership of the party presidium, the party's inner cabinet which meets several times a week, but his role in it would depend on the amount of energy at his disposal.

Podgorny, on the other hand, who is also a member of the party presidium, will be prevented from exerting his full resources of energy—which are considerable — by the time-consuming character of his new duties as president. Podgorny's nomination was put to the Supreme Soviet by Leonid Brezhnev, first party secretary, who formally recommended him for the new post as a prominent party leader and statesman. But Brezhnev, who had himself occupied the presidency at one time, will know that any danger that Podgorny, or for that matter, Shelepin, may have presented to his position, will be considerably lessened by the changes—lessened, but not altogether removed.

Small Encouragement for The Artist in Our House

By ART STOTT

AT our house we're not quite sure whether we're two years behind or three months ahead in our spring-cleaning. So we rationalize and explain to each other that we are redecorating.

Stott

Over the weekend we reached the stairwell. The ceiling there is a good 16 feet above the main floor—cathedral-like, what with the stained glass window and all. Pat, who is the long-sighted one, pointed way up and asked, "Is that moss up there?" I'm short-sighted, couldn't see more that a sort of dinginess aloft.

"It's pretty high," she said. "Maybe I'd better get that man in to do it."

That man had given her a quotation on painting the downstairs hall, the upstairs hall and the stairwell. For the price, I figured I'd be prepared to re-gild Captain George Vancouver on top of the Parliament Buildings, height or no height.

"Look," I told her. "I've got a bamboo ladder 15 feet long and a spruce ladder 10 feet. I'll place them against each wall, straddle my way up with a plank, lay it on the rungs and work from there."

★ ★ ★

"Last week," she said, "you bought flight insurance to cover your flip to Sandspit. Think you can get it extended for your aerial work here, or shall I see if I can rent one of those nets they rig under the man on the flying trapeze?"

"Nonsense," I told her. "It'll be simple." That was before I tried to get a 15-foot ladder indoors and up the stairwell. It can be done though. All that's necessary is to push it through a second-storey window on the other side of the house, line it up with a door leading directly to the well, and avoid driving it through the stained glass as you raise it. Perhaps the Workmen's Compensation Board wouldn't approve, but provided you can conquer a mild touch of vertigo, you're set.

If you've watched enough circus shows on TV it isn't too hard to mount your scaffold. Up there you enter a new world. It's the altitude, I guess. You feel freed from earthly concern. The effect is heady.

It occurred to me that a sort of modernistic Sistine chapel touch would be distinctive. I took my brush and my can of oyster white and described a relative oval, spotted in a couple of dots for eyes and almost overreached myself on a left ear. Then, with a few deft sweeps I painted a sailboat. I used to fancy myself on sailboats, making sure all the canvas appeared to billow out from the same wind.

On a one-plank platform, you haven't room to step back and judge your work, but from where I stood, it looked a bit futuristic—that is, as ceilings go on stairwells in private homes.

My contemplation was interrupted by a voice from below: "Halloo up there. What do you think you're doing?"

"Halloo down there," I shouted back. "I thought a few figures would add variety to the job."

★ ★ ★

"Look, Buster," said the ascending voice, "I've read 'The Agony and the Ecstasy.' I've seen some of Michelangelo's work. In fact I've seen some of the finest ceilings in Europe. This isn't Europe and you're not Mike. Just brush that paint on generously but not too strenuously, as it says in the directions printed on the can. Quit playing little boy with a paint brush just because you think I can't reach you."

"Look out, or you'll get dripped on," I told her. "Didn't you know there's a place for the artistic in everyday life? I was thinking of asking Colin to come up and view this work to see if it had any inherent merit. Maybe he'd put in a word to the Canada Council and we could go back to Europe to study."

"Of course, of course," she replied in that voice one uses to humor a child. "Go right to it. And if you fall off, don't worry. Your premiums are all paid up. I can get that man to finish the job."

No soul. So now we have a stairwell and ceiling evenly covered with oyster white, flat and uninteresting. Oh, well. The artist, I guess, must expect to be misunderstood.

Bilingual Ottawa Would Boost Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, meeting here for the last in a series of public hearings across the country, seems to be testing reactions to possible solutions for what they have called the crisis in French-English relations.

The 10 commissioners, questioning proposals Monday for the expansion of bilingualism, placed emphasis on possible public acceptance and practical value of the proposals.

When Ottawa lawyer John H. McDonald proposed a "truly bilingual" federal district government for Ottawa-Hull, commission co-chairman Davidson Dunton wondered whether local taxpayers would accept the change.

Commissioner Jean - Louis Gagnon asked whether it would not be simpler to broaden the powers of the national capital commission, a federal planning agency, to promote bilingualism. Mr. McDonald stood by his proposal.

When President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress condemned Quebec separatists, commission co-chairman Andre Laurendeau asked whether the CLC would object to giving Quebec a special status within confederation.

Mr. Jodoin said the CLC had taken no stand yet on this issue.

ASKS CLC STAND

Mr. Laurendeau then asked whether the CLC would oppose regional economic planning. Mr. Jodoin said the labor body had no objection to provincial economic councils as lng as they and the Economic Council of Canada co-ordinated efforts.

When the Canadian Association of French-Language Educationists called for French schools across the country, commissioner Paul Lacoste asked whether it would be realistic to deal in the same way with concentrations of French-Canadians outside Quebec and with other French - Canadians scattered over a large area.

Adelard Savoie of Moncton, association president, said French should be recognized everywhere in Canada as an official language, but this would not prevent differing applications of the principle.

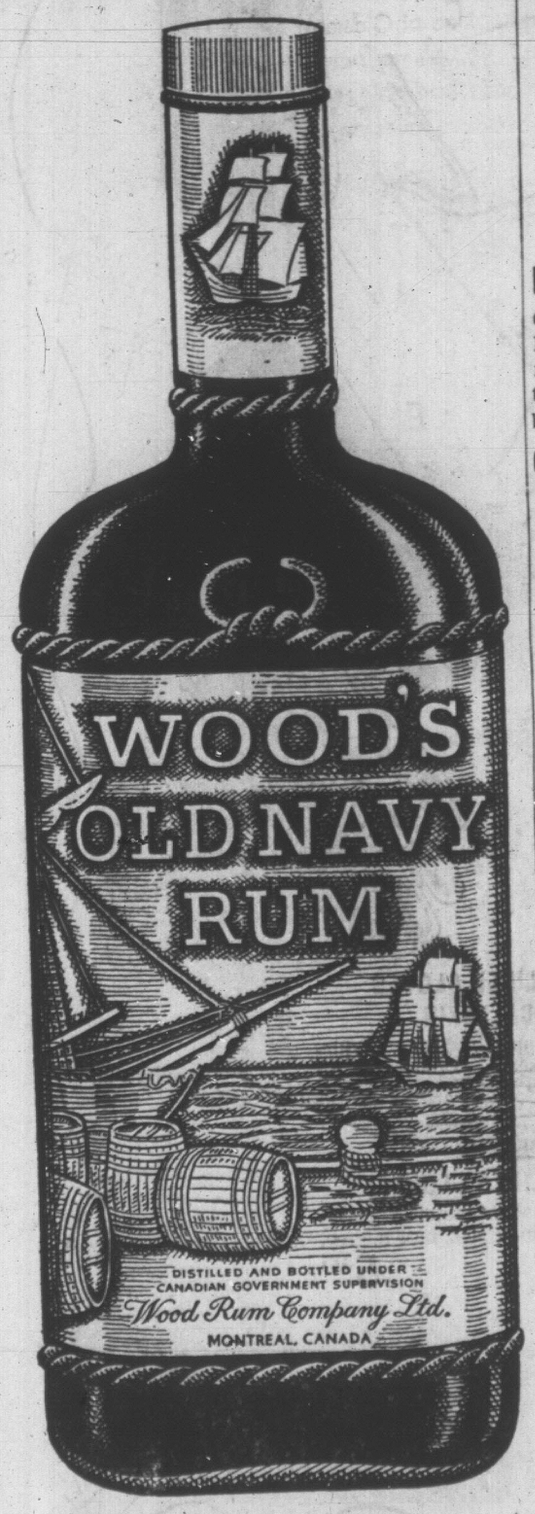

Mr. Laurendeau asked whether the group's recommendation for completely bilingual civil service and armed forces was not a utopia. Wouldn't it be more practical to set up more French-Canadian units like the Royal 22nd Regiment?

Mr. Savoie replied he would favor more French - language units, but he felt English-language units also should have some bilingual officers to assist French-Canadian recruits who spoke little English.

FEWER MAKE PLEAS

'WE HAVE EVERYTHING WE NEED'

Youngsters Decline Gifts

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four independent youngsters who fled an unhappy home life in Montreal have declined hundreds of Christmas gifts with a polite but firm no.

The four, Maria Balent, 17; sisters Malica, 14, and Draga, 9, and brother Andre, 13, fled from their Montreal home last August and were discovered living here last week.

Hundreds of offers of Christmas gifts followed newspaper reports of their new life here.

"Thank you very much," said Maria. "But please give the gifts to the people in Vancouver who need it.

"We have everything we need —what we haven't got we will buy as we earn money."

Donations of money from the public will go into an education fund for the four Balent children. The fund is administered by the Catholic Children's Aid Society.

Maria also turned down dozens of invitations for the quartet to spend Christmas Day with other families.

"Thank you, but we want to have our Christmas alone," she said. "We are very happy with our plans."

Maria told reporters they left their Montreal home because of parental quarrelling.

Maria, who has assumed the role of "mother" to the other three, works as a nurse's aid. Two of the others deliver newspapers. Their total income is about $240 monthly, of which $90 goes for rent.

They live in a one-bedroom basement suite.

PAY CASH ON BARREL

About two-thirds of the 620,000 Swedish households with home-freezing units bought them outright for cash.

A-BLAST DAMAGES PAID

AGANA, Guam (AP)—A total of $950,000 in damages is to be paid to 86 residents of Rongelap atoll in the Marshall Islands who were exposed to radiation during a United States atomic bomb test at Bikini in March, 1954. Government sources said Sunday the payment is expected within the next few weeks.

Sub Sailors Rewarding Yard Men

HMC Dockyard personnel will get a pat on the back from the crew of the RCN submarine HMCS Grilse Saturday.

They will be feted in an "appreciation smoker" in the Fleet Club of HMCS Naden.

"It's just something to show our appreciation for all the work the dockyard people have done in our sub," said Lieut.-Cmdr. John Rodocanachi.

Grilse's refit started last October and is expected to be completed this week.

Her next operational assignment will see her sailing with three Pacific command warships for three and a half months to the Caribbean.

There, they will meet with Atlantic command units and participate in Exercise Maple Spring.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Mining Companies Make Big Pitch

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Profiting more than a little from the Pyramid-Dynasty booms are commercial job printers in Vancouver.

Hume

Since the market started to run wild for both companies a steady flow of map-mail has been crossing business desks around the province to show how close other companies are to the main strikes.

Monday was one of the busiest days to date. The morning mail sack produced three two-color maps and two black and white efforts to woo speculators.

Utica was responsible for two. Its directors were anxious to show where the 321 Utica claims are in the Pine Point area. (They're west of the Buffalo River and run almost to the bank of the Sandy River).

Take Closer Look

The second Utica effort showed three groups of claims in the Yukon, each one flanking a Dynasty block. With this map came the announcement that Silver Standard, Copper Ridge and Utica had formed a new private company "Tay River Mines Ltd. "to take a closer look at the now frozen property."

Mid-West Mines Ltd. and Ventures Mining Company Ltd. were also to the fore with a blue and pink effort revealing their claims in the Yukon. All three groups are right alongside Dynasty blocks.

The two black and white efforts, possibly because they are far away from the glamor sisters Dynasty and Pyramid, follow a similar tack.

New Indian Mines Ltd. and Cananda Explorations proudly point to their claims due south of the holdings of Columbia River Mines Ltd. near Golden.

Columbia, it will be remembered, took off so fast a few days ago that the brake had to be applied severely.

Same Pattern

The fifth map in the morning mail came from Dolly Varden Mines Ltd., located in the Alice Arm area. The pattern is the same. After describing the present situation of the company the inside pages of the folder lists a raft of other prosperous companies in the general area.

Now there is nothing wrong with this. Indeed companies with claims or projects in the vicinity of the big strikes would be foolish not to tell their shareholders and the general public that things were looking good.

On the other hand the speculator should not be fooled by the company that, after a brief reference to its own name and claims, hammers away at the rich deposits found by Pine Point Mines, Pyramid or Dynasty.

Consolidated Mining and Smelting owns the richest claims in the Pine Point area.

Pyramid, a way-behind second at present, appears to have hit some good ore but hardly enough to warrant mortgaging the house for the big gamble.

Possibly others in the Pine Point area will hit it richer than Pyramid or even CM and S. But as yet they have not, and that's the point we're trying to make.

The same story is true of the Yukon where Dynasty has hit it big touching off the scramble to rub shoulders with the lucky name.

And, to a lesser degree, it's the same story again near Golden.

While wishing good fortune to all those holding claims near the rich boys and all those speculators who have plunged, we should remember that the phrase always was and still is "speculative stock."

It's something like living next door to a millionaire.

The prestige is wonderful and his wealth will no doubt increase your property value. But it won't make you a millionaire. That takes more than neighborliness. Like hard work, a couple of good breaks and a little luck.

JAPANESE REORGANIZE CAR COMPANY

TORONTO (CP)—A new corporate structure was outlined today for Canadian Motor Industries Ltd., a private company set up a year ago to sell and eventually assemble Japanese cars in Canada.

The change will see two Japanese groups assume control from Clairtone Sound Corp., the announcement of the reorganization said. It added the change is aimed at injecting new financing into the company.

The Japanese groups are Mitsui and Co. Canada Ltd. and Japanese Auto Firms, Toyota and Isuzu. CMI has been distributing cars of these two firms for a year.

Trading Opens In Montreal's New Exchange

MONTREAL (CP) — Brokers on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges Monday began trading in their new carpeted, mechanized headquarters at Place Victoria in downtown Montreal.

Officials said trading proceeded normally "in spite of a holiday atmosphere everywhere on the floor."

The moment was described as "one of relief" by many traders. Numerous postponements of the move from the old exchange six blocks away were made since the new headquarters in the skyscraper complex were opened officially Oct. 21.

Completion of the move was delayed by difficulties in setting up a computer system to tabulate transactions automatically.

Officials said the troubles still have not been overcome and the old "manual" system still is being used.

Crash Drive For Workers

OTTAWA (CP)—A crash program this winter to train workers to help ease the critical labor shortage expected in the construction industry next spring is being studied here by a new committee set up to tackle the problem.

Labor Minister MacEachen said there is an urgent need for such a program "if the industry is not to face a shortage of productive workers next summer."

During the height of the 1965 construction boom dozens of firms, particularly in southern Ontario and the Montreal area, were unable to hire enough skilled workers. Welders, electricians, plumbers, carpenters and machine operators were all in short supply.

The nine-man committee includes representatives of the Canadian Labor Congress, the Canadian Construction Association, the Confederation of National Trade Unions, the Home Builders Association, the industrial contractors association and provincial governments.

Trade Balance Better

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's overseas trade balance improved by £5,000,000 ($15,000,000) in November, it was announced today.

Figures issued by the Board of Trade disclosed exports and re-exports of £426,000,000 ($1,278,000,000), an increase of £17,000,000 ($51,000,000). Imports totaled £496,000,000 ($1,488,000,000), an increase of £12,000,000 ($36,000,000).

The adverse balance of visible trade—the difference between receipts from exports and payments for imports—dropped from £75,000,000 ($225,000,000) in October to £70,000,000 ($210,000,000) last month.

On a balance-of-payments basis—which takes into account invisible exports such as shipping and insurance receipts, income from tourism and income earned on overseas investments—the trade gap was reduced during the month.

It fell from £22,000,000 ($66,000,000) in October to £17,000,000 ($51,000,000) in November.

'Share Bought Over Market Price'

TORONTO (CP)—The preliminary hearing of John Campbell, former director of the Ontario Securities Commission, on two charges of breach of trust by a public officer opened Monday with a stock promoter telling of buying stock owned by Mr. Campbell's wife at 10 cents a share over the market price. David Winchell, president of Winchell Corp. Ltd., a firm which deals in real estate and securities, said he bought 5,000 shares of Chesterville Mines Ltd. for $1,637 last May 15—this is about 32⅓ cents a share. Later evidence from Lester Lower, assistant-secretary at the Toronto Stock Exchange, showed the shares sold on the exchange at a high of 22 cents and a low of 20 cents May 14 and 15, 1964.

Mr. Winchell said he bought the stock because he was asked to do so by his stockbroker, Harry Richardson a partner in the firm of Tom and Barnt. James Goad, partner in J. L. Goad and Co., said Mr. Campbell's wife opened an account at his company in April, 1964. The account was identified only as 707.

KNEW CAMPBELL

Mr. Goad, who said he had known Campbell about 25 years, said Mrs. Campbell bought 2,500 shares of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., 2,000 White Star Copper and 5,000 Chesterville last April.

May 15 the shares were delivered to the offices of Tom and Barnt in exchange for payment. The transfer, he said, was on the instruction of Mrs. Campbell. In exchange for the shares J. L. Goad received a cheque for $5,685.

Arthur Barnt of Tom and Barnt said $4,074.50 was charged against an account in the name of Mrs. B. Campbell and $1,637.50 was charged against Winchell Corp. Ltd.

150 Mothers In Food Line ...HERE

The Free Food Stall is again short of supplies for helping needy Victoria families this month.

Things are "looking pretty glum," said stall convener Mrs. E. E. Harper today, surveying empty cupboards at her headquarters.

"On Saturday there will be 150 mothers with an average of four children each, waiting in line to receive their monthly hampers of food," said Mrs. Harper.

What will she give them?

Contributions of any kind of food from Victorians will be welcomed at the stall.

ELKS HELP

Donations will be picked up by the Elks (call 658-8177) or may be delivered to Mrs. Harper at 5695 Pat Bay Highway.

Donors are asked not to bother with Christmas treats for the stall, as the "premises are too small," said Mrs. Harper.

"Just good, everyday food," is wanted, she added.

Families receiving the food are all welfare cases.

Spirit of Christmas Postponed by Exams

Although the Christmas season is approaching, there's no visions of sugar plums dancing in the heads of service cadets these days.

Cadets of Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, and HMCS Venture are thinking only of Christmas exams.

Until Friday, that is.

That's when their first half-year of training winds up with Christmas dances.

"Home for Christmas" is the theme of the phase one graduation ball for the Venture cadets.

Of the 58 who attained this standard, 36 will return in January to resume naval training.

The remainder will take up flying duties at RCAF Station, Centralia, Ont.

Earlier activities Friday include canoe races, boat pulling and a graduation ceremony.

Royal Roads cadets will have their Christmas dinner at noon, Thursday.

The formal dance will be held the next evening with music by HMCS Naden Band.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Jungle Man Suffering Memory Loss

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI) — Farmhand Frederick Wroe, believed dead after he disappeared 2½ years ago, was recovering in Wanganui hospital today after being found in the heart of a dense jungle, suffering from loss of memory.

Since Wroe, 62, disappeared on Aug. 12, 1963, he lived on suckling pigs, possums, deer and eels caught with his bare hands, and used a hollow log as his home.

Nephews, hearing reports of a strange man being seen in the bush, renewed their long-abandoned search and eventually discovered Wroe, dressed only in a robe and gumboots, an bearded down to his waist.

Wroe told newsmen from his hospital bed he left his suburban Wanganui home to walk into the city and "some men attacked me and bashed me over the head."

"The next thing I can remember, I was in dense bush with little (clothing) on. I didn't know the time of day, day of week or how many years I managed to survive."

Wroe said he used a hollow log to sleep in but occasionally made his home in deserted huts in the jungle.

He said his nephews gave him a beer to celebrate his return . . . "but it tasted like dirty street water."

ESU Elects Branch President

Prof. George Brand was re-elected president of the Victoria branch, English Speaking Union of the Commonwealth, at a directors's meeting recently.

J. G. Chope and J. J. Timmis were elected vice-presidents; Mrs. J. R. Howrad, corresponding secretary; Miss Lovell Crawford, assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. S. Grove, recording secretary and C. H. Ker-Cooper, treasurer.

Messages of appreciation were received from educational and library authorities in the Fiji Islands for 2,000 books shipped there recently by the Victoria branch.

This is part of an ESU plan to send literature to needy countries throughout the Commonwealth. Victoria members have donated more than 7,000 books and further shipments are underway.

The Victoria effort is sponsored by a committee of three comprising Mrs. T. G. Keir, convener, Miss Marjorie Holmes and Mrs. W. F. Jermy.

The Victoria branch decided to continue its policy of inviting distinguished speakers to address branch meetnigs.

It was announced that, although the Victoria branch is not directly sponsoring charter flights to Britain, flights operated by other Canadian branches are available to Victoria members.

PENSION PROBLEM

Worker or Free Agent, Special Body to Rule

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—That thin line between the employed and the self-employed is going to become more distinct when the Canada Pension Plan comes into force Jan. 1.

Starting Jan. 1, each employee earning at least $600 a year must contribute 1.8 per cent of his pensionable income to the plan. This is matched by his employer. The self-employed contribute the entire 3.6 per cent.

So, on the face of it, the employee has something to gain by being employed, and the company would obviously enjoy an advantage by not being an employer.

This is where the difficulties arise. Is a salesman who works strictly on commission an employee of the firm whose goods he sells? How about the writer who sells all his material to one outlet? Or the actress who is under contract to one production company?

BOARDS WILL DECIDE

The revenue department, responsible for collecting the pension contributions, has established review boards in every district tax office to deal with these and similar problems.

Already, an organization of insurance salesmen — and the companies they sell for — has asked for a ruling on whether the salesmen are employees or self-employed. In this case, the department rules them employees.

"It's a question of the degree of control exercised by the employers," said a department official.

For example, he said, a commission salesman whose hours are controlled by the firm or whose other potential income is restricted by the company could be ruled an employee. Another salesman with unrestricted movements could be considered self-employed.

In most cases the problem is likely to be settled by the firms and individuals involved.

MAY BE TEMPTED

Some officials say it's possible a company might be tempted to have employees declared free-lancers, but they doubt whether the potential rewards are great enough to encourage widespread upheavals in this respect.

And, while individuals would save 1.8 per cent of their incomes by being classed as employees, they would also lose some tax advantages enjoyed by free-lancers.

Under the plan, some housewives find they are employers —provided they employ someone, such as a cleaning woman, and pay her more than $11.54 a week.

Such a housewife will have to deduct 1.8 per cent of the cleaning woman's salary, contribute another 1.8 herself, and send the combined 3.6 per cent to the revenue department.

The $11.54 works out to $600 a year—the point at which wage earners enter the Canada Pension Plan. If the cleaning woman earns $11.50, no contribution is necessary and no pension is received.

POSES A PROBLEM

There is another interesting potential problem. Say a cleaning woman is employed by four housewives in one year. Three of the housewives pay salaries of $15 a week and the fourth pays $10. This means that the first three must make contributions, matched by the woman, but the fourth case no one pays into the plan.

Yet when the yearly income is added up, the $10 weekly wage is included. This would leave the pension plan contribution at less than 3.6 per cent of total pensionable income.

This problem has been minimized by the department. It will allow the employee to let the matter rest, or else she could contribute the 3.6 per cent herself on the $10 weekly earnings.

This works both ways, of course. The employer gets nothing back if he pays someone $100 a week for five weeks, deducts 1.8 per cent for pension, and then the employee quits for the rest of the year and is not eligible for the pension plan.

Amid all the complexities of the plan there is no machinery for making refunds to employers, although in some cases employees can get money back.

HOUSEKEEPER RULE SCORED

TORONTO (CP) — "Unfair" and a "nuisance" were two often - expressed reactions by housewives Monday who learned they will have to contribute to the Canada Pension Plan for domestic help earning more than $11.54 a week.

Others questioned showed a reluctance to be quoted by name, indicating they would try to avoid deducting 1.8 per cent from employees' wages and contributing 1.8 per cent to employees' pensions.

One business woman who employs a cleaning woman for three half-days a week for $15 said she plans to have her brother act as the employer for one of those half days.

A suburban North York housewife who spends about $20 a week on babysitters expects she will spread the work among several persons.

Mrs. Arthur Jones, a speech therapist and mother of three children, said most housekeepers will not want to contribute to the plan—particularly if they don't declare their earnings on income tax forms.

CALLS SCHEME 'MEAN'

Nazla Dane, president of a business and professional women's association, termed the situation "rather a mean little thing of the government.

"They will have to pay civil servants to spot check to make sure women employers are sending in the contributions and this extra work will cost more than they will get in revenue."

Grace Nicholls, also a member of business and professional women's association, said household employees should be independent contractors and should pay their own contributions in full.

Mrs. Francis Burger, president of the Association for Women Electors, said most domestic workers don't want to contribute to the plan. "They aren't far-sighted enough," she said.

She also said domestic help should be tax-deductible.

Everyone Holds Grand Slam

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — How's this for a bridge game oddity — four players each drawing a complete suit in a deal?

It happened at the home here of Mrs. J. A. Fishcher. Four women, Mrs. W. P. Clement, who dealt; Mrs. A. N. MacTavish, Mrs. C. W. Tweed, all of Waterloo, and Mrs. J. R. Dier, of Kitchener, were the players at a luncheon bridge.

Mrs. Clement opened with two diamonds. Mrs. MacTavish, holding 13 clubs, passed. Mrs. Tweed bid seven hearts. Mrs. Dier bid, and automatically made, a grand slam with seven spades.

Donald MacTavish, an actuary and son of Mrs. MacTavish, said he worked out the odds on this kind of bridge shuffle by computer at about one chance in 8,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,.

Welcome Planned For Bishop

A civic, provincial and religious welcome awaits Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, on his return to Victoria from Rome Sunday evening, Dec. 19.

Attending the ceremony in St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral will be representatives of most city churches, the B.C. government and Mayor-elect Alfred Toone of Victoria.

The ceremony will begin at 7:30 p.m. when the 42-year-old bishop enters the old oaken doors of the cathedral and walks down the centre aisle to the altar

He will take his place at the right of the altar while addresses of welcome are read.

The traditional evening mass of the Roman Catholic Church will then be celebrated.

Three years ago on Dec. 20, 1962—Bishop De Roo was installed in St. Andrew's Cathedral as head of the Roman Catholic Church for Victoria and Vancouver Island.

He came here from Rome where the late Pope John gave him a symbolical ring and said "This is our Benjamin!"

VISITS ROME

Bishop De Roo visited Rome after being consecrated bishop in the cathedral of St. Boniface, Manitoba. He attended the first session of the ecumenical council, initiated by Pope John, and has since attended the second, third and fourth sessions.

The fourth session of the Vatican Council, just concluded, is the last of the present series.

"But it could be resumed any time if circumstances warranted," said Monsignor Michael O'Connell, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese of Victoria.

Hearings Open On Yale Voting

MERRITT (CP)—The British Columbia Supreme Court sat here for the first time Monday, listening to a petition asking the 1963 provincial election result in Yale constituency be upset.

The petition, signed by four voters, was brought by B. W. F. McLoughlin of Vancouver on behalf of Irvine Corbett.

Mr. Corbett, Social Credit MLA in the riding for years, won the June election by four votes, but lost it by six votes in a judicial recount requested by the New Democratic Party's William Hartley.

Most of the day's hearing before Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan was devoted to testimony by 1963 electoral officials for the constituency.

Mr. Hartley is represented at the hearing, expected to last until Wednesday, by Gordon Dowding of Burnaby, also an NDP MLA.

The petition alleges voting irregularities, citing uncounted votes, unregistered voters and more voters than the number registered.

It also alleges seven persons had their lawful ballots rejected because a required affidavit went unsigned and more than 10 persons, who did not have residence qualifications, voted illegally.

Mr. McLoughlin said these errors could affect a majority of six, and are sufficient to have the election set aside, forcing a byelection.

S. A. Clark, deputy chief electoral officer for the province testified one lawful ballot was "apparently not counted."

He said the ballot, signed by a voter and the deputy returning officer in Chilliwack, should have been counted in the Yale constituency but was left in a sealed envelope.

Mr. Clark also said one person, not on the voters list in Quilchena, voted there and in the Lower Nicola polling division, 209 votes were counted, although only 203 persons were registered.

T. Dobson, registrar of voters for Yale, agreed, on cross-examination by Mr. Dowding, "it is much harder to get off the voters list than on it."

"Anyone who doesn't vote in an election, is sent a notice following the election. If it is returned as undeliverable by the post office, then his name is struck from the list."

Mrs. Helen Craigen, a deputy returning officer for Silver Creek polling division during the 1963 election, said a voter not on the list cast a ballot, which was inserted in the ballot box, instead of going into an envelope for delivery to the proper poll.

The vote counted in the Yale election, she said.

Mrs. Craigen also testified she told a couple they were to vote in Dewdney, "but they voted in Silver Creek, anyway."

In reply to a question from Mr. Dowding, she agreed that quite a few persons in the Silver Creek area voted in that polling division "because it was the closest to their home."

View Royal Goes to Polls On Incorporation Saturday

View Royal ratepayers groups this week are geared to battle for and against the district becoming a town.

The incorporation question will be put to a vote Saturday, bringing to a climax a controversial issue hanging over the heads of the community since the start of the year.

But the issue will be strongly debated before residents go to the polls. First debate is at Strawberry Vale Community Hall at 8 p.m. today.

And on Wednesday the question will again be aired at a View Royal Community Hall ratepayers meeting, starting at 8 p.m.

Saturday's plebiscite will mark the second time ratepayers have voted on incorporation within the last decade.

In 1959, they flatly turned down incorporation as a village, but the question arose again this year when residents in an area of View Royal (Panhandle) sought amalgamation with Esquimalt.

LAUNCH STUDIES

The move spurred the View Royal Ratepayers' Association to launch studies on the merits of incorporating as a town or amalgamating with the neighboring municipality.

In the end the association settled in favor of a town status.

Trustees of the fire district were subsequently urged to press the government for a vote on incorporation. The plebiscite was granted by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

In a brief, the association showed that View Royal could operate as a town on a $125,000 budget.

Revenues would come from general taxation (10 mills) amounting to $48,000; per capita grant, $74,800; business licences, $900; and utilities, $1,500.

The budget would not only pay the cost for administration, but garbage collection and library services as well, leaving the town with a surplus of $30,450.

Opponents of the proposal back a report on amalgamation prepared by B. C. Bracewell, former deputy minister of municipal affairs.

The study, requested by Esquimalt council and View Royal ratepayers, was released in November.

Mr. Bracewell's main conclusion is that it would be uneconomical in the long run for View Royal to incorporate in view of the heavy program of capital expenditures with which it is faced.

The expenditures while not obvious now, he points out, would become apparent in the future.

He suggested a system in the View Royal area which would assure property-owners that they would obtain such works as desired upon their undertaking to pay the cost and would not be required to contribute to expenditures elsewhere in Esquimalt.

That is, capital works would be carried out in the district only when requested by property-owners.

The report was not endorsed by the ratepayers association. It supplemented the town-status proposal in its stead.

Esquimalt took no action on the report in view of View Royal's action.

The report is mainly supported by residents in the Panhandle, an area bounded by Esquimalt, and running to the bridge on Four-Mile Hill.

Again Ask for Help

VANCOUVER (CP) — Officials of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union (CLC) said Monday they will ask provincial conciliation officer Reg Clements to intervene again in contract negotiations with British-American Oil Co. The officer's assistance would help speed up talks aimed at settling a strike against B-A in British Columbia, an official said.

LAD SHOOTS BROTHER, THOUGHT GUN WAS TOY

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A five-year-old boy killed his younger brother Monday with a gun he thought was the toy pistol Santa Claus was going to give him for Christmas.

Police said Bobby Mebans found a fully loaded 38-calibre revolver in a bureau drawer in his parents' bedroom while he and his three-year-old brother, Warren, were playing hide and seek.

Bobby took the gun from the drawer, turned and saw his brother standing nearby. Police said he raised the weapon in both hands and pulled the trigger.

The bullet struck Warren in the chest, emerged from his back and became embedded in the bedroom floor. Warren was pronounced dead at Philadelphia General Hospital.

Farmers Go Broke Unless Aid Given

GRAND FORKS (CP) — The plight of three farmers whose cows are contaminated by a pesticide will be placed before Maurice Sauve, acting federal agriculture minister, today.

Charles Walls, manager of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, said Monday the Canadian federation will ask the minister for assistance for the farmers, two of whom have been struck for the second time in a year.

British Columbia agriculture officials in this community 20 miles west of Trail said the farmers will be broke if they do not receive assistance soon.

They are Pete deHaan, John Schiller and Rick deVries. Milk from their cows was banned for human consumption two weeks ago because of contamination from a pesticide normally used for potatoes.

Last March Mr. deVries and Lee Hoodle and Mr. deHaan were struck by the same contamination. The federal and provincial governments bought their animals. It was thought then the contamination came from the large amount of potatoes fed the animals.

Provincial agricultural spokesmen here said it is not known where the new contamination comes from.

Saanich Wants Hearing Before High-Rise Vote

The controversial question of high-rise apartments in Cadboro Bay will go before a public hearing in Saanich next month.

The step was taken after an unsuccessful move Monday night to have council approve the report of the Advisory Planning Commission which recommended rejection of a high-rise rezoning application.

The commission said high-rises on a 14-acre property off Haro Road near the university isn't considered the best land use at the present time.

The application, similar to one that failed two years ago, was made by Sherwood Oaks Estate and Bay Meadows Estates. Principals are lawyer Robert Price and realtor Byron Price.

More than 50 persons attended the council meeting, the first full business session in the new chamber at the Swan Lake municipal hall. The four new council members elected Saturday also were present.

VOTE AGAINST

Coun. William Campbell's motion to reject the application was supported by Coun. Leslie Passmore and Coun. Douglas Crosby, but it failed when Reeve Hugh Curtis, Coun. Edward Lum and Coun. Gregory Cook voted against. They favored a public hearing first.

Five letters protesting high-rises were read to the meeting, including one from the local branch of the Community Planning Association.

The letters said granting the application will set a precedent in a single-family dwelling area, lower property values, not produce additional taxes because new services will be needed and because the university may want the land for future expansion.

Coun. Passmore said university expansion is "so great and so sudden" the area should be reserved for its needs.

But Coun. Cook said Uvic was designed as a "walking campus" all sections within easy reach of each other, that Uvic has room for expansion on the present campus and that objectors "must prove the (high-rise) development is incompatible (with the area)."

A motion from Coun. Cook to call a public hearing was carried with Coun. Campbell dissenting.

Because the hearing—and the decision—will be taken in the new year, there will be a radically different council to decide the issue.

Couns. Cook and Crosby did not seek re-election and their terms expire at the end of this month.

Four new faces will be on council next month — Digby Kier, Mrs. Edith Gunning, William Noel and Alan Newberry. They join Reeve Curtis and Couns. Harold Todd, Passmore, Campbell and Lum in an expanded council.

But at an all-candidates meeting last week, the four newcomers—and Reeve Curtis and Coun. Campbell—said they are opposed to high-rise apartments in Cadboro Bay.

Sky Diver Hurt

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (AP) — A Sydney sky-diver escaped death Sunday after his main parachute was torn Sunday. He suffered two broken legs. Robert Hack, 20, jumping from 10,000 feet opened his chute at 7,500 feet but two other sky-divers hurled through it. He released his reserve chute at 1,000 feet but it became tangled in the first and was in violent spin when he hit the ground.

BLADES CERTAIN TO WORK . . .

'Cos' Rates Lynn 'True Game Strategist'

. . . ON VICTORIA'S DEFENCE

By ERNIE FEDORUK

They were talking behind Lynn Patrick's back the other day, and one of the poignant observations about the Los Angeles Blades' coach was tendered by Murray Costello.

"Cos" served his time in the National Hockey League with Detroit Red Wings and Boston, the Bruins then being coached by the aforementioned Patrick.

Today Costello earns his bread and water by compiling facts and figures for the Western Hockey League.

What the publicist had to say about Patrick was offered as a point of fact, and not propaganda.

"Lynn," declared Costello, "is the only coach I ever played for whom I consider a true game strategist.

"He would come into the dressing room after a period and point out that the other team was doing this, or failing to do that. 'There is their weakness,' Lynn would say, 'and we'll work on that.'

"If the players did what they were supposed to do, Lynn's strategy invariably produced results."

Patrick sics his Blades onto Victoria Maple Leafs tonight, but the Los Angeles strategy at Memorial Arena will be obvious . . .

". . . Work on Victoria's defence."

The once-mighty (5) Victoria defensive corps will be down to three regulars tonight. Claude Labrosse was loaned to Rochester Americans last week and heart-breaking news came Monday to take Aut Erickson out of Victoria's line-up.

Erickson's father-in-law was killed in an automobile accident at the weekend. Other members of the family were in critical condition and the Ericksons left for Alberta early Monday.

It's not known when Erickson will return, and it is quite possible he will miss Leafs' games in San Francisco on Friday and Saturday.

Victoria coach Frank Mario plans to shift centre John Sleaver back on defence to work with regulars Bill Shvetz, Sandy and Fred Hucul.

Even with Sleaver on defence, Mario still has Milan Marcetta, Larry Keenan and rookie Dave Parenteau available for duty as centres.

Game time is 8:15.

ICE CHIPS: Victoria defenceman Sandy Hucul will play his 700th league game in San Francisco Saturday night. . . . Ample evidence as to why Victoria is solidly entrenched in first may be supplied by a league statistic that shows Leafs shoot more than any other team in the league. . . . They've peppered 790 shots at rival goalies in 23 games, or an average of 34.4 per game. . . And a milestone of a dubious nature is just around the corner for Shvetz. . . . He has accumulated 982 minutes in penalties in 521 league games and "needs" only eight minutes more in order to top the 1,000 mark. . .

Ed Litzenberger left Victoria Monday night for his assignment in Rochester. . . "Victoria fans really made me feel at home," was one of Litz's parting shots. . . While the fans will miss Litz's big-league style on the ice, the Leafs will miss him most in the dressing room . . . His quips and general attitude made him a big-leaguer off the ice as well. . . .

There's no question that Blades have strengthened since their last appearance at Memorial Arena. . . Patrick's biggest acquisition was veteran winger Jerry Toppazzini. . . Defenceman Howie Young is also back in the line-up, and Bernie Dechamps was recently acquired from Providence. . .

LOOKS AT SPORTS

If there is poetic justice anywhere, Edward Charles John Litzenberger had to have the sort of valedictory home performance he gave Saturday. On the ice and off, one word fits him. The word is eloquent.

ED LITZENBERGER

Victoria Maple Leafs and Hershey Bears were locked in mortal combat at Memorial Arena Saturday night when the Litz line (Dick Lamoureux and Steve Witiuk and No. 19) climbed over the woodwork.

In the first period the Leafs had Hershey choking on their chocolate bars, gasping at the bottom of a 3-0 disadvantage.

But the Bears had seemingly taken on energy in the intermission, probably sucking sections of that 10-pound bar maestro Frank Mathers carries with him. Busy though not necessarily superb they had kept coming. Now the Leafs' majority had been cut to one goal and was in imminent danger of becoming extinct.

On a foray that looked more haphazard than designed, Lamoureux drove the puck. In the Hershey goal, Mons. Claude Dufour, who talks almost as well as he plays, kicked it to the corner.

Lamoureux fought off Hershey defenders and the rubber came out to Litzenberger. He had been hand-wrestling a Bear defenceman over territorial rights and had only one hand on his stick.

Proceeds With Reckless Forethought

Some people in similar situations would have adjusted their underwear, checked their laces and contemplated before shooting. Litz just flicked his wrist and whee!

After that it wouldn't have made any difference if the Hersheys fuelled up with bars soaked in 120-proof. They were hors de combat, finis, kaput.

It was not a classic goal in the strict sense. But it was the turning point of the contest. It left Litz with seven goals and 17 assists before leaving for Rochester.

A capable replacement for the convalescing Larry Keenan?

"Litzenberger," says E. Fedoruk of our shoppe, "plays hockey like a chess master. Every move he makes has a purpose."

Litz is only fifth among Leaf artillerymen. He is by no means the fastest skater on the club. And he can hardly be considered rugged in the mold of Aut Erickson.

His 193 pounds, distributed casually over a six-three frame, give him the appearance of a hat-rack with arms. It is worth while noting that while several people in the Western League tested him, few demanded an encore.

A Rainy, Freezing Night In Chicago

The remarkable aspect of Litzenberger ("I often kid my father and mother about our surname—to make up for it they gave me three Christian names") is not that he seldom makes a mistake but that he is playing at all.

Six years ago almost to the day, Edward Litzenberger and his wife were driving home after a game in Chicago.

Litz was 27, a bright gem in the Chicago Black Hawks' galaxy, perhaps not yet at his peak. In the previous three seasons he had scored 33 goals, 32 and 32.

"After the game this night, we had something to eat with friends from Regina. We were on our way home. My wife was driving; it was raining and freezing.

"As we passed under a viaduct the car spun. It struck an abutment on my side, careened and went backwards down the road. The impact knocked my wife out of the car. They found me in the back seat."

What they found you could put in a basket. Brain concussion. Internal bleeding of the kidneys and lower torso. Extreme shock.

For six days while they fought to save him, they couldn't tell him the worst because he couldn't hear it. His wife had died instantly.

They Didn't Know What He Would Be

"They didn't know for a while," Eddie Litzenberger said Monday, clenching and unclenching his hands, "whether I was going to be two years old or 12 or 14 when I came out of it. I was . . . a mess."

He tells it directly, honestly, without self-glorification. Other people have it worse and he knows it.

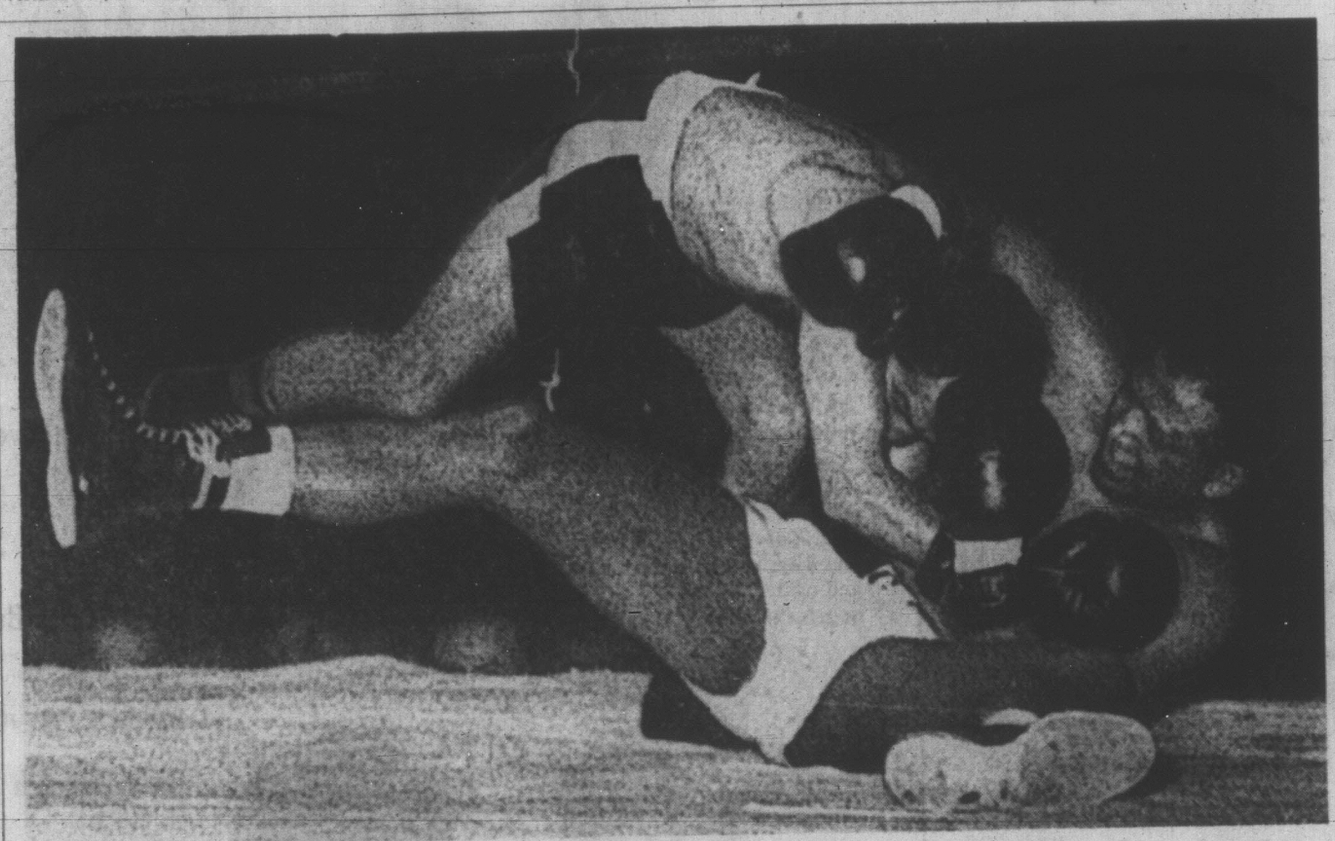

"Yes," he said, in answer to a question, "I must be honest and admit I'm not the same hockey player I used to be. It has taken something from me.

"I don't know whether it is my attitude toward the game or the little talent I used to have. I've lost some of my moves. But, really, I consider myself fortunate."

Then he excused himself. He was "almost packed," ready to fly home to Toronto, his wife and three children. He has seen them three days in the last three months.

How old are the children?

"We have a boy eight, a girl three and a boy two," he said. Then laughing . . . "And from what my wife tells me, if they don't get any better in a hurry they may not get much older."

GENE KINISKI WOULD LIKE THE FORM

Matte the Man For Poor Colts

BALTIMORE (AP) — Tom Matte, who hasn't played a full game at quarterback since his collegiate days at Ohio State in 1960, will direct the Baltimore Colts in their do-or-die battle against Los Angeles Rams Saturday.

Matte, a halfback during five National Football League seasons, takes over as Baltimore's No. 1 quarterback following disabling injuries to John Unitas and Gary Cuozzo.

Unitas underwent surgery for a damaged knee Dec. 5, and Cuozzo was operated on Monday to repair a shoulder separation suffered in Sunday's game against the Green Bay Packers.

By losing 42-77 to the Packers, Baltimore tumbled out of the Western Division lead and now trails Green Bay by one-half game.

CAN CLINCH TITLE

The Packers can clinch the title on this final week of the season by whipping San Francisco Sunday. To retain their championship hopes, the Colts must win behind an inexperienced quarterback.

Matte was at quarterback for seven plays Sunday while Cuozzo was being treated with a pain-killing drug before returning to action.

Coach Don Shula said he would activate George Haffner, the taxi squad quarterback from McNeese State, as a back-up for Matte in the Rams' game. Haffner has no NFL experience although he has practiced with the Colts all season.

Linebacker Steve Stonebreaker broke his nose in the Green Bay game, while tackle Bob Vogel and linebacker Dennis Gaubatz suffered sprained ankles. All are expected to play Saturday.

Injury-Riddled Leafs Lose 'Fill-In' Arbour

TORONTO (CP) — Defenceman Al Arbour will be lost to National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs for two weeks with undetermined knee injuries, manager-coach Punch Imlach said Monday.

Arbour, called up from Rochester Americans of the American League to replace the injured Bob Baun, injured in the knee Sunday in New York in a 1-1 tie against the Rangers.

Arbour was outstanding in both games he played before his injury. He claimed he "stepped on something at centre ice" when nobody was near him.

"My feet went one way and my body the other. The leg is pretty sore . . . ."

WILL GET HELP

Imlach said he would announce Tuesday who would be brought up from Rochester to replace Arbour.

Reports said centre Red Kelly may be relegated to defence. Kelly, an all-star defenceman with Detroit Red Wings for 13 years, hasn't played the position for four or five years.

Imlach made no comment on the report.

Leafs now have only three healthy defencemen — Allan Stanley, Tim Horton and Kent Douglas. Marcel Pronovost is playing but is suffering from pain in his chest, where he had a cyst removed last week.

SOONER COACHING BID REFUSED BY ROYAL

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—"I'm going to stay at the University of Texas," said football coach Darrell Royal, choking speculation Monday he might accept a lucrative offer from his alma mater, Oklahoma.

"It's been the hardest decision I've ever had to make because of my respect for my friends in Oklahoma," the 41-year-old former coach of the Western Football Conference Edmonton Eskimos said.

The Oklahoma Athletic Council voted Saturday to offer Royal a five-year contract with salary and benefits exceeding $32,000 a year.

Ski Dates Changed

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) —Dates for the 1966 Canadian figure skating championships have been changed to Feb. 5-12 from Feb. 7-12 so Canadian skaters can meet the Feb. 8 entry deadline for the International Skating Union's world championships, at Davos, Switzerland.

World Recognition For Rossland Skier

BERN (AP)—Ski aces from Canada, France, Australia, West Germany and the United States dominate the FIS ratings for women.

NANCY GREENE

The ratings, worked out by the International Ski Federation (FIS) on the basis of last year's performances, determine the starting order in the major races of the forthcoming season.

Canada's Nancy Greene and Jean Saubert of the United States were given top billing in the shorter races on the basis of their victories in last year's events in North America over some of Europe's best.

Both tied with European girls —among them France's famous Goitschel sisters Christine and Marielle—with the ideal mark of zero points in the slalom. Nancy, from Rossland, B.C., led the giant slalom ratings together with Marielle Goitschel and Switzerland's Therese Obrecht, also with the ideal score.

Austria's Christl Haas and Traudl Hecher led the downhill ratings ahead of Mareille and her compatriot Anne Famose.

Harness Racing Record Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Attendance and wagering at U.S. harness-racing tracks that permit betting soared to record highs in 1965.

Attendance increased 5.7 per cent to 22,506,970 through the first 11 months of the year. The over-all figure is estimated to be 26,000,000 when the month of December and attendance at county and state fair harness-racing programs are included in the tally.

Pari-Mutuel wagering increased nearly $100,000,000 over the record-breaking 1964 season to $1,335,576,025, a gain of eight per cent.

Swiss Resorts Bid for Games

LAUSANNE (Reuters) — Two Swiss winter sports resorts, St. Moritz and Interlaken, have told the Swiss Olympic Committe they are ready to stage the 1972 winter Olympic Games.

The committee is expected to meet this week to decide which resort it will support.

Russians Could Turn Pro Now

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Junior A League all-stars will try to beat the Russians at their own game when they play the touring Soviet team in an exhibition hockey game here tonight.

The Ontario team, with Toronto Marlboros forming its nucleus, will stress positional hockey against the Russians, winners of the first two games of their eight-game Canadian tour.

"It'll be tough for these juniors to adapt themselves after playing a wide open game," said Gus Bodnar, former National Hockey League star who will coach the junior team. "But that's how Windsor Bulldogs beat them a few years back and no Canadian team has beaten them since.

"The Russians check closely and when they're on the offensive you never see them shoot the puck in and chase it. They carry it in and they have tremendous puck control."

Coach Anatole Tarasov hinted the junior team can expect the Russians to hand out plenty of stiff checks.

"We don't play it rough at home, but when we come over here we have to. An actor has to change for different scenes."

Meanwhile, Sam Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, said Monday that the calibre of hockey in Russia has reached the point where a professional team could be formed in that country to play top pro teams in North America.

"It always comes up about who's best—them or us. They are good enough now to have a pro team play our best pros and leave their amateurs play our amateurs."

He said that in the next five years a world pro league could be formed but that to remove national restrictions, Russia's political approach to hockey must be broken down.

Pollock added that professional teams would be happy to play the Russians now—but under National Hockey League rule.

The Russians play under International Ice Hockey Federation rules which, unlike the NHL, prohibit body checking in the opposing team's zone.

GOLF PROS SAY:

Time Limit Tough

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — A panel of professional golfers headed by Arnold Palmer agreed today they don't want a stopwatch put on them while they ply their delicate trade.

"It would be ridiculous to put a time limit on the time a fellow can take to make a shot," said Palmer.

Palmer and other professional golfers discussed tournament golf's major headache—a tendency toward slow play—at a press conference before a dinner honoring the top shot makers picked by Golf magazine.

The group as a whole praised the new United States Golf Association rule which demands removal of the flagstick only when the ball is on the green, but dissented from two experimental local option measures dealing with action on the green.

PROS OBJECT

One of the rules limits the marking of the ball to one time. Another demands that a player continue to putt out without marking the ball unless he stands in the line of his opponent's putt.

"The pros would never go for those rules," said Dave Marr, the PGA champion. "For instance, in the Bing Crosby tournament at Pebble Beach sand can blow against the ball between putts. . . ."

Tony Lema, former British Open champion, said he believed increased slow play could be attributed to the bigger purses.

"In one tournament last year (Carling's World, which he won), I had $18,000 riding on the last two holes," Lema said. "Nobody's going to tell me I have to speed up with that kind of money staring me in the face."

"You don't waste or save time on the greens," insisted Palmer. "Only a few seconds are required to mark the ball. The time is taken up somewhere else.

"I think we need more officials on the course to make instantaneous rules decisions and prod players who are dawdling."

Marr said some players simply move faster than others. "There are fast players such as Sam Snead, Arnie Palmer and Bill Casper," he added. "And there are slow ones like Cary Middlecoff, Jack Nicklaus and Bobby Nichols.

"Some players don't think as fast as others."

SOCCER, ITALIAN STYLE

One Dead, Two Broken

ROME (AP)—A soccer player was injured fatally Sunday in the gloomiest day in Italian soccer this year. Two major league players broke their legs.

Giovanni Vazzelli, 16, was killed after colliding with another player at Modena in an amateur tournament.

Bruno Mora, right winger of Milan and a member of the Italian national team, suffered a double fracture of his leg in a championship game. Bruno Capra of Foggia broke his leg in another championship game.

Only 13 goals were scored in the nine games of the major league, the lowest number since early in the 1963 season when there were only nine goals.

Domenico Guarnieri, a player of the Tagliolese team, became so enraged at a penalty ruling against his team Sunday that he punched the referee in the nose and ripped the official's jacket in half.

After police hauled Guarnieri off the field at Abria his team, behind 1-0, rallied to win the game against La Spes Necchi 2-1.

And Over in Yugoslavia, A Showdown for Survival

By GERALD MILLER

BELGRADE (AP)—Yugoslav soccer is facing a showdown for survival.

The state of the game in this Communist country has become so scandalous that drastic reform measures have been ordered to save the sport from extinction.

Sports officials admit that Yugoslav soccer, compared with the state of the game in West European and Latin American countries, is dead on its feet.

Fans are fed up with ponderous playing and depressing defeats.

A bad odor of playoffs, thrown games and management corruption has risen over the sport.

Spectacular Yugoslav scandals involved charges that a first-division club had been accepting payments from two other clubs to throw games. Eleven officials were barred from soccer for life, the clubs were severely penalized with point losses and several leading players were banned from play for a year.

NEED PROFIT MOTIVE

Sports experts say that if Yugoslav soccer is to survive it must introduce the individual profit motive, get away from public subsidies, make players start running for their money and imitate Italian and British techniques to improve the style of play.

Mile Kos, former manager of Partizan of Belgrade, says Yugoslavs must drop static defence tactics that have made the game slow, leaden-footed and bore for the fans.

But Kos feels that even more important is the need to face up more honestly to the magic of money as a player incentive.

Under the facade of official indifference to money, secret deals and payments have increased.

STILL SUBSIDIZED

At the same time, however, the clubs continue to get subsidies from their communities.

"The result of this," says Kos, "is that players are quite indifferent to the size of the crowds."

The new football league, formed in the wake of the most recent scandals, has ordered a program that includes regular player salaries based on each player's performance measured by effort and results in matches.

Players will receive social insurance and benefit like other workers and there will be bonuses for winning cup or league championships.

Archer's Corner Protests Decision

BOSTON (AP) — "We were taken," protested manager Jimmy Archer Monday night.

And veteran ringside observers tended to agree with him after his brother Joey dropped a 12-round split decision to Don Fullmer.

Fullmer, from West Jordan, Utah, retained his United States middleweight title against the fast-punching, light-hitting New Yorker. Both fighters weighed 160 pounds.

"One judge (Harry Sundberg) gave my brother only one round," said the older Archer. "It was impossible to give just one round to my brother in that fight."

He said he would protest the decision to the Massachusetts boxing commission.

Fullmer, fifth-ranking middleweight according to the World Boxing Association, retained his regional crown with the decision over the second-ranked Archer at Boston Garden.

Referee Jimmy McCarron voted for Archer 117-115. Sundberg voted for Fullmer 119-114 and judge Alexander Scioli gave it to Fullmer 117-114.

The Associated Press card had Archer on top 117-115 under the 10-point "must" scoring system.

Fullmer pressed the fight most of the way, but Archer kept him off balance and unable to land solid blows.

Archer finally slowed a bit and was cut three times. Fullmer was cut under the right eye, requiring five stitches.

TEST CRICKET

Parks Boosts English Hopes

BRISBANE (Reuters)—An exciting innings of 52 by England wicket-keeper Jim Parks transformed the first cricket test match here today as Australia was getting well on top.

England, needing 97 to save the follow-on with five wickets in hand when bad light stopped play, still had some way to go, but Parks set the example, changing the picture completely.

At stumps England were 197 for five wickets in reply to Australia's first innings total of 443 for six declared.

Much still depended on Ken Barrington, who, though unable to take the initiative, was still there at the close with 44 runs after batting 142 minutes.

Australia owed its strong position to 19-year-old batting star Doug Walters and spinner Peter Philpott. Walters took his score to 155 before being caught behind the wicket.

After Australia declared, Philpott, getting some turn as he bowled into the wind, bogged down the top England batsmen and finished the day with three for 63 in 19 overs.

WALTERS HITS LUSTILY

Walters hit out lustily this morning. Altogether his innings lasted 322 minutes and included two sixes and 11 fours. His sixth-wicket stand with Tom Veivers realized 119 in 130 minutes.

Australia added 59 runs in an hour before Brian Booth declared.

With Eric Russell unable to bat after splitting a little finger while fielding, England made a disastrous start, losing Bob Barger to Hawke with only five runs scored.

Australia kept the later batsmen tied down with tight bowling and keen fielding, but Geoff Boycott (45) and John Edrich (32) added 70 runs for the second wicket.

Three wickets fell in the space of 40 runs to make England 115 for four before Parks joined Barrington. The Sussex wicket-keeper immediately unleashed a tremendous onslaught—particularly against Veivers.

Parks slammed three sixes—two of them in one over from Veivers which got 20 runs. He completed a brilliant half-century in 63 minutes and was out for 52 when he was caught on the boundary off another big hit, off Philpott.

Visiting XVs Tripped

University School defeated Vancouver Vindex "A" 12-5, Rainbow Sea Cadets edged Vindex "B" 6-3 and JBAA routed Queen's Own Rifles cadets 21-3 in midget rugby action at the weekend.

WINNER of Harry Vardon Trophy for third time in six years is Portland's Billy Casper (above). Average of 70.586 in 111 rounds gave Casper lowest average on pro golf tour. Tony Lema, Al Geiberger and Dave Marr were only other golfers to average under 71 for year.

That City on Mainland Wins Day on Liquor Plea

Annual pre-session visit by a Vancouver council delegation to the Parliament Buildings Monday sought more liquor licences for cabarets and government provision of emergency abulance service.

Mayor William Rathie, who headed the group, said progress was made towards the liquor licences but not the ambulance service.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner met with the delegation almost two hours and later reported that the city council may redefine its cabaret trade licences so that about six more will be reconsidered by the Liquor Control Board.

Mr. Bonner said of the 44 cabarets in Vancouver, 27 have liquor licences.

Several of the remaining 17 —such as parks board tea houses which are designated as cabarest—do not want liquor licences and others do not meet acceptable standards, he said.

"But the city may redefine its cabaret requirements and set up a hearing procedure under which it would recommend to the Liquor Control Board which outlets should receive liquor licences," Mr. Bonner said.

"Of the 17, there are perhaps half a dozen that might be reconsidered by the LCB for such licences."

MANY NIGHT CLUBS

Mr. Bonner said one interesting facet of the discussion was the indication that Vancouver —which has a total of 296 licensed premises—is the night club capital of the Pacific Northwest.

"Apparenlty, they have more night clubs even than Seattle," he said.

Mayor Rathie said Health Minister Eric Martin rejected the request for B.C. Hospital Insurance Service coverage of emergency ambulance calls.

But Mr. Martin hotly denied he turned the request down.

Instead, he said, he suggested that the delegation petition the federal government for removal of its present restriction on hospitalization subsidies which prevent their use for ambulance services.

Military Map To Feature Fair Display

Department of National Defence, Ottawa, confirmed today it will exhibit "an oversized operational map" of Canada's military installations at the Victoria Jaycee Exhibition next May.

Called a Diarama, the 51 by 35-foot display will also contain miniature scale models of military equipment, including the latest aircraft, ships, armed vehicles and missiles used by Canadian forces. The display will be the centrepiece at the Curling Rink on Quadra Street.

Jaycee fair managing director Don Mathison says the military display will be "the finest ever shown on Vancouver Island."

A possible display at the fair, May 16 to 21, will be an actual Gemini capsule. The Jaycees are still negotiating with NASA and "it looks very promising," says Mr. Mathison.

Troupe Visits Cyprus Troops

KYRENIA, Cyprus (CP) — Canadian entertainers Saturday visited lonely United Nations outposts manned by Canadians in Cyprus then put on an evening show, ending a six-show pre-Christmas tour for UN peacekeeping troops.

Entertainers headlined by comic emcee Gordie Tapp of London, Ont., and singer Daniele Dorice of Quebec City, performed before nearly all the 1,000-man Canadian contingent during three shows in Nicosia and three in this north coast tourist city. The Canadians also staged a show Sunday at the southern British base of Dhekelia which wound up their eight-day visit to the island. They leave for Trenton, Ont., today.

At least 2,500 persons watched the shows, many of them more than once. Besides Canadians, many UN troops from Denmark, Finland, Ireland, Britain and Sweden were in the audiences.

Merry Christmas greetings were exchanged on the outpost tour Saturday but it was difficult to get the feeling of the season. There is no trace of snow on the island.

Except for Christmas cards and parcels arriving it could be midsummer for the Guards, not scheduled to return to Canada until March. But a little bit of home came to them with informal Saturday visits into the lush green Kyrenia hills by Miss Dorice, baton twirlers Joan and Barbara Lounsbury of St. Catharines, the Toronto actress and singer, Jean Christopher, and vocalits Doug Crosley of Osha-

AMONG LOVABLE LIONS

Oriental Fairyland For Kiddies' Party

Christmas came early for 400 lucky youngsters of the Victoria Chinese community Sunday when they were guests at a giant-size party for pint-size party-goers.

Oriental and western themes were combined by Victoria Chinatown Lions to create a unique Christmas atmosphere for their annual children's Christmas party, held in the Old Age Pensioners' Hall.

Lanterns, lights and bells changed the hall from an empty polling station to an Oriental fairyland, centred by a 14-foot Christmas party in the Old Age Pensioners' Hall.

Mountains of turkey sandwiches with chocolate milk and mandarin oranges was the fare served to the hungry youngsters by wives of Lions Club members.

Welcomed by club president Bill Lowe, the children were entertained with a variety of acts, including a Victoria Chinatown Majorettes performance, a specialty baton demonstration, and a personal appearance by "Santa Claus" Percy Frampton, who passed out presents.

COMIC SKIT

Lions became horses, or one horse with cowboy Ragtime Joe in attendance, for a comic skit greeted by gales of laughter from the young audience.

The children also sang Christmas carols, and were entertained by recitaton of the Christmas story by Lions club padre, Rev. Howard Ha, who told it first in English, then in Chinese.

Biggest hit was the musical group, RPM and the Regents, who played top tunes throughout the party for the youngsters who danced, jerked and watusied their appreciation.

The party is the 10th annual one held by the Chinatown Lions Club for youngsters to celebrate the Christmas season.

Public Hearing Set On Marina Zone Plan

Central Saanich council wants to know what people think of a proposal to rezone 10-acres of waterfront property between Turgoose Point and the East Saanich Indian reserve for marine use.

A public hearing has been called for Monday at the Municipal Hall, starting at 8 p.m., to hear the views of residents on the proposal.

The other alternative would be to rezone the land, now zoned special commercial, back to agriculture for eventual residential development.

This was the original aim of council—to preserve the entire area between Turgoose Point and the Indian reserve as a residential area.

It was successful in carrying out the first phase of the land use plan when it rejected an Ocean Cement Ltd. application to rezone 12 acres of agricultural land to light industrial.

But when council sought to bring two additional privately-owned parcels of land, totaling 10 acres, under similar zoning regulations, the move was opposed by the owners and three councillors.

COMPROMISE

Some councillors proposed that the land be rezoned for marina use as a compromise solution.

But not all members are satisfied with the latest proposal, the feeling being that it's the thin edge of the wedge for commercial development.

Residents of Turgoose subdivision are also involved in the dispute. They are in favor of retaining the entire area for residential development.

Ship Guild To Hike Membership

The union representing ship's officers is planning to triple its membership.

Detailed recommendations will be presented next year to the east and west branches of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild "which eventually could represent all marine officer personnel in Canada," said guild assistant secretary E. W. Meadows of Vancouver.

It is planned to unite in the new organization 600 marine engineers, 300 masters, mates and engineers on federal government vessels on the west coast, 450 pilots, 800 masters and 1,500 mates on commercial vessels on both coasts, the Great Lakes and the Arctic.

This would bring together 3,650 men compared with the present membership of 2,179. Mr. Meadows said the potential of the new group is 6,000.

The Canadian Merchant Service Guild, affiliated with the Canadian Labour Congress, was founded in Vancouver in 1917. It represents officer personnel exclusively.

TRUST REASON, SAYS COMMANDANT

'Emotion Can Lead to Danger'

A funny thing happened to Group Capt. Douglas Wurtele on his way to his Vancouver hotel.

The commandant of Royal Roads Military College met 2,000 students protesting the high cost of university tuition.

"The ones I talked to," he told Victoria Gyros Monday, "seemed to be acting from emotion, not reason.

"Any decision based on the emotion of the moment is in a way irresponsible. It could, even for students, be dangerous."

Group Capt. Wurtele said Oxford students in the 30s who signed a manifesto saying they wouldn't participate in a war of any kind may have stimulated dictators who wanted to gain their ends by war.

"This illustrates the importance of the training we at Royal Roads think is imperative for the leaders of this fast-paced, high-pressure world."

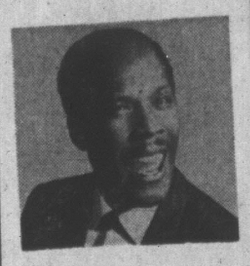

The Royal Roads training program is designed to produce good Canadians first, and then good potential military officers, he said.

Group Capt. Wurtele hoped that above all, any graduate of Royal Roads trusts his reason over his feelings.

Group Capt. Wurtele before taking his post at Royal Roads was stationed in Ottawa. He is the nephew of Esquimalt's retiring reeve A. C. Wurtele.

There are in this city, I suppose, fathers who actually like getting ties, slippers and pigskin-garnished corkscrews for Christmas. However, if you really want to make the old dog sit up and bark, a less casual approach is necessary.

Watch him. Stalk him. Test him with leading questions, and be alert for such hints as he may drop. Even more important, try to develop a sixth sense which will pick up the unwitting clues that point to his real wants.

Old Faithful, let us suppose, is parcel-toting for his dear ones on an evening shopping bout. Nobody pays much attention to him until, somewhere between women's hosiery and toyland, he turns up missing.

Presently he's spotted over in sporting goods, where he stands thoughtfully weighing a quarter-pound spool of nylon monofilament salmon line in his paw.

When observed, the quiet fellow with the flat wallet is likely to drop the spool as if it had singed his fingers, and if pressed, mumble that he was just studying the label.

Uh huh? Well, there's a fine fat clue for you, and if in doubt when you later buy him a spool of the stuff, ask for 20 pound test. It will cost about as much as a middle-of-the-road necktie, and probably a heck of a lot less than the duded-up corkscrew.

★ ★ ★

So much for Dad. We will now turn to another person who tends to anesthetize her presonal gimmees, and can fake delight over a bargain bottle of cologne or a pair of oven mitts with almost 100 per cent conviction.

When shopping for wives, I'm not sure the best system isn't to ask the little creatures what they'd like, buy it no matter how un-Christmasy it may seem, then add the most expensive party sheers you can manage. For pete's sake, though, get her size right, or if err you must, let it be on the side of smallness.

Perfume? At your own risk.

This advice is hard to accept . . . if fact I know one wife who, year after year, put in timidly on each gift-giving occasion for a new meat grinder, while her perfume-happy husband persisted in the view that she ought just to go out and buy one.

As a result, she didn't get her heart's desire until her sensible son grew up, and presented her with a duplicate of the toothless old shower present she couldn't bear to part with.

Thus forced, she spent a happy hour running everything save the cat's tail through her new chopper.

So, surprise your wife with what you will, but if she has let it be known that she'd like no-nonsense mule-skin gardening gloves and a plastic lined, non-stick frying pan, see she gets them among her gifts.

★ ★ ★

To tell you the truth, though, I am not happy when attempting to interpret the feminine mystique, and the only chump I ever met who boasted that he could do so found himself divorced soon after.

Shopping for children is very much easier. The trick is to cut their long, long lists by two thirds, then add one or more surprise items which they didn't get around to asking for.

Still, keep in mind even here that what kids truly want may differ markedly from what you think they should have, and don't insist on forcing education upon them in the guise of entertainment. That's sneaky, and weakens their trust in adults.

Under the education heading, I don't include the hand work with authentic tools which gives much pleasure to a great many small boys. Odds and ends of wood are cheap, and with a hammer, assorted nails and a light panel saw, you provide the makings of rainy day fun.

For the little girl who likes to make doll clothes, two or three quarter-yard lengths of material, swish fabrics preferred, are always acceptable.

And what does the college-age son or daughter want for Christmas? This may shock you, but the preference frequently runs to portraits of Her Majesty printed on crinkly paper and backed in each denomination by some fetching view of the Canadian scene.

REAL COOL CATS are former Vancouver lifeguard Sonny Gicas, 4357 Metchosin Road, and his sons Tony, 12 (foreground), and Jimmie, 14. They took a chilly training dip in Thetis Lake Sunday preparing for the annual Christmas Day swim in Victoria's Inner Harbor. ## Suspects Released After Third Holdup

By RON SUDLOW

Saanich police today are continuing their search for a gunman who held up Lake Hill Food Market Monday night.

The man, whose face was hidden by the peak of an engineer's hat, sunglasses and a cloth mask, got away with $226 from the 3949 Quadra St. store.

He pointed what appeared to be an automatic revolver at co-owner Syd Archer, 53, of 3433 Bethune and told him: "This is a stick-up."

SUSPECTS RELEASED

Police cordoned off main roads leading to the store immediately after the holdup and had picked up two suspects within 45 minutes.

The men were taken to Saanich police station but were released after questioning.

Saanich Detective - Sergeant Robin Stewart said today the robbery could be linked with Friday's holdups in the city.

He expected to know more about the suspected connection later on today.

Friday night a man masked with a silk stocking pointed what appeared to be a gun at Miss Edith Barnes.

He escaped after taking $20 from her grocery store at 1611 Bay Street.

Earlier in the day a bandit's bluff was called by a woman clerk at Indian Craft Shoppe, 905 Government, and he got nothing.

CLOSING TIME

The holdup man entered Mr. Archer's store right at 9 p.m. closing time Monday night.

The storekeeper was putting away meat displays at the rear of the premises.

The front door was unlocked and the robber walked up behind Mr. Archer, told him it was a holdup and marched him toward the till.

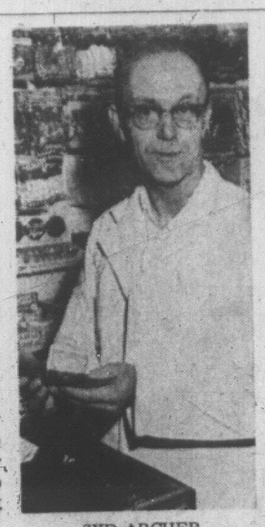

"He said, 'This is a stick-up' as he came up on me," Mr. Archer said.

"I just ignored him and kinda laughed and went about my work. Then he told me I'd better not be a dead hero and said "Come on and open up the till'."

Mr. Archer flipped up the spring-loaded devices which hold the bills in their compartments. The bandit took all the folding money but left some cheques and an American $5 bill.

"As he was taking my money I thought to myself

Driver Ignored Brake Warning

$200 Fine Levied After Fatal Crash

A man involved in a fatal accident on Pandora Avenue was fined $200 this morning in central court for careless driving.

Ronald Provan, HMCS St. Croix, was also suspended from driving for six months.

Magistrate J. A. Byers told Provan that "no punishment I can inflict can bring back the life. But I want to impress on you the need to drive carefully."

The magistrate said that from evidence "it appears you were warned your brakes required an operation known as grinding. The brakes were defective but you chose to drive on the roads."

Evidence was that Provan crossed the centre line of Pandora near Camosun when he pulled out to pass a bus that had stopped. Provan crashed into an oncoming car and its driver was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

Magistrate Byers said he was convinced that Provan was following too closely behind the bus and was forced to swerve violently as a result. He said there was room for Provan to pass without crossing the centre line if he had been driving at a reasonable speed.

'MINDING BUSINES'

Magistrate Byers said the accident had resulted in the death of a man who had been "driving peacefully along minding his own business."

The victim was James C. Smith, 3171 Donald, a 53-year-old garageman for Horwood Bros. Garage.

He had been driving home the night of Nov. 19 after visiting his mother. Both he and Provan, who was injured in the accident, were alone in their cars.

After the collision Seaman Provan applied mouth-to-mouth respiration to Mr. Smith in an attempt to revive him.

Both men were taken to hospital by Oak Bay Fire Chief William Pearson who drove by the accident scene in his private car.

Born in Scotland, Mr. Smith came to Canada in 1913. He lived in Nanaimo and Winnipeg before moving here. For the last eight years of his life he was parts manager for Horwood Motors.

LABOR PLANS CAMPAIGN ON NEW CAR INSURANCE

A mass campaign for a new kind of car insurance will be staged aeross Canada in February.

The 1,100,000-member Canadian Labour Congress will mark its annual Citizenship Month with a call for insurance similar to Workmen's Compensation.

Last February the CLC urged a national prepaid medical care insurance program as a Centennial present for all Canadians. The present government is planning medicare for 1967.

"A real campaign will be mounted," E. P. O'Neal, secretary-treasurer of the 110,000-member B.C. Federation of Labour, said today.

He said the program will urge "a new concept of insurance—that every person is entitled to compensation after accidents."

EXTRA HELP CALLED IN

Post Office Loaded By Mail Early Prod

The mail early for Christmas campaign conducted annually by the Post Office was apparently too successful this year in Victoria.

Postal officials were forced to call in extra help a day early (Sunday morning) to clear a backlog which began to develop late last week.

Some local letters have been as much as three days over the normal delivery period.

600 EXTRAS

When the rush reaches its peak later this week and early next between 500 and 600 extra mail sorters and delivery men will be used to handle the expected 1,000,000 letters per day.

Deadline for Christmas mail to out-of-town points passed Monday.

Deadline for local Christmas mail deliveries is Dec. 17.

Postal officials are expecting the annual rash of incorrectly addressed mail and offer these suggestions:

- In the case of parcels which may lose their wrappers, the sender should enclose a note inside the package containing the addresses.
- Use five-cent stamps with Christmas cards to insure prompt delivery.
- A five-word message is all that is allowed on greeting cards mailed with a three-cent stamp.
- Mail early.

SHIP MOVEMENTS

NAVY

HMCS Beacon Hill returned today from Seattle and HMC Ships Yukon and Sussexvale left San Francisco today and are due here at noon Friday.

All other ships are in port.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

Camsell is southbound in Georgia Strait; Estevan is in refit; St. Catharines is on weather station Papa; Stonetown is due Thursday at 8 p.m.; Racer was due in port at 4 p.m. today; Ready is in the Sandheads patrol area, and Sir James Douglas was northbound on the Island's west coast.

Trial Ordered For Woman On Four Charges

Mrs. Gladys Naylor, 914 Sioux Place, was committed this morning for trial at the next assizes on four charges of obtaining money by misrepresentations.

Magistrate J. A. Byers set bail at $5,000 for the middle-aged grandmother who is alleged to have obtained money by telling people she was going to inherit a fortune.

Instant Trees Cost $6,000 Above Budget

Centennial Square's instant trees have cost $6,000 more than estimated, city comptroller James Bramley told aldermen at city hall today.

The mature tree transplanting account will have to be augmented from other sources, he indicated at a meeting of Centennial Square committee.

Mr. Bramley noted that other square projects are under-expended, for example the old folks' activity centre.

"When you are dealing with $3.5 million (over-all cost of the square), two or three thousand here and there is not far off the mark," he said.

Instant trees are planted at a cost of $600 to $700 per tree on the basis of cost-plus.

59% FAILED CAR TEST ON FIRST TRY

Fifty-nine per cent of the cars tested during a five-day period here were rejected on the first inspection.

This is disclosed in figures from the motor vehicle branch whose mobile testing unit conducted voluntary tests in Victoria Nov. 30 to Dec. 4.

A total of 361 cars were inspected but only 149 passed first time. But 112 of the failures returned and passed the test.

The highest rate of failures was for cars built between 1950 and 1953—84 per cent.

Biggest causes of rejection was faulty headlights, which failed 163 cars. Incorrect wheel alignment failed 27 cars and bad mufflers were reported in 25 cars.

Young Driver Jailed For 21 Days

Magistrate William Ostler today sent a young man to jail for 21 days saying "something has to be done to make the roads safe for responsible people."

He imposed the penalty on Colin Moir, 1312 Bay Street, who pleaded guilty to dangerous driving and careless driving on Town and Country parking lot early on the morning of Dec. 14.

Saanich Constable Fred Broderson said the lot was covered with ice and Moir accelerated his car, then suddenly applied the brake to make his vehicle spin in circles.

When the officer advised Moir he would be charged with careless driving the accused drove off saying, "I'll see you in court. You won't be quite so smart then."

Cons Broderson said that 45 minutes later Moir was checked again and admitted he had driven in the same manner as before. This time his car skidded out of control for 150 feet and its rear collided with a lamp post. He had driven without lights the second time, the constable said.

Moir, previously convicted of careless driving six months ago, asked Magistrate Ostler to let him keep his licence because he needs it for his trade of mechanic.

Said Magistrate Ostler, "I can't help that."

Discussions 'Profitable'

Executive officers of British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. met behind closed doors with the mayor and city council today to deal with the problem of smoke and fly ash from Gorge Road mills.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said afterwards that "profitable discussions" took place.

He said he could not elaborate because BCFP is engaged in litigation over alleged mill discharge onto private property, a case which will be heard in the upper courts next month.

IF YOU HAVE TO ASK THE PRICE, YOU CAN'T AFFORD IT

$23,500 (Without Chauffeur)

By JIM HUME

It was the tax that killed me.

Had it not been for the iniquitous sales levy imposed by the provincial government I'd have bought my wife a Mercedes Benz 600 for Christmas.

But I just couldn't spring that extra $1,175. At least not without getting a sharp letter from my up-to-now friendly bank manager.

Apart from that the $23,500 model only seats five passengers. It just wouldn't be big enough for a family of seven.

Not that it wouldn't be nice to have as a status symbol. Or even to ride in once in a while. Although how you pluck up the courage to wheel $23,500 worth of high-class hardware down British Columbia's wreck-strewn highways is beyond me.

Mind you, the Mercedes-Benz 600 doesn't have to be driven to be enjoyed. The deep-leather, hydraulically controlled seats, front and rear, with arm rests and head rests are, well, let's say they're a big improvement over Beacon Hill Park benches.

JUST SIT THERE

That's what I mean by not having to go any place to enjoy the 600. You could just sit there with your hydraulic seat rocking back and forth, your AM and FM radio playing at just the right volume, the silent air-conditioner holding the interior to a specific temperature, and let the rest of the world go by.

And if after a while you want to roll the eight cylinder V-engine powered coach with its fuel injection system out onto the highway, you'll have to look out of the window to be sure you're moving.

Even though she zips from 0 to 60 mph in 9.7 seconds the 600 just whispers along. At top speed (127 mph, but don't try it in B.C.) she rides the same.

Self-levelling air suspension, road clearance (adjustable while in motion) shock absorbers (adjustable for stiffness while in motion) and a shock-absorbing front frame-floor, make sure you don't spill the drinks (coffee, tea, milk) dispensed in the rear-seat optional refreshment bar.

If you want to buy a 600—or even just be like the vast majority and look at one—David Motors Ltd., 1101 Yates at Cook, has the economy model on display.

They take four to five months to build and a month to deliver, so plan on a six-month wait after you write the cheque, for $23,500.

PLUS TAX

Er, sorry, better add another $1,175 to that. Almost forgot the sales tax.

Anyway, if you don't like the five-seater with its side-window and rear-window defrosters and its thundering air horn, you can move up to the seven-eight passenger effort with six doors. The same comforts but just a little larger, a little roomier—and a little more expensive.

So who buys $23,500 cars in British Columbia?

Peter Chrz, field sales manager for Mercedes-Benz, isn't giving out names, but three 600s have already been sold in B.C. with delivery of the first due just before Christmas.

Wonder what the wife will say when I drive home in it?

And I wonder what the bank manager will say when he finds out I blew $1,175 just on sales tax?

Ah, well, I'll just dip my asymmetric headlights, flash my fog lamps, switch on the adjustable reading lights and the hi-fi radio, adjust the seats and steering wheel and head for the hills.

I should have thought to ask how far you can get on 28.9 Imperial gallons of super quality fuel.

"LET'S SEE, $23,500 PLUS SALES TAX WOULD COME TO . . ."

AND WHEN SANTA COMES down the chimney, "make sure the fire's out first," is what the fireman might be telling these Tolmie Elementary six-year-olds. No joke, however, are the leaflets on Christmas fire hazards being handed out to Saanich school children by the district's fire department. Taking tips on home safety habits for the holiday season from Lieut. T. W. Jennings are (from left) Donald Moen, Heather-Jean Leys and Gerald Turko. (Times Photo.)

Ask The Times

Q. How many vehicles are registered in B.C. and how much tax does the B.C. government get out of every gallon of gas? E. B.

A. Registration to the end of November included 601,398 passenger vehicles; 138,663 commercial vehicles; 13,020 motorcycles; 2,343 vehicles registered to auto dealers and 99 transporter vehicles. Total is 755,522.

The provincial government tax on a gallon of gas is 13 cents.

Q. Where in Victoria may one take a nurse's aide course? What qualifications are needed? P.C.

A. Royal Jubilee Hospital personnel office explains nurse's aides are taught on the job. Grade 10 education is regarded as helpful, but not mandatory.

A practical nursing course is offered by provincial government vocational schools.

You're in for a Blow If You Spare These

By Penny Saver

Bowling is one sport that has always got the best of me. As a matter of fact, I wouldn't go near a bowling alley, until my sister visited me recently. One evening, with a lack of anything better to do, she suggested bowling. Since I wanted to make her stay an enjoyable one, I submitted, thinking that she would at least get a good laugh out of my usual 90 average. However, the laugh was on me. I started out as usual, with a first game of 82. My second, however, was an entirely unexpected 295. After this, I decided to seriously pursue the sport, and, in doing so, purchased a pair of bowling shoes, and other necessary items required by the avid bowler.

One thing that I felt silly about was carrying my shoes in a paper bag. In one store, I found the perfect remedy — a bowling bag. These are made of a leather-like plastic material, in shades of brown and black. They have a convenient handle, and a zipper down the front so that you have no trouble squeezing the shoes in. They sell for $1.98 each.

Bowling bags, I discovered, can get very soiled, as they are usually stuffed under the seat by the over-anxious player. These bags only require a damp cloth and a mild soap to make them look like new. For stubborn stains, use alcohol and a damp cloth. Long-lasting loveliness can be acquired if all stains are removed as soon as possible.

I was told that when one is starting out in the bowler's world, one should have an optimistic attitude. With this in mind, I did not feel conceited when I purchased a special box in which to put all the pins that I shall be awarded for my excellent bowling. This jewelry case is shaped like a grand piano, made of dark brown wood. It is musical too, and when wound up, a ballerina positioned in front of a V-shaped mirror, twirls. The "keyboard" of this piano is just perfect for storing necklaces. Selling for $9.95, it would make an ideal gift item.

One very useful article sells in this store for 89 cents. It is a desk calendar in the form of a globe, with blue oceans and gold countries. A little dial changes the day and the month, and when the globe is turned, the date changes. Every home or office should have one of these.

THE BETTER HALF — By Bob Barnes

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Unable to Fall Asleep?

When you say "I slept like a log" you are not telling the truth unless you are talking about an animated log. Even when you feel that you have slept soundly you have probably changed positions or moved about from 35 to 50 times during the night.

The tremendous number of sleeping pills sold each year testifies to the fact that insomnia is one of the greatest modern-day problems. Also it is a problem which affects our looks, success, health and our enjoyment of life dramatically. Many folks drag through each day because of sleepless nights. These also create circles or hollows under the eyes, a drawn look, fatigue and a sallow complexion.

Lowman

There have been many remedies given for sleeplessness. What works for one will not for another. Counting sheep never put me to sleep. I become so actively bored that it keeps me awake. One member of my family can always put himself to sleep by counting, not sheep, just numbers. He begins with one and counts until he falls asleep. The value of this method is that it takes your mind away from your plans and problems.

Some folks find that a light snack just before going to bed makes them sleepy. This is probably due to the fact that more blood is drawn to the stomach and away from the brain. This is soothing and quieting.

Exercise is very helpful to some people. This takes the kinks out of muscles and relieves tension. Soothing music lulls some into the Land of Nod. My brother always goes to sleep with his bedside table radio playing.

A warm bath soothes some and makes others itch. If you have this latter reaction you probably have a very dry skin and should use a bath oil in your tub and a body lotion after your bath.

The most important measure of all is to slow down before bedtime. Don't jump from a hectic busy day right into bed and expect to fall asleep any time soon.

Another very helpful rule is to never think over problems after you go to bed. If necessary stay up later and think about them before retiring for the night.

Of course uncomfortable sleeping garments, mattresses and covers (too heavy or too light) influence the quality of sleep.

You can also try a little mild self-hypnosis. Start with your toes and say to yourself "My toes are relaxing." Say it over and over again and FEEL them relax. Then, "The muscles of my legs are relaxing, relaxing," and so on until you reach the top of your head. This takes time but it really works.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Shut-Eye" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Jo Copeland

Jo Copeland is famous for her feminine tricks. This is the dress that goes everywhere with calm and finesse from the contrast edging of the bateau neckline to the discreet bow trim at the waist. The placement of the contrast trim and the princess lines of the back view are unusually slenderizing. The soft pleats at each hip smooth over the skirt, as the neat contrast band streamlines its way to the hem. This design was originally made in a nubby textured woven knit, trimmed with satin but would be equally adaptable to almost any fabric including the new smooth textures. DEAR ABBY...

Checking the Situation!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those "STUPID WAITRESSES" who can't read the minds of customers to determine whether they want separate checks or not. Don't customers realize that all our checks are numbered? And when they tell us at the end of a meal that they wanted separate checks, we have to void the original check and start all over again? THIS TAKES TIME!

If some customers weren't so stupid, they could divide up the check themselves.

"ANOTHER STUPID WAITRESS"

DEAR ABBY: Put me down as another "stupid waitress," who not only can't read minds, but who can't tell when people are kidding. When cocktails are being ordered before the meal, I have been told that the party was going to be on "Old Joe." And when I presented the check to "Old Joe," I was asked if I couldn't take a joke. Then I've had unscramble the bill and give everyone separate checks.

On other occasions, I've had the guests loudly demand, "Separate checks!"—and when it came time to pay one man will disgustedly take them all and say to me, "Where's your sense of humor? You know when I'm in the party, the party's always on me!"

EGG ON MY FACE

DEAR ABBY: You said, "Waitresses are not mind-readers." So, since the waitress is the one who makes up the check, she's the one who should ask how it should be done, and not after he fact.

After all, one man did not eat all the food, so why should the waitress have the gall to assume that one man is going to pay for it? And in some cases, the waitress even takes it upon herself to decide which man should be the host.

BEEN STUCK

DEAR ABBY: At last you have proved to me forever that no man ghost-writes your column, although on the question of restaurant checks you could have used a man's advice. No woman understands the problem as a man does. No waiter is likely to make the mistake a waitress makes in assuming that one man is picking up the check for the entire party unless he is told that he is.

A waiter always makes out separate checks for each couple in a dinner situation, as well as situations involving a group at lunch from an office or something similar. Only a waitress will do it the "easy" way and stick one man with the bill.

E. F. F.

DEAR ABBY: Here is one waitress who is not as stupid as she used to be. When I first started waiting on tables, the girls told me if a lot of men came in together, to put it all on one check and give it to the man who looked the most successful. And if they all looked successful, to give it to the oldest man. I have learned through experience that this is a mistake. For some strange reason, the man who looks most successful is usually the one who is least able to treat the crowd. And age doesn't mean anything either.

QUIT GUESSING

DEAR ABBY: Does anyone have any advice on how a waitress is supposed to know to whom the check goes when two men are dining together and both of them insist on taking it? I have had my glasses knocked off, my pocket ripped and my arm nearly broken while trying to present the check to the "wrong" person.

DEAR ABBY: I am a waitress, but I a far from stupid. When a group of people come in for lunch or dinner, whether they are all men, all women, or mixed, I always make out separate checks. If, after the meal, one person wants to pay for them all, I let him fight it out with the others.

THOMAS-BRUCE VOWS

Couple Married Here To Make Halifax Home

Following their recent wedding in Oak Bay United Church, Sub-Lt. John Francis Thomas and Mrs. Thomas left on a honeymoon trip to Halifax, where they will make their new home. En route, they will visit Stratford, Ont.

The bride, the former Dianne Margaret Bruce, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Bruce, 2381 Lansdowne Road, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Thomas of Stratford.

The church was decorated with arrangements of white chrysanthemums and silver for the ceremony at which Rev. Leighton Streight officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of pure silk, styled along princess lines, which featured an overlay of Alencon appliques. Her four-tier veil of silk illusion misted from a rosette starred with silver drops. She carried a crescent bouquet of gardenias and white roses.

The bride's attendants, maid of honor Miss Maureen Hemming, bridesmatron Mrs. Ronald Porter, and bridesmaid Miss Susan Riley, wore red dresses of raw Indian silk. They carried bouquets of gold chrysanthemums and wore matching gold bows in their hair.

Sub-Lt. Eric West was best man, and guests were ushered to their pews by Sub-Lt. Roger Tallentire and Sub-Lt. Barry Hodgkins.

At the reception in the Royal Victoria Golf Club, the bride and groom cut a three-tier wedding cake with the groom's sword. The cake was flanked with white carnations and silver leaves. Col. Donald McGugan proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon, the bride chose a royal blue tweed suit and matching hat, and a corsage of gardenias.

BUS DRIVER UPSETS PARTY PLANS

An error of judgment on the part of a bus driver kept 365 guests waiting for 45 minutes at a Christmas tea Saturday afternoon.

Aboard the bus was the students' choir of the Royal Jubilee Hospital's School of Nursing. As the driver set out on the newly-paved driveway of the nurses' residence, he misjudged the turn and bus, driver and "performers" were temporarily stranded.

In spite of the delay, the guests attending the Victoria Musical Art Society affair in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

As the tardy carollers mounted the stage, they greeted them with enthusiastic clapping, surpassed only by the barrage of applause at the end of the concert.

The students, fresh-faced and with uniforms crisply starched, sang old carols and new. Most delightful was the Gaelic rendering of "Away in a Manger." Pianist and director was Mrs. Mary Wood.

Adding dramatic touches on the tea tables were futuristic white and gold Christmas trees, each made by president Mrs. S. G. Watts. They starred on the tables that were festooned with holly and lit by scarlet chunky candles.

Seated with Mrs. Watts at the head table were Miss Mary Irving, faculty member of the school of nursing; Mrs. Gertrude Stocker, Dr. R. J. Manning, Mrs. T. H. Johns, Mrs. Jay Durand, Mrs. Harry Thirlwall, Miss Kathleen Agnew, Mrs. Jack Barraclough, Mrs. Otto Niedermann, Mrs. T. L. McMaster, Mrs. Wood, Miss Charlotte Crawford and Mrs. Pat Dufour.

Presiding at the festive tables were Mrs. J. Sullivan, Mrs. W. Kinnell, Mrs. P. Francis, Mrs. J. McKibbon, Miss Gladys Pearcy, Mme. W. Lugrin Fahey, Mrs. R. M. Pinfold, Mrs. H. H. Henderson, Mrs. Alex Hall, Mrs. Arthur Dowell, Mrs. A. Crofts, Mrs. G. B. Shattock, Mrs. John Macdonald, Mrs. A. H. Gunning, Miss Ann Van der Voort, Mrs. K. S. Plans were made for the annual show of the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League when the group met in the Blue Room recently. It was announced that the coming show would be in vaudeville style. Private auditions can be arranged. Those wishing to donate their talents are asked to phone Mrs. T. Harrison at 382-5978. Chorus members are also required and a meeting was held on Sunday at 1 p.m. in the CJVI radio station.

Miss Linda Richmond was initiated as a new member at the meeting, receiving her pin in a special ceremony.

Miss Sharon Ball reported on the fall fashion show, convened by Mrs. D. Nolli, which realized $108.61. Mrs. D. Gibson and Mrs. R. Lindsay reported receipts of approximately $100 from a recent cake raffle.

It was announced that members would be selling tickets on the Kinsmen summer cottage, now on display at the Mayfair Shopping Centre. Groups wishing to sell tickets should contact Mrs. T. Bagot at 479-1759.

Members reported on sales of Joe's Notebooks and "Let's look the Chinese way."

U.S. Looks to 'Copters In Battle Against Cong

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—The U.S. Army is rushing plans to train hundreds of helicopter pilots for a revolutionary type of warfare now being waged against the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam.

The new strategy is to free troops from their dependence on tanks and other ground transport and to speed them to massed helicopters to battlefield stations.

In the savage battle of Ia Drang Valley against the Viet Cong, in November, thousands of troops from the 1st Air Cavalry Division were ferried to combat in the beetle-like craft.

So successful was their anti-guerrilla role that U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara announced during a visit to Saigon that another airmobile division, and possibly two, would be formed.

The decision now has been made to train 3,600 army helicopter pilots a year—double the rate in each of the last two years.

EXPAND FACILITIES

Training facilities are being expanded at two helicopter bases in Alabama and Texas and it is expected the increased flow of pilots will be brought to bear about the middle of next year.

Many of the pilots will be assigned to duties not connected with combat divisions. But hundreds will be trained specifically for the new airmobile units to be raised.

The 16,000 officers and men of the 1st Cavalry Division have 428 helicopters at their disposal.

It is the first combat force in history to depend exclusively on helicopters to get around.

"We are freed from the tyranny of terrain," said one senior officer in commenting on the results of the Ia Drang Valley campaign.

Assault troops hopped over formidable natural and man-made obstacles without making forced marches, swimming rivers or worrying about armor bogging down.

MOVE BY AIR

There were no tanks, lorries or self-propelled artillery. Everything moved by air. For defence against enemy armor, the cavalrymen used the SS-11, a guided anti-tank missile developed by the French.

The concept around which the 1st Cavalry Division was formed was the use of helicopters as basic weapons to leap around a battlefield of about 100-miles radius in a matter of minutes and to provide firepower of a battalion of howitzers and carrying combat troops armed to the teeth.

Swarms of other helicopters swoop towards enemy positions for reconnaissance, rescuing the wounded, co-ordinating air attacks, and acting as command posts.

There are also specialized groups of helicopter-borne engineers, who slide down ropes from their craft into dense woods and blast out "instant heliports" in 15 minutes or less.

LASSITER
. . . charged in deaths

'I'll Be Back' Shouts Man; 13 Died

CHICAGO (CP)—"I just got mad. They shouldn't have thrown me out."

This was the explanation of Robert Lee Lassiter of Chicago as he admitted using a borrowed match to touch off a fire Saturday night which killed 13 persons and injured 22 in a west side tavern.

Lassiter, 26, was charged Sunday with 13 counts of murder.

Lassiter a laborer for an electric company, told police how he ignited the gallon of gasoline he splashed in the door of the Seeley Club.

The incident that touched off the fire, Lassiter said, was an argument with Eddie Gaston, 38, a waiter at the club. Witnesses said Lassiter had been flourishing a large switchblade knife and Gaston told him to put it away.

'GOING TO GET IT'

The two men grappled after arguing, and Lassiter was forced to leave.

"I'll be back and they're going to get it," witnesses quoted Lassiter as saying.

Gaston was among the seven men and six women killed in the blaze.

The flames sent the 40 occupants of the tavern into a panic. The front entrance was blocked by flames. The only other exit, a rear door, was locked.

"I saw many persons with their clothing burning," said Willie Daniels, 35. "They cried and screamed and begged for help."

Lassiter was arrested as he slept in his home. When told of the deaths and injuries, Lassiter said: "Oh, my God! No!"

FISH TREATY WITH RUSS RULED OUT BY OFFICIAL

SEATTLE (AP)—A federal fisheries official advised Monday against trying to bring Russia into a North Pacific conservation treaty at this time.

William C. Herrington, special assistant to the undersecretary of state for fish and wildlife, predicted Russia would try to include salmon and halibut if the United States were to suggest a new treaty covering bottom fish—the species now being taken off the northwest coast by Soviet fishermen.

"There would not be any preferential rights for any nation," Herrington said.

He commented during a panel discussion at a meeting here of the congress of American fishermen.

This sweet young thing simply could not care less that RCA VICTOR TV's use Solid Copper Circuits like those developed by RCA for the Ranger Satellite moon shot or that they're far more dependable than the old-fashioned "hand wired" ones or that space age technology makes our new portables wonderfully light and compact or any other technical gobbledygook like that. She bought her 12" portable because it matches her outfit...and it didn't cost much more, either. ANNUAL BRIEF

Builders Seeking Union Controls

Vancouver Construction Association Monday asked the provincial cabinet again to clip the wings of free-wheeling unions.

In an annual brief to the government, which followed closely its submission last year, the association requested legislation:

● To end work stoppages by "mystery pickets" or mass "mystery illness" through requirements that pickets have written authorization from their union officials and an amendment restricting pickets to the actual plant where strikers normally work;

● To provide for appointment of a court, commission or arbitrator to settle any labor dispute not resolved by collective bargaining;

● And to make management a joint trustee of all health, welfare and pension plans provided through collective agreements instead of the present system leaving unions sole administrators of the plans.

Hunter Shot Packing Out Deer Kill

KAMLOOPS (CP)—A hunter from the Vancouver area saw a deer moving through the bush. He lifted his rifle to his shoulder and fired.

He missed the deer. But he got hunter John Edward Russell, 44, in the right leg.

Russell had already shot the deer and was pulling the carcass through the bush to his car when the other hunter fired at it.

Russell, from Richmond, near Vancouver, is recovering in hospital here.

No charges have been laid.

Foul Bay Road Restrictions Turned Down

A request for restricted speed limits on Foul Bay Road was rejected Monday night by Oak Bay council's traffic committee.

F. J. Houghton, 2957 Foul Bay Road, told committee earlier the road is being used extensively by heavy trucks and buses.

But a traffic count proved the stretch was used by heavier vehicles no more than on other Oak Bay main arteries.

Committee decided to install a crosswalk at Newport and Beach Drive and eliminate parking on Foul Bay Road at the intersection with Lansdowne.

$43 Million 'Stolen'

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—Congolese President Joseph Mobutu, in an appeal Sunday for economic stability, charged that corrupt politicians have stolen $43,000,000 from the government. Mobutu, addressing a crowd of 50,000 at a mass rally in Baudoin Stadium, said politicians, whom he did not identify, stole the money instead of disbursing it in public works. He threatened them with military trial.

France, Canada Team Up

PARIS (CP) — Canada and France have agreed to intensify their trans-Atlantic co-operation in arms production-sharing and space research.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin announced the new moves after a luncheon Monday with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville. Canada already buys some French military equipment, including mortars, and France now is considering the purchase of Canada's CL-15 plane, the so-called water bomber to fight forest fires.

Martin told a press conference that Industry Minister C. M. Drury was here a week ago to prepare for the development of a production-sharing plan. "We likewise agreed that a possibility exists in space research co-operation," Martin said.

Professional Ranks Increase in Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Professional ranks in Canada grew at a faster pace between 1951 and 1961 than any other major occupational category, a newly-published labor department survey shows.

In 1961 there were an estimated 634,000 persons working in the various professional occupations — engineers, lawyers, doctors, clergymen, nurses, musicians, journalists and teachers.

This was 64 per cent higher than the 386,000 listed in these occupations 10 years earlier.

In the same period the number of manual workers rose only 12.7 per cent, clerical workers 45 per cent and sales personnel 41 per cent.

BIGGEST GAIN

Biggest numerical gain among professionals was posted by school teachers—to 170,000 from 105,000. From a percentage standpoint the best increase was among professors and college principals—up 105 per cent at 10,000.

The number of physicians and surgeons increased by almost 50 per cent to 20,000. Graduate nurses were up 75 per cent to 62,000 and nurses-in-training 47 per cent to 22,000.

Despite their dominance in teaching and nursing, the role of women in professional ranks showed little change. They made up 43.2 per cent of professionals, just about the same as they did 60 years ago in 1901.

Journalists, including authors, numbered about 14,000 in 1961 for an increase of 81 per cent from 1951 figures. Clergymen were up 17 per cent at 18,000.

GOOD INCREASE

Among engineers, civil engineers expanded at the best clip, showing an increase of 54 per cent to total 11,000. Mechanical engineers rose by 43 per cent to 13,000.

Lawyers jumped 34 per cent to 11,000. Musicians and music teachers had a 40-per-cent growth rate at 12,000.

Sharp employment declines occurred in primary industries during the 1951-61 survey period. Agriculture jobs dropped to 649,000 from 830,000, off almost 20 per cent. The number employed in fishing, hunting and trapping skidded to 37,000 from 53,000, lower by 30 per cent. Logging dropped by 21 per cent, to 80,000 from 101,000.

RETIRING as recording secretary for IWA local union in New Westminster after a record 20 years in office is Rae Eddie. He will continue his work in politics as NDP member of the legislature.

AID TO NEW NATIONS CALLED INSIGNIFICANT

Dark Continent (That's Us) Can Do More

The director of Canada's "peace corps" in Nigeria threw some light on a dark continent on Monday.

North America.

Speaking to a Douglas Rotary club meeting, Walter McLean said Canada's help is minimal in developing nations.

"In terms of manpower—teachers, nurses, doctors, scientists — Canada's contribution to new nations has been small. Our financial help has been insignificant."

Mr. McLean who has spent nearly three years in Nigeria as administrator of CUSO — Canadian University Service Overseas—has a big ambition.

He wants to rodirect Canada's will—from spectator to participant.

LOT OF TALENT

"It will take a lot of talent to supply the needs of new countries" he said, "but once Canada learns the depression is over and there are immense problems outside itself, then it will be able to show its head, heart and hustle."

Mr. McLean invoked U Thant's prescription for the young of affluent nations.

"Soon it will be a part of every man's education to spend two years in a poor foreign land, or in a depressed area of one's own land."

SMALL START

CUSO is a good start, but a small one.

There are 350 Canadian volunteers in 27 countries, 55 of them in Nigeria.

"They are adaptable, enthusiastic but lack expertise," Mr. McLean said. There are not enough of them."

There are more medical doctors in B.C. than there are in all of Nigeria—a country of 56 million people.

"Only one child in a hundred finds a place in a secondary school. Farmers are using plows they were using 3,000 years ago."

Mr. McLean called Nigeria a nation in a hurry.

"But the insane still wander the streets. People live—to use Gandhi's words — in an eternal compulsory 'fast.'"

He suggested Canada, which spends less than one per cent of its budget on aid to poor nations, will soon have to demonstrate its good will to some effect.

"What is the free way of life to a society that doesn't know if it will eat next week?" he asked.

But times are changing, thinks Mr. McLean, who is a Presbyterian minister.

"I find a widespread wish among Canadian students to be involved in the moral, political and economic developments of our time."

Mr. McLean admires the United States Peace Corps.

"It has many advantages over ours. And if it is sometimes unlucky it is perhaps because it is easy to forget a new country is like a young person."

"Young persons and new countries often want, at one and the same time, freedom and support."

Nigeria is, of course, free.

Mr. McLean is going back there after Christmas—because he has been invited.

He is only 29. He has the world in his hands and he wants help to hold it.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES in Campbell River are displayed by determined parents before meeting Highways Minister Gaglardi. They want Island Highway to by-pass built-up section of town.

Mothers Win By-Pass Survey

By TERRY IZZARD

Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi was in the driver's seat Monday.

But behind him were 40 back-seat drivers.

"Around Campbell River" was the prompting from all sides.

The delegation made the trip from the Up-Island city to present a 2,500-name petition calling for an Island Highway bypass around the settled area.

★ ★ ★

Thirty-nine women and one man showed the minister a chart revealing four deaths on the 30-mile stretch of highway between Courtenay and Campbell River since the beginning of September.

Lone man was Ken Bordian, whose daughter Gloria, 7, was killed on the highway earlier this year.

A seven-year-old boy was killed in almost the same spot in October.

Several of the group carried placards calling for a secondary highway.

Also on hand was Comox MLA, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

During the 20-minute discussion, group leader Mrs. Sandra Baikie said the highway is no longer adequate for the flow of traffic.

She suggested a secondary highway could be used by local traffic to avoid the heavy traffic using the highway.

Backing her up was Campbell River Councillor Mrs. Isobel Sanberg and newspaper woman Morgan MacGregor.

After listening to all the arguments, Mr. Gaglardi said he would send a crew to survey a bypass route.

"We will see this thing through right to the point of construction," he said. "After that it's out of my hands."

After the meeting, Mrs. MacGregor said: "I think we've made our point.

"This is even better than we expected."

AMBULANCE GRANT ASKED

DUNCAN — City council was asked Monday night for a $6,000 grant toward purchase of a new ambulance.

The Kiwanis Ambulance Society also asked council to start making it an annual $3,000 grant toward a depreciation fund.

Mayor Jack Dobson referred the request to the finance committee.

Society President George Sinden said it can operate on the revenue from charges.

NO MARGIN

But there is no margin to put aside anything for vehicle replacement.

The only money the society received in this regard was $500 a year from the Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Sinden said he knew there is some criticism of ambulance charges being too high.

However, Duncan charges are the lowest in B.C. except at Lake Cowichan where the society receives grants from the big lumber companies, he said.

No charge was made in cases of hardship, particularly among pensioners.

NORTH COWICHAN NEXT

Mr. Sinden said the society would be making a similar request of North Cowichan council Wednesday.

Harold Allman, president-elect of Duncan Kiwanis Club, said it would cost $12,000 to replace either of the society's two ambulances.

One of these is eight years old, the other five years old.

A $3,000 grant from the city would help operate a $45,000 business run by volunteer citizens, Mr. Allman said.

Fairer Treatment Asked by Business

Downtowners at Duncan Want Parking Program

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN—Discrimination against downtown merchants was charged at a city council meeting here Monday night.

A businessmen's delegation asked for more parking facilities and a fairer parking meter policy.

Spokesman James L. Whittome said a lack of policy is causing "investor hesitancy" in downtown Duncan.

Mr. Whittome said council is aiding and abetting the shift of business away from downtown with a consequent reduction in assessed values.

SHOW LEADERSHIP

A petition, signed by more than 80 downtown property owners, urged council to show leadership in finding more parking.

A program could be financed partly from the meter revenue, and fines.

Norman Gourlay, a delegation member, said the council is leasing Indian land at $4,000 a year as a parking lot and only getting 75 per cent use.

Ald. James Saunders said council would review the question of removing the central mound at the civic parking lot.

He added more parking would be available when Chinatown is cleared to make way for provincial government buildings.

TALKS WEDNESDAY

Mayor Jack Dobson said council opens negotiations Wednesday with the CPR to try to obtain a lease of parking land along the E & N Railroad track.

Delegation member Walter Hudson said the civic parking lot is being subsidized by the business tax and downtown businessmen were over-penalized by council.

Cleve Stenmark said with $12,000 annual meter revenue and $20,000 from the business tax council should have a fund big enough to initiate a parking program.

Mayor Dobson said it is not setting much of an example when Duncan's biggest downtown store (Eaton's) did not provide one parking space of off-street parking for its customers.

He said the businessmen are getting a fair return for their tax dollar but it is time the downtown storekeepers pulled their socks up.

Mayor Dobson said council is working on a new formula of "core" parking and the petition would be referred to the streets committee.

TRAFFIC VICTIM DIES

NANAIMO — Widow Mrs. Florence Davis died in General Hospital here Sunday after being struck by a car Nov. 26.

Police said the 76-year-old woman was hit while walking near an intersection.

$3,000 Bail In Rape Charge

DUNCAN — Sidney John Leblanc, 22, Cowichan Bay, is in jail here charged with rape.

He was remanded Monday for a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Eric Winch.

Bail was set at $3,000.

The charge refers to an alleged incident Sunday involving a married woman.

Accused was remanded on a further charge of common assult arising from a Nov. 20 incident.

Duncan Jaycees Bushed

DUNCAN — Jaycees here have had their fill of logging for this year.

Sunday was the day they decided to log for the Christmas tree they erect annually in downtown Duncan.

A crew set out at 8 a.m. into the Glenora bush which will eventually be a Jaycee-sponsored airstrip.

The first tree they cut broke in half. It was too brittle.

The second also broke in half.

But this time the reason was the wrecker pulling it plunged into a hole and rolled over.

$250 DAMAGE

Jaycee Jack Roozendaal had $250 damage done to his truck.

The Jaycees played it safe the third time.

They took a smaller, 33-foot tree.

But the logging operation lasted six hours.

The smaller tree is now standing downtown gaily decorated with 200 lights.

SPEED BET CONTRIBUTED TO FATALITY

NANAIMO—A speed bet contributed heavily to the death of Mervin Oswald Mark Everett Edgar, 42, of Gabriola Island, coroner Russ Inkster decided Monday.

He also decided no formal inquest would be held into the traffic mishap which occurred Friday night on Gabriola Island.

Mr. Edgar was found pinned beneath his demolished auto about three and a half hours after he failed to round a curve.

Investigation revealed the driver had made a bet he could drive 10 miles between Surf Lodge and Grand Hotel in 10 minutes, the coroner said.

Tractor Driver Impaired

DUNCAN—A man using a tractor Saturday night to pull his car out of the ditch pleaded guilty in city police court Monday to impaired driving.

Garth Vellacott of Duncan was charged with impaired driving while operating the tractor.

He was fined $200 and lost his licence for six months.

BORROWED

Court was told Vellacott borrowed the tractor from a friend after driving his own car into a ditch.

Police arrived while he was trying to pull it out.

Six-Month Term For Break-In Try

COURTENAY — Ernest William Wyatt was sentenced in police court here Monday to six months in jail after he pleaded guilty to an attempted break-in at Bryant's Sport Shop.

He receeived an additional four months last week when sentenced on charges of vandalism and supplying liquor to minors.

Wyatt also received a 12-month indefinite sentence.

He was one of three picked up after a rash of vandalism in the city. The other two are juveniles.

The trio caused $500 damage when they set fire to a box car, damaged tires at two downtown locations and damaged a motel room.

Lifeboat Back On Duty Soon

The Bamfield lifeboat is expected to be back on the job by the end of the week, coast guard officials in Victoria said today.

The craft was out for a month for an overhaul and installation of radar.

Work was done by Philbrook's Boat Works in Sidney.

Proofing of the radar and adjustment of the ship's compass was expected to be completed by Wednesday.

New Trustees Elected At Belmont

Two new trustees were elected Saturday to represent the Belmont area of the Sooke School District.

They are Frederick J. Willway, a retired school principal, and Darvis W. Cook, a plywood mill worker.

They were opposed by Claude MacDonald, a retired accountant.

Earlier Dr. James Portlance was elected by acclamation for a one-year term.

GOP Labels Birchers Extremists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Governor Robert E. Smylie of Idaho says Republican leaders were talking about the John Birch Society when they rejected extremist organizations — but named no names.

Smylie spoke out after a Birch Society leader praised Monday's resolution in which the Republican co-ordinating committee said party members should "reject membership in any radical or extremist organization. . . ."

The Republican policymaking council also urged President Johnson to set up around North Viet Nam the kind of naval quarantine President John F. Kennedy once used against Cuba.

The committee recommended "maximum use of American conventional air and sea power against significant military targets" in the north.

'MAY BECOME ENDLESS'

"Under our present policy in Viet Nam," the co-ordinating committee said, "there is a growing danger that the United States is becoming involved in an endless Korean-type jungle war."

"Since it appears that the major portion of North Vietnamese military supplies arrive by sea," it added, "our first objective should be to impose a Kennedy-type quarantine on North Viet Nam."

Republican resolutions on extremism and Viet Nam were unanimously adopted Monday at a day-long committee session.

John Rousselot, the Birch Society public relations man, said the co-ordinating committee acted wisely in dealing with the question of extremism.

"We're pleased they have taken this stand," he said.

CURRENCY VALUE CUT ALARMS INDONESIANS

JAKARTA (AP)—Merchants closed their stores in the Jakarta market and near panic broke out among the people today after the government announced it is slashing the face value of Indonesia's currency.

Radio Jakarta broadcast repeated appeals to the population to remain calm and to shopkeepers to reopen. Development Minister Chaerful Saleh warned merchants not to raise their prices and threatened to punish those who did.

Sukarno Fires Aide From Executive Group

JAKARTA (Reuters) — President Sukarno has fired Foreign Minister Subandrio as his deputy supreme commander of the supreme operations command, (Koti), it was disclosed today.

President Sukarno is the supreme commander of Koti, the country's highest executive body.

SUBANDRIO
... shakeup victim

Army Commander Maj.-Gen. Suharto told a conference after talks with President Sukarno that the president had appointed three deputies in place of Subandrio.

Appointed were Defence Minister Abdul Haris Nasution as deputy supreme commander in the military field; Sri Sultan Hamengku Buwono as deputy supreme commander in the economic and public field and Ruslan Abdul Gani as deputy supreme commander in the social and political field.

Buwono is minister in charge of the supervisory monetary board and Gani is minister co-ordinator of public relations.

Koti was set up three years ago to direct Indonesia's campaign to wrest West Irian (Dutch New Guiana) from the Dutch.

Suharto said the Koti was reorganized in the wake of the abortive Oct. 1 coup attempt by dropping civilian ministers.

He said the new-style Koti would meet Wednesday night to review the situation in the country.

National Ballet Tour Off

Gang Warfare Breaks Out In Moose Jaw

MOOSE JAW (CP) — One Moose Jaw youth was being held in custody, and three others were free on $12,000 bail Monday after a shooting incident involving youthful gangs in the fashionable North Hill section of Moose Jaw Sunday.

The fracas, which police said appeared to break out after one youth was abducted and assaulted by several others, and went to his gang for help, sent Wayne Lewry, 27, to hospital with undisclosed injuries. Lewry, nephew of Moose Jaw Mayor L. H. Lewry, was said to have been beaten with a wrench.

THREE RAISE BAIL

Charged in the incident were William Garth Matthews, 24, Richard Wayne Spicer, 18, Daniel Stevenson, 18 and Gerald Peters, 17. All but Stevenson were able to raise bail.

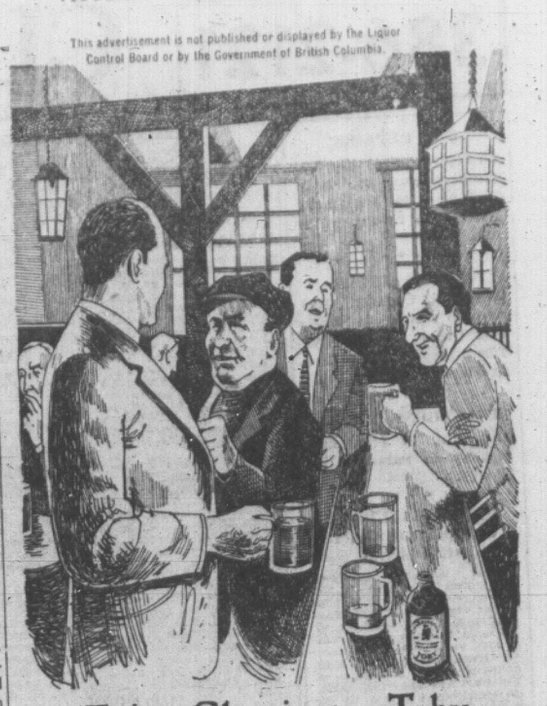

The youths are to appear in magistrate's court in Moose Jaw Dec. 20 to plead to charges of discharging a firearm with intent to endanger the lives of five other youths, also of Moose Jaw.

Judge J. J. Flynn of the Moose Jaw magistrate's court labeled the charges "extremely serious," and said he wanted an early trial for the youths.

Witnesses Told Dead 'Unconscious'

A peak attendance of 1,154 Jehova's Witnesses, from Parksville to Victoria, was recorded at a weekend assembly in Sanscha Hall, Sidney.

Maximum attendance was reached Sunday afternoon. Witnesses gathered to hear a talk by Reginald Arnett, district supervisor, on What Does the Resurrection of the Dead Mean to You and Yours?

"We had expected no more than 900 Witnesses at this meeting," said Pastor Clifford Roberts of Victoria, "and our accommodation facilities were pressed to the limit."

Mr. Arnett said Bible prophecies indicate "the time is at hand for the resurrection of the dead."

"In the new order, there will be no more death and men will live in a peaceful world, enjoying everlasting life and happiness."

Mr. Arnett said the Bible shows that man is a mortal soul; that the human dead are unconscious; that Jehovah Almighty will raise the dead; that the majority of mankind will receive an earthly resurrection, while only a limited number will receive heavenly resurrection.

After the meeting, more than 900 Witnesses attended a dinner in the Sanscha Hall.

Did Accused Break Out Or Break In?

A defence lawyer in a breaking and entering case Monday argued that the evidence only showed there had been a break-out and not a break-in

Kenneth Cox submitted that if his client should have been charged with any offence at all it was aiding and abetting the break-out.

He was defending William Astrope, 627 Bay Street, charged with breaking into Shirley McAree Florists, 2043 Cadboro Bay Road, on Oct. 31.

OPEN WINDOW

Mr. Cox said the evidence showed that a window in the florists was open at the time of the break-in. He cited cases to show that in these circumstances a person may not be charged with breaking into the premises.

Magistrate William Oslter adjourned the case to Thursday when he will rule on Mr Cox's submission.

Police gave evidence of finding one man inside the store who crashed out of it through a window. Astrope was not spotted until afterwards.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

CHANNEL CHIT CHAT: A weekly takeoff on the famous old silent film opus entitled "Perils of Pauline" is a possible television series project for next season . . . Another possible series is a regular two-hour outing based on the old movie "The Plainsman," with an on-the-air tryout scheduled for CBS-TV's Thursday night movie slot on Feb. 10.

Stephen

Veteran comedy actor Fred Clark, who will appear in ABC-TV's new weekly setret agent spoof "The Double Life of Henry Phyfe," which debuts Jan. 13, has a 91-year-old father who just began a course in television writing at Hollywood high school.

The Commonwealth Entertains, a TV special highlighting some of the shows given by varied and talented singers and dancers from 19 British Commonwealth countries, will be presented on CBC-TV, Sunday, Dec. 26. Among them will be the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, the oldest ballet company in Canada. It is almost a Commonwealth Arts Festival in itself, with dancers from several different countries.

CBS-TV's Danny Kaye series will have as its summer replacement next year a weekly hour starring John Gary who will appear in at least nine Kaye programs this season, the first tomorrow night . . . ABC-TV's new half-hour drama series entitled "Code: Blue Light," which debuts Jan. 12 and stars Robert Goulet as a foreign correspondent who infiltrates the Nazi high command in the Second World War, will film numerous sequences on location in Germany.

CBS-TV, which has had good success with its audience-involvement "National Drivers' Test" and "National Citizenship Test," now has scheduled a "National Health Test" for one hour on Jan. 18 . . . The questions for viewers will encompass the general theme of what they know about their health . . . Art Linkletter's House Party, the daytime program, will go color on Jan. 10.

Ed Sullivan will assemble the outstanding circus acts of the world at the Krone Circus Arena in West Germany for two performances and serve as ringmaster. The full-hour program, taped in color, will be seen on Dec. 26 . . . A look at how naturalist-photographers film nature's microscopic plant and animal life is presented on the Walt Disney hour Jan. 2.

With the thrice-weekly night-time soap opera "Peyton Place" falling off in the ratings, the networks have cooled on such future serial ideas as "Sunset Boulevard" and "East of Eden" . . . All of ABC-TV's prime-time schedule will be in color next season. The network is working toward the goal with its four new series, "Batman," "Code: Blue Light," "The Double Life of Henry Phyfe" and "The Baron."

Rich Zambia Caught in Squeeze Of Rhodesia-Negro Battle Lines

By KENNETH L. WHITING

LUSAKA (AP)—Zambia, the richest pauper nation in Africa, stands to suffer as an innocent bystander because of Rhodesia's breakaway white - minority regime, and it feels its African neighbors do not understand its problems.

Zambia is so rich in copper export earnings that it is unable to spend as fast as it would like for development. But few other countries gained independence so lacking in native professional talent, education and social services.

Most other predominantly-Negro African states became independent with deficit budgets, few known resources and dismal prospects.

Several, including Nigeria, had deep tribal cleavages. Others, such as Kenya and Tanganyika, faced white settler problems while still others, including Togo and Dahomey, were too small and poor to support their populations.

Zambia, formerly Northern Rhodesia, had none of these troubles when it became a republic in the British Commonwealth 14 months ago.

It has immense copper ore reserves, plenty of arable land for a comparatively small population and only about 600 white farmers.

It was so rich it could decline to pick up Britain's £10,000,000 ($28,000,000) independence gift. Sources here said Zambia is unlikely to draw on these funds during Britain's present sterling difficulties.

Zambia has between £50,000,000 and £60,000,000 in foreign exchange on hand compared with £150,000,00 for South Africa.

The Lusaka government is trying to use £2,000,000 on development projects each month but lack of skilled manpower and contracting capacity has slowed this spending.

"This country had nothing ahead but success and prosperity until Rhodesia declared independence," said one Western diplomat.

"Now Zambia is jammed in a situation over which it has limited control and everybody else wants to get into the act."

Zambia is a country four times larger than the United Kingdom in Central Africa bounded on the south by Rhodesia, Malawi on the east, Angola on the west, The Congo to the north and northwest, Tanzania to the northeast, Mozambique to the southeast and a strip of Africa in the southwest.

Zambia cannot help getting hurt in a confrontation with Prime Minister Ian Smith's Salisbury regime.

At worst, it could lose vital electricity from the Rhodesian-controlled Kariba Dam which powers the copper industry. Or Rhodesia could cut Zambia's main railway route to the sea.

At best, Zambians can expect rationing of gasoline and other petroleum products and a possible rise in the cost of living as well as a shortage of imported consumer goods.

COMPLICATE DEALINGS

Exchange controls imposed this week have already complicated financial dealings in Zambia.

Ironically, the country which could profit most from British and Zambian sanctions against Rhodesia is South Africa.

More than half of Zambia's annual imports come from Rhodesia. But Rhodesia is a high-cost producer of manufactured goods and Zambia took Rhodesia off Commonwealth preference for imports. This means South Africa now has most items Zambia needs and at better prices than Rhodesia.

Economists here say that if Rhodesia cut the railway, emergency measures such as an airlift and the truck-rail link to Tanzani would be little more than a stopgap. One said:

"The copper mines would be kept pumped dry and consumer goods would reach here but normal economic activity would be crippled."

President Kenneth Kaunda would like nothing better than British troops to enter Rhodesia immediately and put down the rebel government. Barring that, he expects Britain to safeguard electric power for Zambia's copper belt.

Flue Fire Cause Of Sea Disaster?

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard inquiry may be close to a breakthrough in its search for the origin of the disastrous Yarmouth Castle fire.

It took almost three weeks of testimony to get the first glimmer of a possible cause for the fire which struck the Canadian-owned cruise ship, Nov. 13, and left 90 dead. The board of inquiry now is in recess to study 1,807 pages of testimony from 45 witnesses.

Until Lloyd Lamm, a retired electrician and volunteer fireman from Pompano Beach, Fla., gave evidence, the sources of the fire had posed a riddle. Witness after witness pinned its origin to Room 610—a room where there was nothing to burn.

HEARD FLAMES

But Lamm, with a fireman's instinct, did something different from the rest. He left his Room, 634, in search of the smoke origin. He went on past 610, still smelling smoke strongly, and climbed the first flight of the forward stairway to the promenade deck.

There he put his ear to the wall and heard flames crackling inside.

This wall, testimony showed, was located beside the main galley's ventilator trunk or shaft. On the deck below, this shaft passes room 610, where the first actual fire was discovered.

Since the galley was inspected by the chief engineer shortly after smoke was discovered and found normal, Lamm's testimony focuses suspicion on a flue fire that may have gained headway unseen.

Grease or other inflammable substances could have collected in the shaft, although it presumably was cleaned when the ship was in drydock a month before the disaster.

BACKS THEORY

Supporting Lamm's theory was the testimony of the third engineer, who first detected smoke at his post deep in the ship.

But the smoke came from the deck, where it was wafted down by a blower ventilator so sensitive "you could smell the perfume of a lady walking by."

The kitchen ventilator shaft led out on deck between the stack and the bridge and forward of the engine-room ventilator pipes, which faced forward.

Hence, if the fire started in the shaft and smoke trailed back along the deck unseen in the darkness, the engine-room vents may have been the first to pick up the odor.

The board is expected to pursue this theory when it resumes the hearing, possibly late this week.

The Yarmouth Castle, owned by Canadian Jules Sokoloff but registered in Panama, burned and sank while en route to Nassau from Miami, Fla. Two Canadians were among those who died.

Rhodesia Feels Pinch Of Tobacco Sanctions

SALISBURY (Reuters) — The cabinet met today with the growing trade sanctions against Rhodesia's breakaway regime expected to be the main talking point.

An incident-free night in the capital reduced fears that Sunday night's gasoline bomb attacks on white persons' homes might herald an organized and widespread arson campaign.

The attacks on four houses in the white suburbs were the first since Rhodesia seized independence a month ago.

Police were still searching for the bomb-throwers, who defied the mandatory death sentences for this offence.

"Molotov cocktail" and arson attacks, usually isolated, have occurred in various parts of Rhodesia in recent years.

On the eve of the cabinet meeting, a leading Rhodesian industrialist warned that Britain is determined to frustrate all Rhodesian efforts to sell tobacco.

J. C. Graylin, chairman of the Tobacco Export Promotion Council, returned from a trip to Britain Monday.

"I think tobacco will be difficult this year," he told reporters.

He said businessmen in most countries did not want to stop buying Rhodesian tobacco but had agreed to join in sanctions under pressure from Britain.

Tobacco accounted for 30 per cent of Rhodesia's total exports last year.

DENY ALLEGATIONS

In another development, Rhodesian lawyers have denied reported allegations by the International Commission of Jursits that recent developments threaten their independence.

Sunday newspapers here quoted the commission as saying that political pressure on lawyers in Rhodesia and South Africa might mean few would be willing to represent opponents of the two governments, particularly African nationalists.

A Rhodesian Bar Council statement said lawyers had a duty to represent anybody by whom they were properly instructed and the political views of accused people would not influence them.

NATO Pact With Spain 'Unlikely'

MADRID (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Rusk and Gen. Francisco Franco probably will discuss defence during Rusk's short visit to Madrid Dec. 16.

But qualified observers here said discussions are unlikely to change the status of Spain's link with the Western defence system through its 12-year military pact with the United States.

"Spain certainly would like to be included in NATO," said one NATO diplomat here. "Some members of NATO would welcome such a move, holding high the value of Spain's geographical position as well as its possible military contribution. But firm opposition from some NATO members, including The Netherlands and Denmark make such a development unlikely at this time."

Britain's position on such a move was unclear here in view of the recent Spanish - British dispute over the future of Gibraltar.

MAIL GOES SLOW

Cheap - rate Christmas mail takes two months to reach Australia from the eastern United States.

Much-Travelled Naval Gun Goes to Museum

HALIFAX (CP)—A naval gun which saw service on Royal Navy and Royal Canadian Navy ships during two world wars has been presented to the Maritime Museum here by the RCMP marine division.

A Hotchkiss three - pounder, it was installed originally on the British cruiser Antrim in 1903. When the cruiser was scrapped in 1921, the gun was presented to the Canadian navy.

During the Second World War, it was placed on a navy Fairmile anti - submarine vessel based on the east coast.

In 1947 the navy presented the gun to the RCMP and it was installed on the patrol vessel Irvine. When the Irvine was retired from coastal patrol duties, the gun was turned over to the museum.

. . . HOLDUP

'This is some damn gag',' said the grocer.

"The stick-up didn't bother me until after he was gone."

The thief ripped the telephone out of its wall jack and told Mr. Archer: "Don't phone the cops for two or three minutes."

But the storekeeper went to another phone in the back and called Saanich police immediately as the bandit fled on foot.

He was described as being in his mid-20s, about six feet tall and 190 pounds. He wore a leather jacket with a zipper front.

Mr. Archer and his partner, Len Thors, 1287 Derby Rd., have operated the store for 18 months.

Arab Action Postponed

CAIRO (AP) — Al Ahram, a newspaper that usually reflects official thinking, said today the United Arab Republic has postponed its announcement of a break with Britain over Rhodesia.

The announcement was to have been made Wednesday in accordance with the Dec. 3 decision of the Organization of African Unity that its 35 members sever ties with Britain unless the British crushed the white regime in Rhodesia by then.

U.K. POLICE CHARGED WITH 'NIGGER HUNTING'

LONDON (Reuters)—London police have been charged with "nigger-hunting" and other forms of victimizing colored immigrants in a report made public Monday by an organization representing West Indian residents here.

The London Standing Conference of West Indian Associations said it plans to send the report to British Home Secretary Sir Frank Soskice.

It alleges police constables and sergeants, often in plainclothes and using their own cars, conduct "nigger-hunting expeditions" without the knowledge of their superiors. The report is allegedly based on occurrences in the London borough of Lambeth, which has a large West Indian population.

Report suggested colored policemen should be added to the London force and urged an exchange of policemen between Britain and Commonwealth countries.

DOG PSYCHOLOGY DOES TRICK

Brain-Washed Ygor Forgets About Cat

By DIAL TORGERSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A cat raced across the sidewalk in front of D'Ors Prince Ygor, Barbara Singleton's platinum-blonde Russian wolfhound.

Ygor started to bolt after the cat. Miss Singleton, a television model, clinked a chain in her hand and spoke: "Come, Ygor."

Ygor halted as if thunderstruck. "Heel!" said Miss Singleton. Ygor trotted obediently to her side and they walked on.

Ygor has never been to dog-training school. But like 300 other elite canines, Ygor has had psychotherapy. He was a patient of Dr. Dare Miller, who describes himself as Los Angles' only dog psychologist.

Dr. Miller brainwashes the dogs, then shapes their will with conditioned response.

TAKES FIVE MINUTES

"In five minutes, said Dr. Miller, 38, "I can teach a strange dog to come to me on command."

A chain, the sort Barbara Singleton clinked to halt Ygor, does the trick. The chain is made of a special bronze-phosphorous alloy. Hanging on it is a tiny tuning fork. Explained Dr. Miller:

"The fork and the chain when rattled, vibrate at 34,000 cycles per second, in the uppermost range of a dog's hearing. It doesn't hurt his ears; it just interrupts anything the dog is thinking.

"If the dog is going to do something bad, it changes his mind.

"If you give the dog a command simultaneously with the clink of the chain, the command is impressed in the dog's thinking, and on his memory.

"By repeating the process, the dog can eventually be taught to respond to the owner's word alone, without the chain."

New Hearing Ordered For Quebec Member

OTTAWA (CP)—Gerald Martineau, a member of the Quebec legislative council, must stand trial for a second time on 11 influence-peddling charges involving $35,800, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled today.

Mr. Martineau, treasurer of the Union Nationale from 1944 to 1960, was acquitted of the charges in November, 1964, by Mr. Justice Albert Dumontier of the Quebec Superior Court.

He was charged under Section 102 of the Criminal Code with allegedly arranging commissions for Union Nationale friends or supporters of the party on Quebec government purchases from Sico Paints Ltd.

The Quebec Court of Appeal quashed the acquittal last May 31 and ordered a new trial.

Mr Martineau appealed to the Supreme Court, asking that it restore the judgment of the trial judge.

In Tuesday's judgment written by Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux and concurred in by the other four judges who heard the appeal, the Supreme Court said it agreed with the Quebec Appeal Court that the reasons for acquittal were ill-founded.

In acquitting Mr. Martineau, Judge Dumontier held that Mr Martineau was not a public official within the meaning of Section 102 of the Criminal Code.

Coverage Extended By MSA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dental surgery will be covered by the benefits of the Medical Services Association (MSA) beginning Jan. 1.

President Dr. D. S. Munroe said at the annual meeting Monday that services of osteopathic physicians will also be included in MSA coverage.

Dr. Munroe said the doctor-owned association does not plan to enter the field of dentistry, but rather cover the various forms of surgery.

In his report, Dr. Munroe said administrative expenses reached a record low of 5.23 per cent during the last year. Income was 2½ per cent higher than expenditures, he said.

The association covers one-third of the B.C. population.

Director R. F. B. Taylor said the MSA fund would provide four to five months' protection if revenue was suddenly cut off.

He made the comment in answer to claims by two labor leaders that the $7,535,000 fund is excessive.

The meeting turned down a motion that benefits include physiotherapy, chiropractic treatment and out-patient nursing. The motion was rejected because it was not presented in writing 30 days prior to the meeting.

During the year membership increased by 43,977 to 614,602. Utilization decreased.

Advanced Degree From Oregon For Uvic Man

An assistant professor at the University of Victoria has recently received an advanced degree from an American university.

James F. Hendrickson, 1791 Feltham, received his doctor of philosophy in history from the University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore.

A native of Camrose, Alta., Dr. Hendrickson received his BA from the University of Saskatchewan and his B.Ed. from the University of Alberta in Edmonton.

He took his masters degree at Oregon and has been on the Uvic faculty for two years.

Topic of his Ph.D. thesis was Joseph Lane, an Oregon politician who was first governor of the territory, a U.S. Congressional representative and ran as a candidate for vice-president against Abraham Lincoln.

Dr. Hendrickson's specialty is U.S. history, and he teaches courses on 20th century history and the American West at Uvic.

'SPY OPERATIONS'

Military Role Seen For Soviet Trawlers

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union is causing concern among Western defence organizations by using more and more of its merchant ships in a naval role, says Jane's Fighting Ships.

It says the United States, however, is still the world's greatest sea power and predicted that the Royal Navy, once the ruler of the waves, will cease to exist except as a minor force unless new vessels are built soon.

Japan is described as a resurgent sea power in the Far East.

The authoritative British publication on the world's navies singles out Soviet trawlers, frequently accused by the West of carrying out spy operations off shore. It says the "ubiquitous" Russian fishing boats "seem to appear on every trade route and on every scene of naval activity."

SHIPPING FLEET

The newly published 1965-66 edition, which came out Monday, says:

"There is no doubt that the U.S.S.R. regards her merchant shipping fleet not only as an essential element of the national economy at all times, but as a vital fourth arm of defence in emergencies. . . .

"It is not only the growth of Soviet merchant shipping which is of some concern to the principal (maritime) powers. The chiefs of the NATO, SEATO and CENTO (Western defence) organizations are tending to think not specifically about the Soviet naval forces proper, but broadly about all the U.S.S.R.'s sea vehicles. . . ."

Jane's says the Soviet Navy had concentrated recently on production of missile-firing destroyers, anti-submarine frigates and nuclear-powered submarines.

It says the Soviet naval strength now is estimated at 22 cruisers, 150 destroyers, 35 nuclear powered submarines, 390 conventionally powered submarines, 100 frigates and 700 minesweepers.

Smaller Soviet craft include 250 escort and patrol vessels, 350 motor torpedo boats, 550 motor gunboats, 130 landing craft, 300 auxiliaries and 200 service vessels.

Christmas Music Entertains 500 In United Church

More than 500 men, women and children attended a performance of the Christmas music from Handel's Messiah in Metropolitan United Church Sunday night.

The music was presented by the Sanctuary Choir, conducted by Frank Tupman, with Eric Boothroyd at the organ. Soloists were Dawn Benoit, soprano; Elfie Robinson, contralto; Alan Husband, bass, and Rob Greenwood, tenor.

The chorus was augmented by members of the Arion Male Voice Choir of Victoria.

Street Roller Considered For Oak Bay

Oak Bay works committee Monday night recommended purchase of a small street roller for $2,992.

The successful bid was submitted by Air Equipment Services Ltd. of Vancouver.

The Vancouver firm's bid was the third highest.

The firm which submitted the lowest bid would not provide a demonstrator model and the second-lowest bidder's machine did not comply with specifications.

Committee also agreed in principle to purchase another van or jeep for the works department.

Epidemic Kills Eight

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Eight children have died in an epidemic now under control in the salt works community of Guerrero Negro, 350 miles south of Tijuana, an official said Monday. Another 72 children have been treated for the intestinal infections since Dec. 3. Contaminated canned milk may have caused the epidemic, a doctor said.

Persistent Hiccups Can Be Dangerous

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

A while ago, Dr. J. D. Trapp of Vanderbilt University Hospital told of a most interesting case in which persistent hiccups proved to be due to a wisp of hair pressing on the eardrum! As soon as a lump of earwax, together with the bit of hair, were washed out, the hiccups stopped. But that was probably a very rare cause for hiccups.

Alvarez

Hiccups come often times when reverse waves are coming up the bowel and stomach, to keep beating against the muscle of the midriff that separates the chest cavity from the abdominal cavity. Some children, when they laugh uproariously, will end up in an attack of hiccups—which generally can be stopped within a minute by sipping water. As we all know, babies often have hiccups after nursing a little longer than necessary. Even infants just born can hiccup. Also, a person who is drunk is likely to hiccup.

In some cases in which the person is very ill, perhaps with some serious kidney damage or heart damage, the presence of persistent hiccups can be a bad sign. Severe hiccups can follow an abdominal operation, and they can then be very painful—every hiccup causing a jab of pain in the operative wound.

A serious and long-lasting hiccup can be due to an encephalitis, or brain fever; or it can be due perhaps to a little stroke, a brain tumor, or a severe influenza. Dr. V. L. Stotka reported the case of a man with a brain tumor whose hiccup lasted four months! In many cases of severe hiccups, no one ever knows what produced it. There can also be epidemics of hiccups in a city. These may have been epidemics of encephalitis or a virus infection. What may happen in this case is that the virus irritates the phrenic nerve that runs from the neck to the diaphragm.

Pregnant women sometimes get hiccups, due probably to the fact that as their womb enlarges, the extra chemical activity in their pelvis causes irritation of the lower part of the bowel, and with this, waves run upward toward the mouth. This same mechanism often causes a pregnant woman to be nauseated, or to vomit or to get heartburn or regurgitation of food into the throat.

There are many folk-ways of stopping hiccups, such as wetting the forefinger of the right hand with saliva and crossing the front of the left shoe three times, while saying the Lord's Prayer backwards. The cure here depends on the mental preoccupation. Once when I was a boy and had hiccups that would not stop with sipping water, a wise Scottish woman who was present in my home at the time told me she was going to tell my mother about some mischief she had caught me in. I got so concerned trying to figure out what this could be that my hiccups went.

I have seen people get over hiccups by holding their breath while drinking from the far side of a glass of water. One can also suck ice or a lump of sugar and the act of swallowing continually may turn the waves around so that they are going down, as they should.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR MR. MILLER: For the last two years running we have had a Christmas season problem. Taffy, our blond cocker, doesn't like Santa Claus! She bit one Santa Claus last year, and one the year before, but in different places. We don't know whether Taffy sees red or what, but we would like to know what to do before it happens again.

—A.R.

DEAR A.R.: At this late date, rehabilitating Taffy is out of the question, at least for this year. If Santa is scheduled for a visit—or rather, when—just be sure Taffy isn't allowed to come close enough to vent her shocking hostility on that lovable character.

★ ★ ★

DEAR MR. MILLER: As per your recommendations, we started looking for our Christmas puppy early. Well, we found her. A roly-poly little Norwegian Elkhound, just 10 weeks old. The trouble is, she was such a doll we couldn't bear to leave her, so we had that part of our Christmas in advance. We want to know if we can feed Spunky as much as she wants? She is a tremendous eater, but she always has normal bowels, so we thought it should be all right. We love her chubby shape and the way she waddles when she walks.—F.S.

DEAR F.E.: Even though fat babies are adorable, the added weight they carry is detrimental . . . at least as far as puppies are concerned. The baby blubber puts added strain on the joints and related structures and may contribute to hip dysplasia or other pathological conditions. Undoubtedly, Spunky is being vaccinated about now (she certainly should be), so the next trip in ask her doctor for specific advice on her feeding schedule. He would be interested in watching that waddle, too, for it could indicate a potential orthopedic problem.

★ ★ ★

DEAR MR. MILLER: I'm getting pretty mad at my fish but I don't know what to do about it. I went to a lot of work to plant some plants in the aquarium and ever since my mollies and playts have been chewing them to bits. I thought they would feel more at home with plants to swim around but this all the thanks I get. So now what do I do?—F.F.

DEAR F.F.: Greenery for scenery is less important to a fish like the molly than greenery for food. It needs "salads" as a vital part of its daily diet. Boiled spinach or other plant-saving substitutes will undoubtedly be gratefully gobbled, and your miniature underwater forest will be preserved.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Diplomat, my cat, gets tapeworms all the time from catching rodents. People can't believe he could have tapeworms because he is so fat. Yet I see the tapeworm segments in his stool unless the doctor worms him quite often. I have often wondered about this myself. How can a cat stay fat with these worms?

DEAR D. L.: As noted, most people think of a tapeworm-infested animal as one who is thin or even emaciated. Not necessarily. In fact, the tapeworm-infested animal often eats more than enough to supply his own needs and those of the parasites as well. The eager eater, then, may actually become obese and still be carrying tapeworms in his intestine. Of course, many thin, fussy eaters harbor tapeworms too. (They suffer most from these parasites). These animals not only lose weight but are the ones most likely to show a dull coat, too. In these animals, the worms may be responsible for everything from poor appetite and weight loss to diarrhea and an irascible disposition.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: I recently read where a man used mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration to save his dog. Is this sanitary?

G. M.

DEAR G. M.: Not necessarily. However, a dog's mouth is less likely to carry disease organisms dangerous to humans than is the mouth of another human. (And, obviously, mouth-to-mouth contact among humans frequently occurs for less imperative reasons.)

★ ★ ★

If you have a budgie or other psittacine (parrot-like) bird, it will want to join in the holiday festivities. But unusual seasonal activities bring additional potential dangers worth considering. The coming of many house guests means a bird is more likely to escape accidentally, be caught in a door, stepped on or sat on. More food and drink provide greater opportunity for the bird to be dunked, steamed, stuffed, or stoned. A Christmas tree might seem an appropriate roost, but it can be a veritable death trap for a bird which can easily became snared or poisoned (by nibbling on ornaments or the tree itself). Unless you have the time for close supervision, keep your bird caged for Christmas so it will be around to celebrate a Happy New Year.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to own a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Neil Nevins, age 11, of Greencastle, Ind., for his question:

What exactly is buckwheat?

Buckwheat pancakes and buckwheat honey rate high on a list of the world's favorite foods. A wintry weekend morning is the time to remember them. Any 12-year-old can play chef and fix a batch of nut brown hotcakes for the family. Serve with gobs of butter and honey or maple syrup.

Most people think that buckwheat is a cereal to be listed with oats, barley, wheat and rye. The true cereals are grasses. Buckwheat is a relative of the rhubarb and a member of the plant family Polygonacae. We borrowed our name for it from the Germans, who call it beech-wheat because its three-sided seeds are shaped like the seeds of the beech tree.

There is a lot to say about buckwheat and all of it good. The plant got its start in Asia, where its relatives still grow wild among the weeds. The Chinese were perhaps the first to recognize its fine qualities and they began to cultivate it ages ago. From Asia it was introduced into Europe and the early settlers brought buckwheat seeds when they came to the New World.

Flour Made From Seeds

A field of buckwheat grows fast and needs little care. It is not choosy about soil and thrives were top soil is eroded. Its fast-spreading foliage shuts out the sun and crowds out weeds. Buckwheat may be sown to prevent soil erosion or the young crop may be plowed under to create mulch to enrich old soil. It may be sown to revitalize worn, old soil or to smother the weeds in patches of newly-cleared land. The sturdy crop, however, tends to sulk in intense heat or in rough, windy weather.

The buckwheat plant is a handsome bush about three feet high. Its sizable leaves are shaped like graceful hearts, and its stems are topped with flat clusters of fragrant flowers, very popular with bees, who gorge on its sweet abundant nectar to create a wondrous stuff called buckwheat honey. The seeds are pounded into buckwheat flour for mealy brown pancakes. In Europe, they also make buckwheat bread and puddings, soups and cakes and beer.

Another type of buckwheat is grown as fodder and this crop now yields a valuable medical drug.

Some of our buckwheat is grown in the Midwest, but most of it comes from the south. The carefree crop yields honey and flour and acts as both a soil builder and a soil saver. Buckwheat also is a healing plant. Its leaves produce rutin, a drug used to treat weakened capillaries and high blood pressure.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Curt Walker, age 12, of Visalia, Calif., for his question:

How was petroleum first found?

Here and there oil deposits near the surface seeps out into the air. As a rule, they become pools of pitch or asphalt. The ancient Egyptians used pitch to mummify their dead, and a pitch-burning candle was set in the floating cradle of the baby Moses. Asphalt was used around 600 B. C. to pave the streets of old Babylon.

In the New World, the Indians used surface petroleum deposits to glue tiles together, as fuel oil and also as medicine. Kit Carson once sold petroleum as a medicine. It has been used in many ways by many people since ancient days, but the modern petroleum industry began soon after 1852, when the tacky stuff was found to yield burnable kerosene.

GEMINI ILLUSION

Space 'Crash' Scares Aussies

HOUSTON (AP)—Bearded and beginning to itch, astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell raced on in their record-busting space flight today after giving Carnarvon, Australia, a few scary moments.

Both the Gemini 7 spacecraft and the five-year-old Echo II satellite showed up in the skies over Carnarvon at the same time, and seemed to be converging on a collision course.

As residents gasped at the sight, the two vehicles appeared to collide, but the North American Air Defence Command at Colorado Springs, Colo., said they actually were in orbits 434 miles apart.

If they had been at the same altitude, "they certainly would have collided," said Ed Dunbar, a member of the American flight control team at Carnarvon.

Gemini 7 entered its 147th orbit at 8:30 a.m. EST.

GRIPE ABOUT FOOD

Borman and Lovell woke up this morning scratching and griping about the food.

"We're starting to itch a little — getting kinda crummy," Borman reported.

Astronauts in flight are not permitted to shave because of the danger that whiskers floating in the weightlessness of the spacecraft might get into its delicate instruments and cause damage.

Lovell told the Houston tracking station that "this 'chicken with gravy' should be labelled 'gravy with chicken.'"

"They woke up full of beans," commented flight director John D. Hodge of the overnight shift at Houston.

In the 10th day of the demanding 14-day mission, Borman said "Jim and I have been noticing the days seem to be lengthening a little."

Travelling at five miles a second, Gemini 7 kept tuned in with preparations to launch Gemini 6 from Cape Kennedy. The firing, scheduled for Wednesday, would culminate with the first rendezvous of orbiting space ships.

The Gemini 6 liftoff was set for 8:37 a.m. EST (5:37 a.m. PST). The two ships were expected to begin flying in a unique "nose to nose" formation about 5½ hours later.

If the space rendezvous comes off as planned the Gemini 6 astronauts will sleep in their spacecraft Wednesday night and splash down Thursday. The Gemini 7 spacemen will come down Saturday.

Borman and Lovell spotted a fiery run by the world's most powerful rocket sled today and the blazing reentry of a minuteman "instant ICBM" over the mid-Pacific.

On their 148th trip around earth, Gemini 7 pilots looked down at Holloman air force base, N.M., and saw the 100,000-pound-thrust rocket sled churn up smoke and water 185 miles below. "We can't see much," Bormann admitted.

"We saw a little smoke, that's about all. We had a beautiful view, though."

Spaceship Landing Tests Set

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union will carry out tests of "a variant of a system of landing space vehicles" between Dec. 16 and June 1 next year, the Soviet news agency Tass announced today.

Tass said some elements of the booster-rockets will fall into the Pacific and issued a list of co-ordinates of the locations. The locations were roughly midway between Hawaii and the Aluetian Islands.

The Soviets have issued similar warnings in the past when preparing for rocket flights but never have tested space vehicles with a water landing. In previous space flights, the Soviets have always brought their space vehicles down on land.

The United States in every orbital flight has brought its space vehicles to a safe landing on the water through use of parachutes and a space vehicle with floats. One sank after the pilot, Virgil Grisson, was rescued.

Urged to Supply Medics, Teachers

PARIS (CP)—The United States today asked its North Atlantic allies to send doctors, engineers and teachers to South Viet Nam, American sources reported.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, in a review of the Viet Nam conflict, told the NATO council of ministers there is room for more troops in South Viet Nam. But the sources said that he did not ask the NATO nations to supply them.

In calling for greater allied understanding and support of the American effort in Viet Nam, Rusk warned that the fate of the North Atlantic alliance might be decided on the distant battlefields there.

He told the annual meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's foreign, finance and defence ministers that a Communist success in Viet Nam might lead to new Communist adventures elsewhere.

SUPPORTED BY BRITAIN

British Defence Minister Denis Healey, deputizing for ailing Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, supported Rusk's argument.

Rusk said U.S. commitments in various parts of the world to halt the spread of communism represent a "main pillar of peace."

While Southeast Asia is a long way from the frontiers of Europe, he continued, the United States cannot and will not choose between various commitments. He implied that to do so would destroy the credibility of NATO itself as a defensive shield for the Western world.

READY TO TALK PEACE

On the Viet Nam conflict, Rusk called it a dangerous issue that is clouding U.S. relations with Communist countries.

He reiterated the U.S. desire to enter into peace negotiations on Viet Nam without any preconditions. A ceasefire could come before a peace conference was convened, or it could be the first order of business of such a conference.

Rusk said the 1954 Geneva agreements on Indochina—Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia—and the 1962 Geneva conference making and keeping Laos neutral could serve as an adequate basis for peace in Southeast Asia.

In a long account of Western efforts to try to get the Viet Nam problem from the battlefield to the conference table, Rusk said it still is the U.S. impression that China is against peace talks.

Sir Paul Gore-Booth, permanent undersecretary of the British foreign office, said Foreign Secretary Stewart found the Russians still had some interest in negotiating a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

WON'T PERMIT VETO

Rusk and West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder warned that the Western powers—in their desire to get a nuclear non-proliferation treaty

U.S. LINKS AFFIRMED BY DE GAULLE

He told a nationwide television audience he deplores attacks labelling him as anti-American.

Tanzania Cutting Links With U.K. on Rhodesia

RHODESIANS TO FACE OIL BOYCOTT

LONDON (UPI) — Britain and the United States will shortly announce oil sanctions against Rhodesia, informed sources reported tonight.

The sources said the announcement was expected to come when the UN security council meets in New York later today to debate what to do about the breakaway African colony and rebel Premier Ian Smith.

The UN debate coincides with a day of intensive consultations by British Prime Minister Harold Wilson in the face of increasing African pressure to suppress the Smith Rhodesian rebellion immediately or face a break off of relations by many African states.

LONDON (CP)—The Tanzanian high commission took steps today to close down even as British and Commonwealth diplomats were trying to avert an open rift in the Commonwealth because of the Rhodesia crisis.

A Tanzanian spokesman said the East African country's office in London would close Thursday and High Commissioner C. P. Ngaiza would return to Dar es Salaam next Monday.

Tanzania was the only one of the nine African Commonwealth governments firmly committed today to a Dec. 3 ultimatum of the Organization of African Unity to break relations with Britain if the rebel white-minority regime in Rhodesia has not been ousted by Wednesday.

Ghana has said it would carry out terms of the 36-nation African resolution. But a spokesman of the Ghana high commission here declined today to say whether the office would close.

Fog in London delayed the arrival of Nigeria's prime minister, Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, who flew to Britain to press plans for an emergency meeting of Commonwealth heads of government next month in Lagos.

Nigeria, in common with most other African states, has had second thoughts about breaking relations with Britain. Balewa has proposed instead the Lagos meeting to discuss how the Rhodesian rebel regime could be "speedily and effectively brought to an end."

Balewa's plane was diverted to Manchester and landed there just before 1 p.m.—about the time he was originally due to confer with Prime Minister Wilson in London.

The Nigerian leader also is scheduled to meet with Commonwealth Secretary - General Arnold Smith of Canada, who would play a major part in organizing any Lagos meeting. Smith has been engaged in a continuing round of conferences with British and Commonwealth officials here in an effort to ease strained relations.

African leaders have been pressing Britain to take tougher action to topple the Rhodesian rebels, including military action to protect the Kariba Dam and power station on the Rhodesia-Zambia border. One idea circulated here is for a white Commonwealth force to move in and guard the Kariba plant on the Rhodesian side of the Zambesi River.

Mail Service Suspended

NAIROBI (Reuters) — Kenya is suspending all post office telecommunications with Rhodesia, a post office spokesman said today.

Tanzania and Uganda, which run joint postal services with Kenya, are expected to follow suit.

Russian Bar

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet government has assured Britain it will stop buying tobacco from Rhodesia, reliable sources said today.

The assurance, at diplomatic level, is the first practical sign of Soviet support for British sanctions against the breakaway regime of Ian Smith in Rhodesia.

Western statistics show Russia bought tobacco worth $700,000 from Rhodesia last year.

UN Peace Negotiation System Urged as Substitute for Force

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg called Tuesday for creation of a comprehensive United Nations peace service that would provide the world with an adequate substitute for all armed conflict.

He made the proposal in a speech to the UN General Assembly's special political committee in support of a British resolution to launch a UN study on how to speed the peaceful settlement of disputes.

Goldberg made clear that he regarded the Viet Nam conflict and all others in which the United States might be involved as subject to peaceful settlement.

He said the U.S. is proposing "nothing less than the creation of a United Nations peace service—a flexible set of procedures so efficient and so comprehensive that it will provide an adequate substitute for armed conflict."

He said the UN peace service should include improvements in present procedures to meet three main needs:

—Assurance of greater availability of qualified persons for tasks of peaceful settlement.

—The provision of additional incentives for governments to resort to peaceful settlements.

—Incorporation of new approaches to dispute settlements whose utility has been demonstrated by recent experience.

MONEY GOES TO CHILDREN OF ASIA

This Story Is Christmas Gift For Seven Sharing Youngsters

LITTLE GIRLS like this one from a hungry village of India become happy and well-fed with help from the Unitarian Service Committee, aided by the Times-sponsored Children of Asia fund. Milk, barley and biscuits bought with Canadian dollars help feed thousands of hungry children overseas each year.

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

For seven cousins who live spread out across Canada and the United States, Christmas means more than just gifts and goodies for themselves.

It means giving up something, and knowing that because they did, needy children overseas are sharing their happiness.

The seven cousins (Carol-Ann, David, Janet, Gregg, Scott, Patricia and Pamella) have an aunt, a very special one, who lives in Victoria.

Every year she makes a donation, in their name, to the Times-sponsored Unitarian Service Committee Chrsitmas fund.

It all began 12 years ago, when Carol-Ann was only four and her brother, David, just a baby.

Then their aunt gave $10 to the USC fund under the names of her niece and nephew who live in Seattle.

This year her contribution was $25, and the youngsters named included two brothers who live in Minneapolis, Minn., and the babies of the family, five-year-old twins Patricia and Pamella.

Their aunt remains anonymous, but each year, the Times clipping with their story in it is sent to the children as their Christmas gift.

This year their aunt writes: "The desire to share at Christmas is now a vital and happy experience and the children gladly offer this part of their Christmas in lieu of gifts from their Victoria aunt."

She adds a hint that might be adopted by other Victorians.

"Our minister suggested to the congregation that we leave the collection can on our dining table till Christmas—a mute reminder of hungry children".

Donations may be sent care of this newspaper, and cheques are made payable to the Children of Asia Fund.

AGREEMENT SEEN IN MID-JANUARY

Lucrative U.S. Air Routes Open to Canada

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canadian airlines will be able to fly into lucrative new United States areas under a proposed new Canada-United States agreement to be signed in mid-January, it was learned today.

Negotiations on the agreement have dragged on for months. Earlier this year the Americans said flatly they would not be interested in resuming negotiations if Canadians insisted on the Winnipeg to Minneapolis and Chicago run.

The negotiations were resumed this month. Indications are that the Canadian government while still declaring interest in Winnipeg southward run, have eased up somwhat on that insistence in the interests of finally getting a bilateral agreement.

Canada has battled for years to get more than just border-hops for Canadian airlines. The Canadians wanted to crack some of the more lucartive runs in the United States.

Air Canada is understood to be in line for permission to fly from Montreal to Toronto and directly to Los Angeles. Under existing agreements passengers from Montreal and Toronto have to change planes at Chicago.

DIRECT ROUTES

Air Canada will be also allowed to fly directly to Miami from Canadian points. This is a lucrative run that the Canadian authorities have been striving to get for years. At present Canadians on Air Canada can fly only to Tampa, Florida and must change to American lines to fly to Miami.

Canadian Pacific Airlines would be permitted to fly from Vancouver to San Francisco under the proposed agreement, it is understood. But in return United Airlines would fly directly from Montreal to Chicago.

Government air authorities here refused to comment on reports that the new agreement would be signed in mid-January. However it was learned from their well-informed sources that the negotiations now under way again on an official level are close to completion with the signing expected about the time Parliament will open, Jan. 18.

One source said that the fact that the negotiations had been resumed was a clear indication that Canada had backed away on its insistence that the Winnipeg south run must be agreed to by the Americans or it would be "no deal."

18 VOTES ON SHY SIDE FOR FLUORIDES BALLOT

An official count of Oak Bay's fluoridation ballots completed today left the total of "yes" votes only 18 short of the needed 60 per cent majority.

New totals are 3,141 to 2,125 in favor of the chemical being added to the municipality's water supply.

The recount boosted the favorable percentage up one per cent to 59.646.

First count Saturday night revealed a "yes" vote of 3,083 to 2,125 or 58.6 per cent.

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1965—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

There are in this city, I suppose, fathers who actually like getting ties, slippers and pigskin-garnished corkscrews for Christmas. However, if you really want to make the old dog sit up and bark, a less casual approach is necessary.

Watch him. Stalk him. Test him with leading questions, and be alert for such hints as he may drop. Even more important, try to develop a sixth sense which will pick up the unwitting clues that point to his real wants.

Old Faithful, let us suppose, is parcel-toting for his dear ones on an evening shopping bout. Nobody pays much attention to him until, somewhere between women's hosiery and toyland, he turns up missing.

Presently he's spotted over in sporting goods, where he stands thoughtfully weighing a quarter-pound spool of nylon monofilament salmon line in his paw.

When observed, the quiet fellow with the flat wallet is likely to drop the spool as if it had singed his fingers, and if pressed, mumble that he was just studying the label.

Uh huh? Well, there's a fine fat clue for you, and if in doubt when you later buy him a spool of the stuff, ask for 20 pound test. It will cost about as much as a middle-of-the-road necktie, and probably a heck of a lot less than the duded-up corkscrew.

★ ★ ★

So much for Dad. We will now turn to another person who tends to anesthetize her presonal gimmees, and can take delight over a bargain bottle of cologne or a pair of oven mitts with almost 100 per cent conviction.

When shopping for wives, I'm not sure the best system isn't to ask the little creatures what they'd like, buy it no matter how un-Christmasy it may seem, then add the most expensive party sheers you can manage. For pete's sake, though, get her size right, or if err you must, let it be on the side of smallness.

Perfume? At your own risk.

This advice is hard to accept . . . if fact I know one wife who, year after year, put in timidly on each gift-giving occasion for a new meat grinder, while her perfume-happy husband persisted in the view that she ought just to go out and buy one.

As a result, she didn't get her heart's desire until her sensible son grew up, and presented her with a duplicate of the toothless old shower present she couldn't bear to part with.

Thus forced, she spent a happy hour running everything save the cat's tail through her new chopper.

So, surprise your wife with what you will, but if she has let it be known that she'd like no-nonsense mule-skin gardening gloves and a plastic lined, non-stick frying pan, see she gets them among her gifts.

★ ★ ★

To tell you the truth, though, I am not happy when attempting to interpret the feminine mystique, and the only chump I ever met who boasted that he could do so found himself divorced soon after.

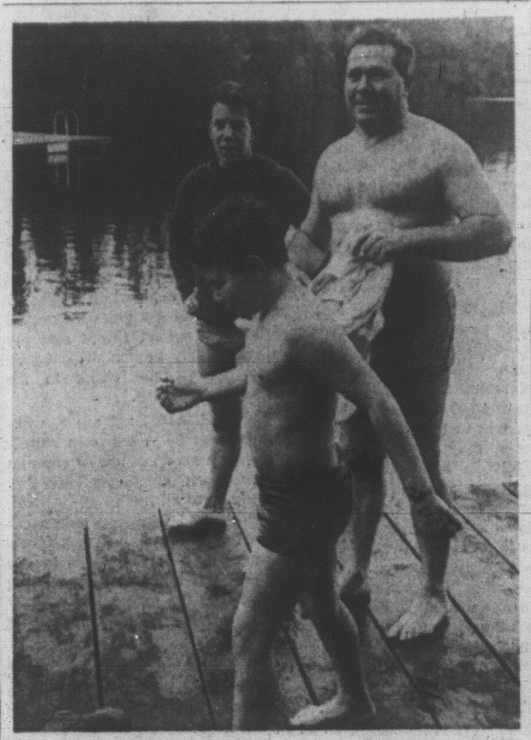

Shopping for children is very much easier. The trick is to cut their long, long lists by two thirds, then add one or more surprise items which they didn't get around to asking for.

Still, keep in mind even here that what kids truly want may differ markedly from what you think they should have, and don't insist on forcing education upon them in the guise of entertainment. That's sneaky, and weakens their trust in adults.

Under the education heading, I don't include the hand work with authentic tools which gives much pleasure to a great many small boys. Odds and ends of wood are cheap, and with a hammer, assorted nails and a light panel saw, you provide the makings of rainy day fun.

For the little girl who likes to make doll clothes, two or three quarter-yard lengths of material, swish fabrics preferred, are always acceptable.

And what does the college-age son or daughter want for Christmas? This may shock you, but the preference frequently runs to portraits of Her Majesty printed on crinkly paper and backed in each denomination by some fetching view of the Canadian scene.

REAL COOL CATS are former Vancouver lifeguard Sonny Gicas, 4357 Metchosin Road, and his sons Tony, 12 (foreground), and Jimmie, 14. They took a chilly training dip in Thetis Lake Sunday preparing for the annual Christmas Day swim in Victoria's Inner Harbor. Mr. Gicas, shown here after his dip, claims Thetis Lake is 10 degrees colder than the saltchuck. Water temperature was 39 degrees Sunday. At least it was a sunny day. (Jim Ryan Photo.)

Topics of the Day

Today's sunshine is expected to continue through Wednesday although cloudy periods are forecast for tonight.

Temperatures are expected to be in line with those recorded today, the weather office says.

Overnight lows Monday ranged from 27 to 33 and temperature at noon today was 40 degrees.

Bandit Gets $226

Suspects Released After Third Holdup

By RON SUDLOW

Saanich police today are continuing their search for a gunman who held up Lake Hill Food Market Monday night.

The man, whose face was hidden by the peak of an engineer's hat, sunglasses and a cloth mask, got away with $226 from the 3949 Quadra St. store.

He pointed what appeared to be an automatic revolver at co-owner Syd Archer, 53, of 3433 Bethune and told him: "This is a stick-up."

SUSPECTS RELEASED

Police cordoned off main roads leading to the store immediately after the holdup and had picked up two suspects within 45 minutes.

The men were taken to Saanich police station but were released after questioning.

Saanich Detective - Sergeant Robin Stewart said today the robbery could be linked with Friday's holdups in the city.

He expected to know more about the suspected connection later on today.

Friday night a man masked with a silk stocking pointed what appeared to be a gun at Miss Edith Barnes.

He escaped after taking $20 from her grocery store at 1611 Bay Street.

Earlier in the day a bandit's bluff was called by a woman clerk at Indian Craft Shoppe, 905 Government, and he got nothing.

CLOSING TIME

The holdup man entered Mr. Archer's store right at 9 p.m. closing time Monday night.

The storekeeper was putting away meat displays at the rear of the premises.

The front door was unlocked and the robber walked up behind Mr. Archer, told him it was a holdup and marched him toward the till.

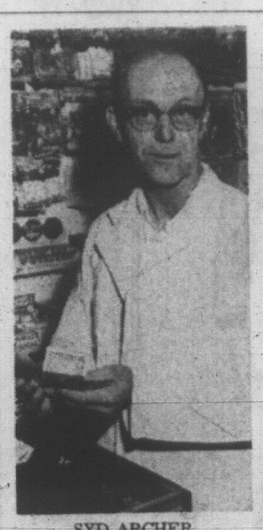

"He said, 'This is a stick-up' he came up on me," Mr. Archer said.

"I just ignored him and kinda laughed and went about my work. Then he told me I'd better not be a dead hero and said "Come on and open up the till'."

Mr. Archer flipped up the spring-loaded devices which hold the bills in their compartments. The bandit took all the folding money but left some cheques and an American $5 bill.

"As he was taking my money I thought to myself

Driver Ignored Brake Warning

$200 Fine Levied After Fatal Crash

A man involved in a fatal accident on Pandora Avenue was fined $200 this morning in central court for careless driving.

Ronald Provan, HMCS St. Croix, was also suspended from driving for six months.

Magistrate J. A. Byers told Provan tha "no punishment I can inflict can bring back the life. But I want to impress on you the need to drive carefully."

The magistrate said that from evidence "it appears you were warned your brakes required an operation known as grinding. The brakes were defective but you chose to drive on the roads."

Evidence was that Provan crossed the centre line of Pandora near Camosun when he pulled out to pass a bus that had stopped. Provan crashed into an oncoming car and its driver was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

Magistrate Byers said he was convinced that Provan was following too closely behind the bus and was forced to swerve violently as a result. He said there was room for Provan to pass without crossing the centre line if he had been driving at a reasonable speed.

'MINDING BUSINES'

Magistrate Byers said the accident had resulted in the death of a man who had been "driving peacefully along minding his own business."

The victim was James C. Smith, 3171 Donald, a 53-year-old garageman for Horwood Motors.

He had been driving home the night of Nov. 19 after visiting his sister. Both he and Provan, who was injured in the accident, were alone in their cars.

After the collision Seaman Provan applied mouth-to-mouth respiration to Mr. Smith in an attempt to revive him.

Both men were taken to hospital by Oak Bay Fire Chief William Pearson who drove by the accident scene in his private car.

Born in Scotland, Mr. Smith came to Canada in 1913. He lived in Nanaimo and Winnipeg before moving here. For the last eight years of his life he was parts manager for Horwood Motors.

LABOR PLANS CAMPAIGN ON NEW CAR INSURANCE

A mass campaign for a new kind of car insurance will be staged across Canada in February.

The 1,100,000-member Canadian Labour Congress will mark its annual Citizenship Month with a call for insurance similar to Workmen's Compensation.

Last February the CLC urged a national prepaid medical care insurance program as a Centennial present for all Canadians. The present government is planning medicare for 1967.

"A real campaign will be mounted," E. P. O'Neal, secretary-treasurer of the 110,000-member B.C. Federation of Labour, said today.

He said the program will urge "a new concept of insurance—that every person is entitled to compensation after accidents."

EXTRA HELP CALLED IN

Post Office Loaded By Mail Early Prod

The mail early for Christmas campaign conducted annually by the Post Office was apparently too successful this year in Victoria.

Postal officials were forced to call in extra help a day early (Sunday morning) to clear a backlog which began to develop late last week.

Some local letters have been as much as three days over the normal delivery period.

600 EXTRAS

When the rush reaches its peak later this week and early next between 500 and 600 extra mail sorters and delivery men will be used to handle the expected 1,000,000 letters per day.

Deadline for Christmas mail to out-of-town poinst passed Monday.

Deadline for local Christmas mail deliveries is Dec. 17.

Postal officials are expecting the annual rash of incorrectly addressed mail and offer these suggestions:

- In the case of parcels which may lose their wrappers, the sender should enclose a note inside the package containing the addresses.
- Use five-cent stamps with Christmas cards to insure prompt delivery.
- A five-word message is all that is allowed on greeting cards mailed with a three-cent stamp.
- Mail early.

SHIP MOVEMENTS

NAVY

HMCS Beacon Hill returned today from Seattle and HMC Ships Yukon and Sussexvale left San Francisco today and are due here at noon Friday.

All other ships are in port.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

Camsell is southbound in Georgia Strait; Estevan is in refit; St. Catharines is on weather station Papa; Stonetown is due Thursday at 8 p.m.; Racer was due in port at 4 p.m. today; Ready is in the Sandheads patrol area, and Sir James Douglas was northbound on the Island's west coast.

Trial Ordered For Woman On Four Charges

Mrs. Gladys Naylor, 914 Sioux Place, was committed this morning for trial at the next assizes on four charges of obtaining money by misrepresentations.

Magistrate J. A. Byers set bail at $5,000 for the middle-aged grandmother who is alleged to have obtained money by telling people she was going to inherit a fortune.

59% FAILED CAR TEST ON FIRST TRY

Fifty-nine per cent of the cars tested during a five-day period here were rejected on the first inspection.

This is disclosed in figures from the motor vehicle branch whose mobile testing unit conducted voluntary tests in Victoria Nov. 30 to Dec. 4.

A total of 361 cars were inspected but only 149 passed first time. But 112 of the failures returned and passed the test.

The highest rate of failures was for cars built between 1950 and 1953—84 per cent.

Biggest causes of rejection was faulty headlights, which failed 163 cars. Incorrect wheel alignment failed 27 cars and bad mufflers were reported in 25 cars.

Young Driver Jailed For 21 Days

Magistrate William Ostler today sent a young man to jail for 21 days saying "something has to be done to make the roads safe for responsible people."

He imposed the penalty on Colin Moir, 1312 Bay Street, who pleaded guilty to dangerous driving and careless driving on Town and Country parking lot early on the morning of Dec. 14.

Saanich Constable Fred Broderson said the lot was covered with ice and Moir accelerated his car, then suddenly applied the brake to make his vehicle spin in circles.

When the officer advised Moir he would be charged with careless driving the accused drove off saying, "I'll see you in court. You won't be quite so smart then."

Cons Broderson said that 45 minutes later Moir was checked again and admitted he had driven in the same manner as before. This time his car skidded out of control for 150 feet and its rear collided with a lamp post. He had driven without lights the second time, the constable said.

Moir, previously convicted of careless driving six months ago, asked Magistrate Ostler to let him keep his licence because he needs it for his trade of mechanic.

Said Magistrate Ostler, "I can't help that."

Instant Trees Cost $6,000 Above Budget

Centennial Square's instant trees have cost $6,000 more than estimated, city comptroller James Bramley told aldermen at city hall today.

The mature tree transplanting account will have to be augmented from other sources, he indicated at a meeting of Centennial Square committee.

Mr. Bramley noted that other square projects are under-expended, for example the old folks' activity centre.

"When you are dealing with $3.5 million (over-all cost of the square), two or three thousand here and there is not far off the mark," he said.

Instant trees are planted at a cost of $600 to $700 per tree on the basis of cost-plus.

Discussions 'Profitable'

Executive officers of British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. met behind closed doors with the mayor and city council today to deal with the problem of smoke and fly ash from Gorge Road mills.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said afterwards that "profitable discussions" took place.

He said he could not elaborate because BCFP is engaged in litigation over alleged mill discharge onto private property, a case which will be heard in the upper courts next month.

IF YOU HAVE TO ASK PRICE, YOU CAN'T AFFORD IT

$23,500 (Without Chauffeur)

By JIM HUME

It was the tax that killed me.

Had it not been for the iniquitous sales levy imposed by the provincial government I'd have bought my wife a Mercedes Benz 600 for Christmas.

But I just couldn't spring that extra $1,175. At least not without getting a sharp letter from my up-to-now friendly bank manager.

Apart from that the $23,500 model only seats five passengers. It just wouldn't be big enough for a family of seven.

Not that it wouldn't be nice to have as a status symbol. Or even to ride in once in a while. Although how you pluck up e courage to wheel $23,500 worth of high-class hardware dow British Columbia's wreck-strewn highways is beyond me.

Mind you, the Mercedes-Benz 600 doesn't have to be driven to be enjoyed. The deep-leather, hydraulically controlled seats, front and rear, with arm rests and head rests are, well, let's say they're a big improvement over Beacon Hill Park benches.

JUST SIT THERE

That's what I mean by not having to go any place to enjoy the 600. You could just sit there with your hydraulic seat rocking back and forth, your AM and FM radio playing at just the right volume, the silent air-conditioner holding the interior to a specific temperature, and let the rest of the world go by.

And if after a while you want to roll the eight cylinder V-engine powered coach with its fuel injection system out onto the highway, you'll have to look out of the window to be sure you're moving.

Even though she zips from 0 to 60 mph in 9.7 seconds the 600 just whi pers along. At top speed (127 mph, but don't try it in B.C.) she rides the same.

Self-levelling air suspension, road clearance (adjustable while in motion) shock absorbers (adjustable for stiffness while in motion) and a shock-absorbing front frame-floor, make sure you don't spill the drinks (coffee, tea, milk) dispensed in the rear-seat optional refreshment bar.

If you want to buy a 600—or even just be like the vast majority and look at one—David Motors Ltd., 1101 Yates at Cook, has the economy model on display.

They take four to five months to build and a month to deliver, so plan on a six-month wait after you write the cheque, for $23,500.

PLUC TAX

Er, sorry, better add another $1,175 to that. Almost forgot the sales tax.

Anyway, if you don't like the five-seater with its side-window and rear-window defrosters and its thundering air horn, you can move up to the seven-eight passenger effort with six doors. The same comforts but just a little larger, a little roomier —and a little more expensive.

So who buys $23,500 cars in British Columbia?

Peter Chrz, field sales manager for Mercedes-Benz, isn't giving out names, but three 600s have already been sold in B.C. with delivery of the first due just before Christmas.

Wonder what the wife will say when I drive home in it?

And I wonder what the bank manager will say when he finds out I blew $1,175 just on sales tax?

Ah, well, I'll just dip my asymmetric headlights, flash my fog lamps, switch on the adjustable reading lights and the hi-fi radio, adjust the seats and steering wheel and head for the hills.

I should have thought to ask how far you can get on 28.9 Imperial gallons of super quality fuel.

"LET'S SEE, $23,500 PLUS SALES TAX WOULD COME TO . . ."

AND WHEN SANTA COMES down the chimney, "make sure the fire's out first," is what the fireman might be telling these Tolmie Elementary six-year-olds. No joke, however, are the leaflets on Christmas fire hazards being handed out to Saanich school children by the district's fire department. Taking tips on home safety habits for the holiday season from Lieut. T. W. Jennings are (from left) Donald Moen, Heather-Jean Leys and Gerald Turko. (Times Photo.)

Ask The Times

Q. How many vehicles are registered in B.C. and how much tax does the B.C. government get out of every gallon of gas? E. B.

A. Registration to the end of November included 601,398 passenger vehicles; 138,662 commercial vehicles; 13,020 motorcycles; 2,343 vehicles registered to auto dealers and 99 transporter vehicles. Total is 755,522.

The provincial government tax on a gallon of gas is 13 cents.

Q. Where in Victoria may one take a nurse's aide course? What qualifications are needed? P.C.

A. Royal Jubilee Hospital personnel office explains nurse's aides are taught on the job. Grade 10 education is regarded as helpful, but not mandatory.

A practical nursing course is offered by provincial government vocational schools.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem long to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

You're in for a Blow If You Spare These

By Penny Saver

Bowling is one sport that has always got the best of me. As a matter of fact, I wouldn't go near a bowling alley, until my sister visited me recently. One evening, with a lack of anything better to do, she suggested bowling. Since I wanted to make her stay an enjoyable one, I submitted, thinking that she would at least get a good laugh out of my usual 90 average. However, the laugh was on me. I started out as usual, with a first game of 82. My second, however, was an entirely unexpected 295. After this, I decided to seriously pursue the sport, and, in doing so, purchased a pair of bowling shoes, and other necessary items required by the avid bowler.

One thing that I felt silly about was carrying my shoes in a paper bag. In one store, I found the perfect remedy — a bowling bag. These are made of a leather-like plastic material, in shades of brown and black. They have a convenient handle, and a zipper down the front so that you have no trouble squeezing the shoes in. They sell for $1.98 each.

Bowling bags, I discovered, can get very soiled, as they are usually stuffed under the seat by the over-anxious player. These bags only require a damp cloth and a mild soap to make them look like new. For stubborn stains, use alcohol and a damp cloth. Long-lasting loveliness can be acquired if all stains are removed as soon as possible.

I was told that when one is starting out in the bowler's world, one should have an optimistic attitude. With this in mind, I did not feel conceited when I purchased a special box in which to put all the pins that I shall be awarded for my excellent bowling. This jewelry case is shaped like a grand piano, made of dark brown wood. It is musical too, and when wound up, a ballerina positioned in front of a V-shaped mirror, twirls. The "keyboard" of this piano is just perfect for storing necklaces. Selling for $9.95, it would make an ideal gift item.

One very useful article sells in this store for 89 cents. It is a desk calendar in the form of a globe, with blue oceans and gold countries. A little dial changes the day and the month, and when the globe is turned, the date changes. Every home or office should have one of these.

Want to know where Penny found these "lucky strikes"? Give her a call at 382-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Unable to Fall Asleep?

When you say "I slept like a log" you are not telling the truth unless you are talking about an animated log. Even when you feel that you have slept soundly you have probably changed positions or moved about from 35 to 50 times during the night.

The tremendous number of sleeping pills sold each year testifies to the fact that insomnia is one of the greatest modern-day problems. Also it is a problem which affects our looks, success, health and our enjoyment of life dramatically. Many folks drag through each day because of sleepless nights. These also create circles or hollows under the eyes, a drawn look, fatigue and a sallow complexion.

Lowman

There have been many remedies given for sleeplessness. What works for one will not for another. Counting sheep never put me to sleep. I become so actively bored that it keeps me awake. One member of my family can always put himself to sleep by counting, not sheep, just numbers. He begins with one and counts until he falls asleep. The value of this method is that it takes your mind away from your plans and problems.

Some folks find that a light snack just before going to bed makes them sleepy. This is probably due to the fact that more blood is drawn to the stomach and away from the brain. This is soothing and quieting.

Exercise is very helpful to some people. This takes the kinks out of muscles and relieves tension. Soothing music lulls some into the Land of Nod. My brother always goes to sleep with his bedside table radio playing.

A warm bath soothes some and makes others itch. If you have this latter reaction you probably have a very dry skin and should use a bath oil in your tub and a body lotion after your bath.

The most important measure of all is to slow down before bedtime. Don't jump from a hectic busy day right into bed and expect to fall asleep any time soon.

Another very helpful rule is to never think over problems after you go to bed. If necessary stay up later and think about them before retiring for the night.

Of course uncomfortable sleeping garments, mattresses and covers (too heavy or too light) influence the quality of sleep.

You can also try a little mild self-hypnosis. Start with your toes and say to yourself "My toes are relaxing." Say it over and over again and FEEL them relax. Then, "The muscles of my legs are relaxing, relaxing," and so on until you reach the top of your head. This takes time but it really works.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Shut-Eye" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

Night Classes — Care of elderly and handicapped persons in boarding homes was the subject of a series of classes given to home operators, conducted by members of Victorian Order of Nurses, the Misses Betty Short and Betty Hutchinson. Demonstrations were also given, it was reported at the recent meeting of the VON held in Spencer-house. Mrs. H. Webster presided. It was reported that regional director Miss Christine Charter, Vancouver, had visited the branch and toured the Silver Threads Centre recently. Reports were also given by Mrs. F. E. Norris on a recent provincial executive meeting in Vancouver and by district director, Miss Elizabeth Riddell. She noted that 67 new medical and surgical patients had been admitted and that 1,971 visits had been made in the last month. Mrs. Webster announced the annual meeting would be held on Feb. 11, 1966 in the St. John Ambulance Building. A vote of thanks was given to the Sir James and Lady Douglas Chapter IODE for supplies.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Checking the Situation!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those "STUPID WAITRESSES" who can't read the minds of customers to determine whether they want separate checks or not. Don't customers realize that all our checks are numbered? And when they tell us at the end of a meal that they wanted separate checks, we have to void the original check and start all over again? THIS TAKES TIME!

If some customers weren't so stupid, they could divide up the check themselves.

"ANOTHER STUPID WAITRESS"

DEAR ABBY: Put me down as another "stupid waitress," who not only can't read minds, but who can't tell when people are kidding. When cocktails are being ordered before the meal, I have been told that the party was going to be on "Old Joe." And when I presented the check to "Old Joe," I was asked if I couldn't take a joke. Then I've had unscramble the bill and give everyone separate checks.

On other occasions, I've had the guests loudly demand, "Separate checks!"—and when it came time to pay one man will disgustedly take them all and say to me, "Where's your sense of humor? You know when I'm in the party, the party's always on me!"

EGG ON MY FACE

DEAR ABBY: You said, "Waitresses are not mind-readers." So, since the waitress is the one who makes up the check, she's the one who should ask how it should be done, and not after he fact.

After all, one man did not eat all the food, so why should the waitress have the gall to assume that one man is going to pay for it? And in some cases, the waitress even takes it upon herself to decide which man should be the host.

BEEN STUCK

DEAR ABBY: At last you have proved to me forever that no man ghost-writes your column, although on the question of restaurant checks you could have used a man's advice. No woman understands the problem as a man does. No waiter is likely to make the mistake a waitress makes in assuming that one man is picking up the check for the entire party unless he is told that he is.

A waiter always makes out separate checks for each couple in a dinner situation, as well as situations involving a group at lunch from an office or something similar. Only a waitress will do it the "easy" way and stick one man with the bill.

E. F. F.

DEAR ABBY: Here is one waitress who is not as stupid as she used to be. When I first started waiting on tables, the girls told me if a lot of men came in together, to put it all on one check and give it to the man who looked the most successful. And if they all looked successful, to give it to the oldest man. I have learned through experience that this is a mistake. For some strange reason, the man who looks most successful is usually the one who is least able to treat the crowd. And age doesn't mean anything either.

QUIT GUESSING

DEAR ABBY: Does anyone have any advice on how a waitress is supposed to know to whom the check goes when two men are dining together and both of them insist on taking it? I have had my glasses knocked off, my pocket ripped and my arm nearly broken while trying to present the check to the "wrong" person.

DEAR ABBY: I am a waitress, but I a far from stupid. When a group of people come in for lunch or dinner, whether they are all men, all women, or mixed, I always make out separate checks. If, after the meal, one person wants to pay for them all, I let him fight it out with the others.

Arthur Mayse

There are in this city, I suppose, fathers who actually like getting ties, slippers and pigskin-garnished cork screws for Christmas. However, if you really want to make the old dog sit up and bark, a less casual approach is necessary.

Watch him. Stalk him. Test him with leading questions, and be alert for such hints as he may drop. Even more important, try to develop a sixth sense which will pick up the unwitting clues that point to his real wants.

Old Faithful, let us suppose, is parcel-toting for his dear ones on an evening shopping bout. Nobody pays much attention to him until, somewhere between women's hosiery and toyland, he turns up missing.

Presently he's spotted over in sporting goods, where he stands thoughtfully weighing a quarter-pound spool of nylon monofilament salmon line in his paw.

When observed, the quiet fellow with the flat wallet is likely to drop the spool as if it had singed his fingers, and if pressed, mumble that he was just studying the label.

Uh huh? Well, there's a fine fat clue for you, and if in doubt when you later buy him a spool of the stuff, ask for 20 pound test. It will cost about as much as a middle-of-the-road necktie, and probably a heck of a lot less than the duded-up corkscrew.

★ ★ ★

So much for Dad. We will now turn to another person who tends to anesthetize her presonal gimmees, and can fake delight over a bargain bottle of cologne or a pair of oven mitts with almost 100 per cent conviction.

When shopping for wives, I'm not sure the best system isn't to ask the little creatures what they'd like, buy it no matter how un-Christmasy it may seem, then add the most expensive party sheers you can manage. For pete's sake, though, get her size right, or if err you must, let it be on the side of smallness.

Perfume? At your own risk.

This advice is hard to accept . . . if fact I know one wife who, year after year, put in timidly on each gift-giving occasion for a new meat grinder, while her perfume-happy husband persisted in the view that she ought just to go out and buy one.

As a result, she didn't get her heart's desire until her sensible son grew up, and presented her with a duplicate of the toothless old shower present she couldn't bear to part with.

Thus forced, she spent a happy hour running everything save the cat's tail through her new chopper.

So, surprise your wife with what you will, but if she has let it be known that she'd like no-nonsense mule-skin gardening gloves and a plastic lined, non-stick frying pan, see she gets them among her gifts.

★ ★ ★

To tell you the truth, though, I am not happy when attempting to interpret the feminine mystique, and the only chump I ever met who boasted that he could do so found himself divorced soon after.

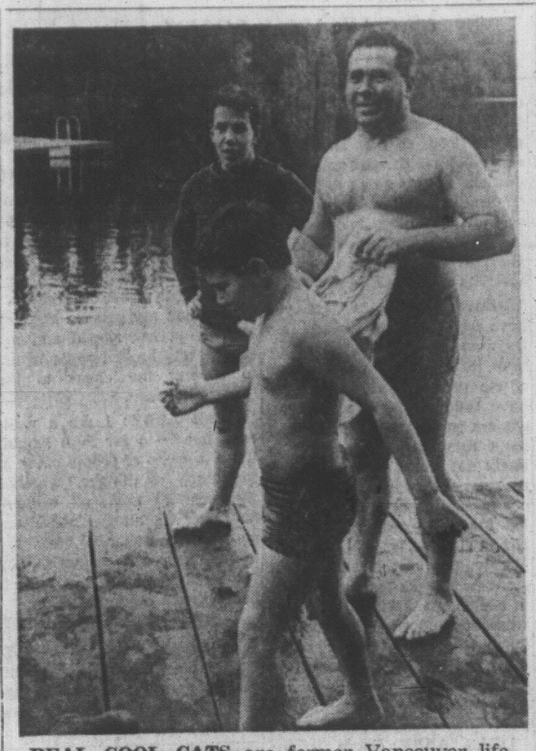

Shopping for children is very much easier. The trick is to cut their long, long lists by two thirds, then add one or more surprise items which they didn't get around to asking for.

Still, keep in mind even here that what kids truly want may differ markedly from what you think they should have, and don't insist on forcing education upon them in the guise of entertainment. That's sneaky, and weakens their trust in adults.

Under the education heading, I don't include the hand work with authentic tools which gives much pleasure to a great many small boys. Odds and ends of wood are cheap, and with a hammer, assorted nails and a light panel saw, you provide the makings of rainy day fun.

For the little girl who likes to make doll clothes, two or three quarter-yard lengths of material, swish fabrics preferred, are always acceptable.

And what does the college-age son or daughter want for Christmas? This may shock you, but the preference frequently runs to portraits of Her Majesty printed on crinkly paper and backed in each denomination by some fetching view of the Canadian scene.

REAL COOL CATS are former Vancouver lifeguard Sonny Gicas, 4357 Metchosin Road, and his sons Tony, 12 (foreground), and Jimmie, 14. They took a chilly training dip in Thetis Lake Sunday preparing for the annual Christmas Day swim in Victoria's Inner Harbor. Mr. Gicas, shown here after his dip, claims Thetis Lake is 10 degrees colder than the saltchuck. Water temperature was 39 degrees Sunday. At least it was a sunny day. (Jim Ryan Photo.)

Bandit Gets $226

Suspects Released After Third Holdup

By RON SUDLOW

Saanich police today are continuing their search for a gunman who held up Lake Hill Food Market Monday night.

The man, whose face was hidden by the peak of an engineer's hat, sunglasses and a cloth mask, got away with $226 from the 3949 Quadra St. store.

He pointed what appeared to be an automatic revolver at co-owner Syd Archer, 53, of 3433 Bethune and told him: "This is a stick-up."

SUSPECTS RELEASED

Police cordoned off main roads leading to the store immediately after the holdup and had picked up two suspects within 45 minutes.

The men were taken to Saanich police station but were released after questioning.

Saanich Detective - Sergeant Robin Stewart said today the robbery could be linked with Friday's holdups in the city.

He expected to know more about the suspected connection later on today.

Friday night a man masked with a silk stocking pointed what appeared to be a gun at Miss Edith Barnes.

He escaped after taking $20 from her grocery store at 1611 Bay Street.

Earlier in the day a bandit's bluff was called by a woman clerk at Indian Craft Shoppe, 905 Government, and he got nothing.

CLOSING TIME

The holdup man entered Mr. Archer's store right at 9 p.m. closing time Monday night.

The storekeeper was putting away meat displays at the rear of the premises.

The front door was unlocked and the robber walked up behind Mr. Archer, told him it was a holdup and marched him toward the till.

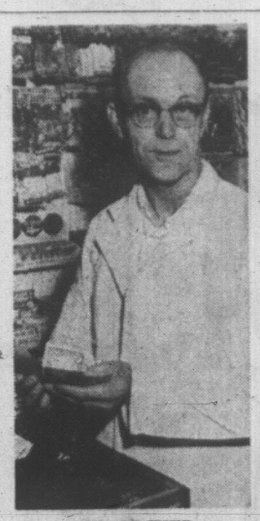

"He said, 'This is a stick-up' as he came up on me," Mr. Archer said.

"I just ignored him and kinda laughed and went about my work. Then he told me I'd better not be a dead hero and said "Come on and open up the till'."

Mr. Archer flipped up the spring-loaded devices which hold the bills in their compartments. The bandit took all the folding money but left some cheques and an American $5 bill.

"As he was taking my money I thought to myself

Driver Ignored Brake Warning

$200 Fine Levied After Fatal Crash

A man involved in a fatal accident on Pandora Avenue was fined $200 this morning in central court for careless driving.

Ronald Provan, HMCS St. Croix, was also suspended from driving for six months.

Magistrate J. A. Byers told Provan that "no punishment I can inflict can bring back the life. But I want to impress on you the need to drive carefully."

The magistrate said that from evidence "it appears you were warned your brakes required an operation known as grinding. The brakes were defective but you chose to drive on the roads."

Evidence was that Provan crossed the centre line of Pandora near Camosun when he pulled out to pass a bus that had stopped. Provan crashed into an oncoming car and its driver, was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

Magistrate Byers said he was convinced that Provan was following too closely behind the bus and was forced to swerve violently as a result. He said there was room for Provan to pass without crossing the centre line if he had been driving at a reasonable speed.

'MINDING BUSINES'

Magistrate Byers said the accident had resulted in the death of a man who had been "driving peacefully along minding his own business."

The victim was James C. Smith, 3171 Donald, a 53-year-old garageman for Horwood Bros. Garage.

He had been driving home the night of Nov. 19 after visiting his mother. Both he and Provan, who was injured in the accident, were alone in their cars.

After the collision Seaman Provan applied mouth-to-mouth respiration to Mr. Smith in an attempt to revive him.

Both men were taken to hospital by Oak Bay Fire Chief William Pearson who drove by the accident scene in his private car.

Born in Scotland, Mr. Smith came to Canada in 1913. He lived in Nanaimo and Winnipeg before moving here. For the last eight years of his life he was parts manager for Horwood Motors.

59% FAILED CAR TEST ON FIRST TRY

Fifty-nine per cent of the cars tested during a five-day period here were rejected on the first inspection.

This is disclosed in figures from the motor vehicle branch whose mobile testing unit conducted voluntary tests in Victoria Nov. 30 to Dec. 4.

A total of 361 cars were inspected but only 149 passed first time. But 112 of the failures returned and passed the test.

The highest rate of failures was for cars built between 1950 and 1953—84 per cent.

Biggest causes of rejection was faulty headlights, which failed 163 cars. Incorrect wheel alignment failed 27 cars and bad mufflers were reported in 25 cars.

LABOR PLANS CAMPAIGN ON NEW CAR INSURANCE

A mass campaign for a new kind of car insurance will be staged across Canada in February.

The 1,100,000-member Canadian Labour Congress will mark its annual Citizenship Month with a call for insurance similar to Workmen's Compensation.

Last February the CLC urged a national prepaid medical care insurance program as a Centennial present for all Canadians. The present government is planning medicare for 1967.

"A real campaign will be mounted," E. P. O'Neal, secretary-treasurer of the 110,000-member B.C. Federation of Labour, said today.

He said the program will urge "a new concept of insurance—that every person is entitled to compensation after accidents."

EXTRA HELP CALLED IN

Post Office Loaded By Mail Early Prod

The mail early for Christmas campaign conducted annually by the Post Office was apparently too successful this year in Victoria.

Postal officials were forced to call in extra help a day early (Sunday morning) to clear a backlog which began to develop late last week.

Some local letters have been as much as three days over the normal delivery period.

600 EXTRAS

When the rush reaches its peak later this week and early next between 500 and 600 extra mail sorters and delivery men will be used to handle the expected 1,000,000 letters per day.

Deadline for Christmas mail to out-of-town points passed Monday.

Deadline for local Christmas mail deliveries is Dec. 17.

Postal officials are expecting the annual rash of incorrectly addressed mail and offer these suggestions:

- In the case of parcels which may lose their wrappers, the sender should enclose a note inside the package containing the addresses.
- Use five-cent stamps with Christmas cards to insure prompt delivery.
- A five-word message is all that is allowed on greeting cards mailed with a three-cent stamp.
- Mail early.

SHIP MOVEMENTS

NAVY

HMCS Beacon Hill returned today from Seattle and HMC Ships Yukon and Sussexvale left San Francisco today and are due here at noon Friday.

All other ships are in port.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

Camsell is southbound in Georgia Strait; Estevan is in refit; St. Catharines is on weather station Papa; Stonetown is due Thursday at 8 p.m.; Racer was due in port at 4 p.m. today; Ready is in the Sandheads patrol area, and Sir James Douglas was northbound on the Island's west coast.

Trial Ordered For Woman On Four Charges

Mrs. Gladys Naylor, 914 Sioux Place, was committed this morning for trial at the next assizes on four charges of obtaining money by misrepresentations.

Magistrate J. A. Byers set bail at $5,000 for the middle-aged grandmother who is alleged to have obtained money by telling people she was going to inherit a fortune.

Instant Trees Cost $6,000 Above Budget

Centennial Square's instant trees have cost $6,000 more than estimated, city comptroller James Bramley told aldermen at city hall today.

The mature tree transplanting account will have to be augmented from other sources, he indicated at a meeting of Centennial Square committee.

Mr. Bramley noted that other square projects are under-expended, for example the old folks' activity centre.

"When you are dealing with $3.5 million (over-all cost of the square), two or three thousand here and there is not far off the mark," he said.

Instant trees are planted at a cost of $600 to $700 per tree on the basis of cost-plus.

Young Driver Jailed For 21 Days

Magistrate William Ostler today sent a young man to jail for 21 days saying "something has to be done to make the roads safe for responsible people."

He imposed the penalty on Colin Moir, 1312 Bay Street, who pleaded guilty to dangerous driving and careless driving on Town and Country parking lot early on the morning of Dec. 14.

Saanich Constable Fred Broderson said the lot was covered with ice and Moir accelerated his car, then suddenly applied the brake to make his vehicle spin in circles.

When the officer advised Moir he would be charged with careless driving the accused drove off saying, "I'll see you in court. You won't be quite so smart then."

Cons Broderson said that 45 minutes later Moir was checked again and admitted he had driven in the same manner as before. This time his car skidded out of control for 150 feet and its rear collided with a lamp post. He had driven without lights the second time, the constable said.

Moir, previously convicted of careless driving six months ago, asked Magistrate Ostler to let him keep his licence because he needs it for his trade of mechanic.

Said Magistrate Ostler, "I can't help that."

Discussions 'Profitable'

Executive officers of British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. met behind closed doors with the mayor and city council today to deal with the problem of smoke and fly ash from Gorge Road mills.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said afterwards that "profitable discussions" took place.

He said he could not elaborate because BCFP is engaged in litigation over alleged mill discharge onto private property, a case which will be heard in the upper courts next month.

IF YOU HAVE TO ASK THE PRICE, YOU CAN'T AFFORD IT

$23,500 (Without Chauffeur)

By JIM HUME

It was the tax that killed me.

Had it not been for the iniquitous sales levy imposed by the provincial government I'd have bought my wife a Mercedes Benz 600 for Christmas.

But I just couldn't spring that extra $1,175. At least not without getting a sharp letter from my up-to-now friendly bank manager.

Apart from that the $23,500 model only seats five passengers. It just wouldn't be big enough for a family of seven.

Not that it wouldn't be nice to have as a status symbol. Or even to ride in once in a while. Although how you pluck up the courage to wheel $23,500 worth of high-class hardware down British Columbia's wreck-strewn highways is beyond me.

Mind you, the Mercedes-Benz 600 doesn't have to be driven to be enjoyed. The deep-leather, hydraulically controlled seats, front and rear, with arm rests and head rests are, well, let's say they're a big improvement over Beacon Hill Park benches.

JUST SIT THERE

That's what I mean by not having to go any place to enjoy the 600. You could just sit there with your hydraulic seat rocking back and forth, your AM and FM radio playing at just the right volume, the silent air-conditioner holding the interior to a specific temperature, and let the rest of the world go by.

And if after a while you want to roll the eight cylinder V-engine powered coach with its fuel injection system out onto the highway, you'll have to look out of the window to be sure you're moving.

Even though she zips from 0 to 60 mph in 9.7 seconds the 600 just whispers along. At top speed (127 mph, but don't try it in B.C.) she rides the same.

Self-levelling air suspension, road clearance (adjustable while in motion) shock absorbers (adjustable for stiffness while in motion) and a shock-absorbing front frame-floor, make sure you don't spill the drinks (coffee, tea, milk) dispensed in the rear-seat optional refreshment bar.

If you want to buy a 600—or even just be like the vast majority and look at one—David Motors Ltd., 1101 Yates at Cook, has the economy model on display.

They take four to five months to build and a month to deliver, so plan on a six-month wait after you write the cheque, for $23,500.

PLUS TAX

Er, sorry, better add another $1,175 to that. Almost forgot the sales tax.

Anyway, if you don't like the five-seater with its side-window and rear-window defrosters and its thundering air horn, you can move up to the seven-eight passenger effort with six doors. The same comforts but just a little larger, a little roomier—and a little more expensive.

So who buys $23,500 cars in British Columbia?

Peter Chrz, field sales manager for Mercedes-Benz, isn't giving out names, but three 600s have already been sold in B.C. with delivery of the first due just before Christmas.

Wonder what the wife will say when I drive home in it?

And I wonder what the bank manager will say when he finds out I blew $1,175 just on sales tax?

Ah, well, I'll just dip my asymmetric headlights, flash my fog lamps, switch on the adjustable reading lights and the hi-fi radio, adjust the seats and steering wheel and head for the hills.

I should have thought to ask how far you can get on 28.9 Imperial gallons of super quality fuel.

"LET'S SEE, $23,500 PLUS SALES TAX WOULD COME TO . . ."

AND WHEN SANTA COMES down the chimney, "make sure the fire's out first," is what the fireman might be telling these Tolmie Elementary six-year-olds. No joke, however, are the leaflets on Christmas fire hazards being handed out to Saanich school children by the district's fire department. Taking tips on home safety habits for the holiday season from Lieut. T. W. Jennings are (from left) Donald Moen, Heather-Jean Leys and Gerald Turko. (Times Photo.)

Ask The Times

Q. How many vehicles are registered in B.C. and how much tax does the B.C. government get out of every gallon of gas? E. B.

A. Registration to the end of November included 601,398 passenger vehicles; 138,662 commercial vehicles; 13,020 motorcycles; 2,343 vehicles registered to auto dealers and 99 transporter vehicles. Total is 755,522.

The provincial government tax on a gallon of gas is 13 cents.

Q. Where in Victoria may one take a nurse's aide course? What qualifications are needed? P.C.

A. Royal Jubilee Hospital personnel office explains nurse's aides are taught on the job. Grade 10 education is regarded as helpful, but not mandatory.

A practical nursing course is offered by provincial government vocational schools.

Go, Go For G-6

HOUSTON (AP)—Bearded and beginning to itch, astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell raced on in their record-breaking space flight today after giving Carnarvon, Australia, a few scary moments.

Both the Gemini 7 spacecraft and the five-year-old Echo II satellite showed up in the skies over Carnarvon at the same time, and seemed to be converging on a collision course.

As residents gasped at the sight, the two vehicles appeared to collide, but the North American Air Defence Command at Colorado Springs, Colo., said they actually were in orbits 434 miles apart.

If they had been at the same altitude, "they certainly would have collided," said Ed Dunbar, a member of the American flight control team at Carnarvon.

Gemini 7 entered its 147th orbit at 8:30 a.m. EST.

GRIPE ABOUT FOOD

Borman and Lovell woke up this morning scratching and griping about the food.

"We're starting to itch a little — getting kinda crummy," Borman reported.

Astronauts in flight are not permitted to shave because of the danger that whiskers floating in the weightlessness of the spacecraft might get into its delicate instruments and cause damage.

Lovell told the Houston tracking station that "this 'chicken with gravy' should be labelled 'gravy with chicken.'"

"They woke up full of beans," commented flight director John D. Hodge of the overnight shift at Houston.

In the 10th day of the demanding 14-day mission, Borman said "Jim and I have been noticing the days seem to be lengthening a little."

Travelling at five miles a second, Gemini 7 kept tuned in with preparations to launch Gemini 6 from Cape Kennedy. The firing, scheduled for Wednesday, would culminate with the first rendezvous of orbiting space ships.

The Gemini 6 liftoff was set for 8:37 a.m. EST (5:37 a.m. PST). The two ships were expected to begin flying in a unique "nose to nose" formation about 5½ hours later.

If the space rendezvous comes off as planned the Gemini 6 astronauts will sleep in their spacecraft Wednesday night and splash down Thursday. The Gemini 7 spacemen will come down Saturday.

Borman and Lovell spotted a fiery run by the world's most powerful rocket sled today and the blazing reentry of a minuteman "instant ICBM" over the mid-Pacific.

On their 148th trip around earth, Gemini 7 pilots looked down at Holloman air force base, N.M., and saw the 100,000-pound-thrust rocket sled churn up smoke and water 185 miles below. "We can't see much," Bormann admitted.

"We saw a little smoke, that's about all. We had a beautiful view, though."

RUSK AT MEETING

Support of NATO Allies Requested

PARIS (CP)—The United States today asked its North Atlantic allies to send doctors, engineers and teachers to South Viet Nam, American sources reported.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, in a review of the Viet Nam conflict, told the NATO council of ministers there is room for more troops in South Viet Nam. But the sources said that he did not ask the NATO nations to supply them.

In calling for greater allied understanding and support of the American effort in Viet Nam, Rusk warned that the fate of the North Atlantic alliance might be decided on the distant battlefields there.

He told the annual meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's foreign, finance and defence ministers that a Communist success in Viet Nam might lead to new Communist adventures elsewhere.

SUPPORTED BY BRITAIN

British Defence Minister Denis Healey, deputizing for ailing Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, supported Rusk's argument.

Rusk said U.S. commitments in various parts of the world to halt the spread of communism represent a "main pillar of peace."

While Southeast Asia is a long way from the frontiers of Europe, he continued, the United States cannot and will not choose between various commitments. He implied that to do so would destroy the credibility of NATO itself as a defensive shield for the Western world.

READY TO TALK PEACE

On the Viet Nam conflict, Rusk called it a dangerous issue that is clouding U.S. relations with Communist countries.

He reiterated the U.S. desire to enter into peace negotiations on Viet Nam without any preconditions. A ceasefire could come before a peace conference was convened, or it could be the first order of business of such a conference.

Rusk said the 1954 Geneva agreements on Indochina—Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia—and the 1962 Geneva conference making and keeping Laos neutral could serve as an adequate basis for peace in Southeast Asia.

In a long account of Western efforts to try to get the Viet Nam problem from the battlefield to the conference table, Rusk said it still is the U.S. impression that China is against peace talks.

Sir Paul Gore-Booth, permanent undersecretary of the British foreign office, said Foreign Secretary Stewart found the Russians still had some interest in negotiating a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

WON'T PERMIT VETO

Rusk and West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder warned that the Western powers—in their desire to get a nuclear non-proliferation treaty

He told a nationwide television audience he deplores attacks labelling him as anti-American.

B.C. Civil Servants Get Wage Increase

Premier Bennett Announces Hike

Premier Bennett today announced "there will be increases in salaries for all civil servants including deputy ministers in the next budget."

The premier did not announce the size of the increase but for the past four years he has boosted civil service salaries an average of 5 per cent annually.

Speculation that the coming increase will be even larger than 5 per cent was strengthened by Mr. Bennett's additional remarks:

"This year has been the best year in the history of our province — for more people than ever before and in every part of B.C. And I think as premier 1966 is going to be an even better year and it will be a good year for the civil service too."

AT LUNCHEON

He made the announcement at an annual luncheon tendered newcomers to the civil service commission's 25-year club at the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Bennett said in his 13½ years as premier the civil service has given his administration "outstanding co-operation and worked wonderfully well.

"We've got the best civil service that I know of anywhere and I travel not only through Canada but to other countries as well."

New Peace Service Proposed

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg called Tuesday for creation of a comprehensive United Nations peace service that would provide the world with an adequate substitute for all armed conflict.

He made the proposal in a speech to the UN General Assembly's special political committee in support of a British resolution to launch a UN study on how to speed the peaceful settlement of disputes.

Goldberg made clear that he regarded the Viet Nam conflict and all others in which the United States might be involved as subject to peaceful settlement.

He said the U.S. is proposing "nothing less than the creation of a United Nations peace service—a flexible set of procedures so efficient and so comprehensive that it will provide an adequate substitute for armed conflict."

He said the UN peace service should include improvements in present procedures to meet three main needs:

—Assurance of greater availability of qualified persons for tasks of peaceful settlement.

—The provision of additional incentives for governments to resort to peaceful settlements.

—Incorporation of new approaches to dispute settlements whose utility has been demonstrated by recent experience.

Tanzania Cutting Links With U.K. on Rhodesia

LONDON (CP)—The Tanzanian high commission took steps today to close down even as British and Commonwealth diplomats were trying to avert an open rift in the Commonwealth because of the Rhodesia crisis.

A Tanzanian spokesman said the East African country's office in London would close Thursday and High Commissioner C. P. Ngaiza would return to Dar es Salaam next Monday.

Tanzania was the only one of the nine African Commonwealth governments firmly committed today to a Dec. 3 ultimatum of the Organization of African Unity to break relations with Britain if the rebel white-minority regime in Rhodesia has not been ousted by Wednesday.

Ghana has said it would carry out terms of the 36-nation African resolution. But a spokesman of the Ghana high commission here declined today to say whether the office would close.

Fog in London delayed the arrival of Nigeria's prime minister, Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, who flew to Britain to press plans for an emergency meeting of Commonwealth heads of government next month in Lagos.

Nigeria, in common with most other African states, has had second thoughts about breaking relations with Britain. Balewa has proposed instead the Lagos meeting to discuss how the Rhodesian rebel regime could be "speedily and effectively brought to an end."

Balewa's plane was diverted to Manchester and landed there just before 1 p.m.—about the time he was originally due to confer with Prime Minister Wilson in London.

The Nigerian leader also is scheduled to meet with Commonwealth Secretary - General Arnold Smith of Canada, who would play a major part in organizing any Lagos meeting. Smith has been engaged in a continuing round of conferences with British and Commonwealth officials here in an effort to ease strained relations.

African leaders have been pressing Britain to take tougher action to topple the Rhodesian rebels, including military action to protect the Kariba Dam and power station on the Rhodesia-Zambia border. One idea circulated here is for a white Commonwealth force to move in and guard the Kariba plant on the Rhodesian side of the Zambesi River.

Mail Service Suspended

NAIROBI (Reuters) — Kenya is suspending all post office telecommunications with Rhodesia, a post office spokesman said today.

Tanzania and Uganda, which run joint postal services with Kenya, are expected to follow suit.

TO FACE OIL BOYCOTT

LONDON (UPI) — Britain and the United States will shortly announce oil sanctions against Rhodesia, informed sources reported tonight.

The sources said the announcement was expected to come when the UN security council meets in New York to debate what to do about the breakaway African colony and rebel Premier Ian Smith.

The UN debate coincides with a day of intensive consultations by British Prime Minister Harold Wilson in the face of increasing African pressure to suppress the Smith Rhodesian rebellion immediately or face a break off of relations by many African states.

Spaceship Landing Tests Set

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union will carry out tests of "a variant of a system of landing space vehicles" between Dec. 16 and June 1 next year, the Soviet news agency Tass announced today.

Tass said some elements of the booster-rockets will fall into the Pacific and issued a list of co-ordinates of the locations. The locations were roughly midway between Hawaii and the Aluetian Islands.

The Soviets have issued similar warnings in the past when preparing for rocket flights but never have tested space vehicles with a water landing. In previous space flights, the Soviets have always brought their space vehicles down on land.

The United States in every orbital flight has brought its space vehicles to a safe landing on the water through use of parachutes and a space vehicle with floats. One sank after the pilot, Virgil Grisson, was rescued.

NEW AIR AGREEMENT WITH U.S. SEEN SOON

Lucrative Routes Open to Canada

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canadian airlines will be able to fly into lucrative new United States areas under a proposed new Canada-United States agreement to be signed in mid-January, it was learned today.

Negotiations on the agreement have dragged on for months. Earlier this year the Americans said flatly they would not be interested in resuming negotiations if Canadians insisted on the Winnipeg to Minneapolis and Chicago run.

The negotiations were resumed this month. Indications are that the Canadian government while still declaring interest in the Winnipeg southward run, have eased up somewhat on that insistence in the interests of finally getting a bilateral agreement.

Canada has battled for years to get more than just border-hops for Canadian airlines. The Canadians wanted to crack some of the more lucrative runs in the United States.

Air Canada is understood to be in line for permission to fly from Montreal to Toronto and directly to Los Angeles. Under existing agreements passengers from Montreal and Toronto have to change planes at Chicago.

DIRECT ROUTES

Air Canada will be also allowed to fly directly to Miami from Canadian points. This is a lucrative run that the Canadian authorities have been striving to get for years. At present Canadians on Air Canada can fly only to Tampa, Florida and must change to American lines to fly to Miami.

Canadian Pacific Airlines would be permitted to fly from Vancouver to San Francisco under the proposed agreement, it is understood. But in return United Airlines would fly directly from Montreal to Chicago.

Government air authorities here refused to comment on reports that the new agreement would be signed in mid-January. However, it was learned from their well-informed sources that the negotiations now under way again on an official level are close to completion with the signing expected about the time Parliament will open, Jan. 18.

One source said that the fact that the negotiations had been resumed was a clear indication that Canada had backed away on its insistence that the Winnipeg south run must be agreed to by the Americans or it would be "no deal."

MONEY GOES TO CHILDREN OF ASIA

This Story Is Christmas Gift For Seven Sharing Youngsters

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

For seven cousins who live spread out across Canada and the United States, Christmas means more than just gifts and goodies for themselves.

It means giving up something, and knowing that because they did, needy children overseas are sharing their happiness.

The seven cousins (Carol-Ann, David, Janet, Gregg, Scott, Patricia and Pamella) have an aunt, a very special one, who lives in Victoria.

Every year she makes a donation, in their name, to the Times-sponsored Unitarian Service Committee Chrsitmas fund.

It all began 12 years ago, when Carol-Ann was only four and her brother, David, just a baby.

Then their aunt gave $10 to the USC fund under the names of her niece and nephew who live in Seattle.

This year her contribution was $25, and the youngsters named included two brothers who live in Minneapolis, Minn., and the babies of the family, five-year-old twins Patricia and Pamella.

Their aunt remains anonymous, but each year, the Times clipping with their story in it is sent to the children as their Christmas gift.

This year their aunt writes: "The desire to share at Christmas is now a vital and happy experience and the children gladly offer this part of their Christmas in lieu of gifts from their Victoria aunt."

She adds a hint that might be adopted by other Victorians.

"Our minister suggested to the congregation that we leave the collection can on our dining table till Christmas—a mute reminder of hungry children"

18 VOTES ON SHY SIDE FOR FLUORIDES BALLOT

An official count of Oak Bay's fluoridation ballots completed today left the total of "yes" votes only 18 short of the needed 60 per cent majority.

New totals are 3,141 to 2,125 in favor of the chemical being added to the municipality's water supply.

The recount boosted the favorable percentage up one per cent to 59.646.

First count Saturday night revealed a "yes" vote of 3,083 to 2,125 or 58.6 per cent.

So naturally, when F. J. Willway was elected to Sooke school board, we asked some questions about possible conflicting interests.

A municipal affairs department source explains that though Mr. Willway conducted the voting for hospitals and parks, he had nothing to do with the school board vote, which was handled by another appointee. The voting places for the three questions were all in the same schools, but at separate polls in different rooms.

"So there was no conflict of interests," said the department official.

More Letters Oppose 80-Unit Apartment

Letters from three more Oak Bay Junction residents Monday protest a proposed 80-unit garden apartment development for the former Pearse estate on Begbie.

They were addressed to the mayor and council of Victoria, which will hold a public hearing on an application by Edca Holdings Ltd. to rezone the 4.25 acres to garden apartment use.

The hearing was first set for last month, but was postponed to Thursday when council was shown that first notice was as short as two days before the scheduled day.

To date, four lengthy letters outlining protests in detail have been addressed to city hall.

In addition, some 50 area residents held their own public meeeting a week ago and are now circulating a petition against the development.

"We feel that as local taxpayers . . . there is a great danger to life if this is allowed to proceed," wrote W. O. and Eleanor Allan, 1576 Vining.

Begbie is used as a direct route to Royal Jubilee and Veterans' Hospitals by police cars and ambulances, the letter said.

Any development which encourages traffic and school children would add to the hazard already involved because of an intersection with poor visibility and a "deaf zone" due to a sharp rise, the Allans said.

In addition, school facilities in the district are already crowded, and there is a shortage of playground space.

LAND VALUE

Donald E. and Constance M. Broadworth, 1568 Vining, wrote pointing out that council should consider:

Promotion of health, safety, convenience and welfare of the public; overcrowding of land; securing adequate light, air and access; land value and character of use.

The terms are contained in the Municipal Act.

The writers point out the additional factor of low water pressure in the area, which could become dangerous with a large-scale development in case of fire.

'Copter Crashes After Hitting Top of Trees

GOLDEN (CP) — Three men escaped injury when their helicopter crashed during claim-staking work at Bugaboo Creek, 65 miles southeast of here.

The pilot of the $65,000 helicopter, owned by Okanagan Helicopters Ltd., was identified as Henry Sands of Nelson.

His two unidentified passengers on the Saturday expedition were prospectors who had just staked a claim. As the helicopter took off it struck a treetop and fell back to the ground.

The men spent the night at an abandoned mining camp and were flown here Sunday by another helicopter.

'Adlai Supported U.S. Policy'

NEW YORK (AP) — Clayton Fritchey, who was Adlai E. Stevenson's special assistant at the United Nations, says the late UN ambassador expressed support of U.S. foreign policy shortly before his death last summer.

Fritchey said in his column in Newsday, a Long Island daily:

"Despite a number of highly publicized reports to the contrary, Adlai Stevenson did not die an embittered and disappointed man, weary with frustration and disillusioned with public office."

Fritchey said Stevenson expressed his views in an unmailed letter to a group of writers, artists and scientists who had urged him to resign his UN post.

The letter, written a few days before Stevenson left for London, where he died July 14, said, according to Fritchey:

"Whatever criticisms may be made over the detail and emphasis on American foreign policy its purpose and directions are sound.

"I do not believe the policy of retreat in Asia or anywhere else would make any contributions whatsoever to the idea that violence cannot be the formal arbitrator in world affairs."

Wilson Repeats Support For U.S. Action in Viet

By JOHN HEFFERNAN

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson reiterated Britain's support for United States policy in Viet Nam. He told the House of Commons he hoped to discuss "all aspects of the Viet Nam problem", with President Lyndon Johnson during White House talks.

---

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The search for peace in Viet Nam is expected to dominate Harold Wilson's talks with President Johnson at the White House this week.

Other issues, such as NATO nuclear sharing, non-dissemination of nuclear weapons, defences east of Suez, and Rhodesia's seizure of independence will be reviewed.

Prime Minister Wilson will go to the White House Thursday, soon after addressing the United Nations General Assembly in New York, and will continue his meetings with the U.S. president Friday.

WILSON
. . . all aspects of Viet Nam

Wilson is likely to find that U.S. objectives in Viet Nam have crystallized into a determination to keep open channels to a peaceful settlement and plans for an even greater military effort should peace moves fail.

Johnson is certain to reiterate U.S. backing for the economic moves Britain is taking against the breakaway regime of Ian Smith in Rhodesia.

MALAYSIA A TOPIC

Malaysia and Britain's commitment to its defence will be included in the review of Southeast Asia.

So, too, will the Kashmir problem and India's relations generally with Pakistan.

The United States is sympathetic to Britain's desire to reduce defence commitments, but wants it to maintain its present strength east of Suez, which has been boosted considerably.

If Wilson, as reported, asks Johnson for an extension beyond the Jan. 1 deadline of the British option to buy the U.S. F-111 fighter-bomber, the belief here is that the extension will readily be granted.

Three Main Objectives In U.K. Peace Policy

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government's general Viet Nam policy aim is to convene another conference leading to a settlement that will assure both South and North Viet Nam against aggression, a white paper said today.

Though the North Vietnamese have rejected the British suggestions, the white paper said Britain will continue to press ahead with this peace-seeking policy.

Britain wants a conference leading to a settlement assuring both parts of the country against aggression, without binding South Viet Nam to any military alliance. Future relations between the North and the South should be left for the free decision of the peoples of both zones, the white paper said.

The document said this also is the policy of the United States, whose troops would be withdrawn from Viet Nam should the South be firmly assured.

SEE OBJECTIVES

The white paper added that successive British governments had tried to achieve three objectives in their Indochina policy:

These were:

1. To promote peaceful settlements in Indochina—Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.
2. Support and assist their allies.
3. To promote the right of the peoples of Indochina to pursue in peace their chosen paths towards independence and prosperity.

These basic objectives, the white paper said, continued to determine Britain's policy today.

Britain and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the seven-year war in the then French Indochina states of Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.

Pakistan Peace Offer Shot Down by India

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pakistani President Mohammad Ahub Khan arrived today for talks with President Johnson that are expected to focus on the Kashmir dispute between India and Pakistan and other Asian problems such as the war in Viet Nam.

Johnson and Ayub met behind closed doors without advisers.

With Ayub on his U.S. trip is his foreign minister, Z. A. Bhutto, considered an advocate of closer Pakistani ties with Communist China and stronger moves against India.

Ayub, who has labelled his mission here a "quest for peace," told the UN General Assembly Monday that Pakistan is willing to sign a no-war pledge with India, if India agrees to self-determination for the people of Kashmir. The two nations have been feuding over rival claims to the border province for years.

DENOUNCES THE SPEECH

But Indian Ambassador Gopalaswami Parthasarathi immediately denounced Ayub's speech as partisan and tendentious, and said he should not have even raised the Kashmir dispute before the 117-nation General Assembly.

With little prospect of an early solution to the Kashmir problem, official sources here said they did not see much likelihood of any immediate U.S. response to Ayub's request for resumption of American economic and military aid.

Since 1954, the United States has supplied $1,000,000,000 in military aid and $3,200,000,000 in economic assistance to Pakistan. But the 22-day border war between India and Pakistan in September brought a freeze on U.S. military assistance to both countries.

On Viet Nam, U.S. officials feel that Pakistan, a member of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, has been more friendly to Peking and Hanoi than the United States would like it to be.

The two countries also disagree on the issue of Communist China's admission to the United Nations, which Ayub favors and the United States opposes.

Fire Kills 6 At Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—A family of six died in a flaming west end house today, one five-year-old girl vainly clawing at a plastic window covering after smashing the glass.

Firemen said winter coverings on some of the windows kept heat in and turned the small house into a deadly oven for three children, their parents and an uncle.

The victims are Walter Sonier, 28, his wife Gloria, 29, their children, Donna Lynn, 5, Charmaine, 2, and Lynda, 1, and Sonier's brother, Stanley, 42.

West German Drill Scored In Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP)—A meeting protesting the presence of West German troops at Camp Shilo in western Manitoba was held here Sunday. The 250 people who attended were urged to demonstrate outside the base Thursday.

Floyd Williston, secretary of the Manitoba Peace Council, said his organization, the United Jewish Peoples Order and veterans will demonstrate with placards and other means of "letting the German soldiers know we don't want them here."

Mr. Williston said the demonstration was planned for Thursday to coincide with a press tour of the German operations arranged by the national defence department. He said the demonstration could divert the attention of reporters from the soldiers to the groups' protest.

Approximately 200 German soldiers and technicians are carrying out winter equipment tests in manoeuvres that will continue until February at the Canadian army training establishment.

RCAF MAY PURCHASE JAPANESE AIRCRAFT

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF is investigating the possibility of purchasing about 30 Japanese-built MU-2 light aircraft, a defence department spokesman said Monday.

The RCAF has been "looking at" several different models to fulfil a requirement for an aircraft to be used for liaison purposes.

The MU-2 has a maximum speed of 310 miles an hour and cruises about 285, which is reported considerably faster than similar planes developed in North America. No cost estimate was available.

The defence department source emphasized no decisions have yet been made.

Cuba Holds B.C. Man On Smuggling Charge

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canadian technician prevented from leaving Cuba Monday for allegedly infringing customs and currency regulations has been given refuge at the Canadian Embassy in Havana.

Roland Ramsay, 24, from suburban Coquitlam, told his employer, L. H. Potvin, via telephone Monday night he had been treated courteously by police and had been turned over to the embassy until the case is resolved.

Mr. Ramsay, in Cuba since February, was detained by police at Havana Airport when customs officials discovered a package containing U.S. currency and considerable jewelry in his luggage.

He was boarding a plane for Mexico, where he was to have made connections for a flight to Vancouver to spend Christmas with his parents.

Ramsay told his employer he was taking the package to Cubans now living in the United States as a favor, without any profit to himself.

Mr. Potvin said arrangements have been made to retain a Havana lawyer. He expects the matter to be cleared up in a day or two so Ramsay can return to Vancouver for Christmas.

Ramsay has been working as an electronics consultant, assisting Cubans installing communications equipment in Cuban fishing boats.

Gooderham's 1832 is an unusually light and mellow Canadian whisky.

Thanks to our windmill.

When we started making whisky back in 1832, we built a huge windmill on our first distillery site.

Our founder, William Gooderham, used it to grind the grain that went into his first whiskies. (35 years before Confederation.)

Even back in those days, we were very choosey about the things that went into our whisky. Like our ryes and our barleys.

And as we've grown older, it's one of the lessons we've never forgotten.

That's why when you first sip 1832, you'll know it's a special whisky. With special touches that Canadian whisky-drinkers have come to expect from Gooderham's.

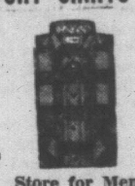

So, when the talk gets around to whisky, remember 1832. And our windmill.

It's a sure-fire way of not getting just an ordinary run-of-the-mill whisky.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832.

Flue Fire Cause Of Sea Disaster?

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard inquiry may be close to a breakthrough in its search for the origin of the disastrous Yarmouth Castle fire.

It took almost three weeks of testimony to get the first glimmer of a possible cause for the fire which struck the Canadian-owned cruise ship, Nov. 13, and left 90 dead. The board of inquiry now is in recess to study 1,807 pages of testimony from 45 witnesses.

Until Lloyd Lamm, a retired electrician and volunteer fireman from Pompano Beach, Fla., gave evidence, the sources of the fire had posed a riddle. Witness after witness pinned its origin to Room 610—a room where there was nothing to burn.

But Lamm, with a fireman's instinct, did something different from the rest. He left his Room, 634, in search of the smoke origin. He went on past 610, still smelling smoke strongly, and climbed the first flight of the forward stairway to the promenade deck.

There he put his ear to the wall and heard flames crackling inside.

This wall, testimony showed, was located beside the main galley's ventilator trunk or shaft. On the deck below, this shaft passes room 610, where the first actual fire was discovered.

Since the galley was inspected by the chief engineer shortly after smoke was discovered and found normal, Lamm's testimony focuses suspicion on a flue fire that may have gained headway unseen.

Grease or other inflammable substances could have collected in the shaft, although it presumably was cleaned when the ship was in drydock a month before the disaster.

BACKS THEORY

Supporting Lamm's theory was the testimony of the third engineer, who first detected smoke at his post deep in the ship.

But the smoke came from the deck, where it was wafted down by a blower ventilator so sensitive "you could smell the perfume of a lady walking by."

The kitchen ventilator shaft led out on deck between the stack and the bridge and forward of the engine-room ventilator pipes, which faced forward.

Hence, if the fire started in the shaft and smoke trailed back along the deck unseen in the darkness, the engine-room vents may have been the first to pick up the odor.

The board is expected to pursue this theory when it resumes the hearing, possibly late this week.

The Yarmouth Castle, owned by Canadian Jules Sokoloff but registered in Panama, burned and sank while en route to Nassau from Miami, Fla. Two Canadians were among those who died.

NATO Pact With Spain 'Unlikely'

MADRID (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Rusk and Gen. Francisco Franco probably will discuss defence during Rusk's short visit to Madrid Dec. 16.

But qualified observers here said discussions are unlikely to change the status of Spain's link with the Western defence system through its 12-year military pact with the United States.

"Spain certainly would like to be included in NATO," said one NATO diplomat here. "Some members of NATO would welcome such a move, holding high the value of Spain's geographical position as well as its possible military contribution. But firm opposition from some NATO members, including The Netherlands and Denmark make such a development unlikely at this time."

Britain's position on such a move was unclear here in view of the recent Spanish - British dispute over the future of Gibraltar.

Much-Travelled Naval Gun Goes to Museum

HALIFAX (CP)—A naval gun which saw service on Royal Navy and Royal Canadian Navy ships during two world wars has been presented to the Maritime Museum here by the RCMP marine division.

A Hotchkiss three - pounder, it was installed originally on the British cruiser Antrim in 1903. When the cruiter was scrapped in 1921, the gun was presented to the Canadian navy.

During the Second World War, it was placed on a navy Fairmile anti - submarine vessel based on the east coast.

In 1947 the navy presented the gun to the RCMP and it was installed on the patrol vessel Irvine. When the Irvine was retired from coastal patrol duties, the gun was turned over to the museum.

. . . HOLDUP

'This is some damn gag',' said the grocer.

"The stick-up didn't bother me until after he was gone."

The thief ripped the telephone out of its wall jack and told Mr. Archer: "Don't phone the cops for two or three minutes."

But the storekeeper went to another phone in the back and called Saanich police immediately as the bandit fled on foot.

He was described as being in his mid-20s, about six feet tall and 190 pounds. He wore a leather jacket with a zipper front.

Mr. Archer and his partner, Len Thors, 1287 Derby Rd., have operated the store for 18 months.

Arab Action Postponed

CAIRO (AP) — Al Ahram, a newspaper that usually reflects official thinking, said today the United Arab Republic has postponed its announcement of a break with Britain over Rhodesia.

The announcement was to have been made Wednesday in accordance with the Dec. 3 decision of the Organization of African Unity that its 35 members sever ties with Britain unless the British crushed the white regime in Rhodesia by then.

MISSING since Sunday is plane carrying Dr. W. Randolph Lovelace II, 57, U.S. director of space medicine, and his wife, Mary, 53. Plane left Aspen, Colo., bound for Albuquerque, N.M. Bad weather hampered search Monday. Couple is shown in recent picture receiving plaque from Boy Scouts of America. Also missing is the plane's pilot, Milton Brown, 27. (AP Wirephoto.)

U.K. POLICE CHARGED WITH 'NIGGER HUNTING'

LONDON (Reuters)—London police have been charged with "nigger-hunting" and other forms of victimizing colored immigrants in a report made public Monday by an organization representing West Indian residents here.

The London Standing Conference of West Indian Associations said it plans to send the report to British Home Secretary Sir Frank Soskice.

It alleges police constables and sergeants, often in plainclothes and using their own cars, conduct "nigger-hunting expeditions" without the knowledge of their superiors. The report is allegedly based on occurrences in the London borough of Lambeth, which has a large West Indian population.

Report suggested colored policemen should be added to the London force and urged an exchange of policemen between Britain and Commonwealth countries.

DOG PSYCHOLOGY DOES TRICK

Brain-Washed Ygor Forgets About Cat

By DIAL TORGERSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A cat raced across the sidewalk in front of D'Ors Prince Ygor, Barbara Singleton's platinum-blonde Russian wolfhound.

Ygor started to bolt after the cat. Miss Singleton, a television model, clinked a chain in her hand and spoke: "Come, Ygor."

Ygor halted as if thunderstruck. "Heel!" said Miss Singleton. Ygor trotted obediently to her side and they walked on.

Ygor has never been to dog-training school. But like 300 other elite canines, Ygor has had psychotherapy. He was a patient of Dr. Dare Miller, who describes himself as Los Angles' only dog psychologist.

Dr. Miller brainwashes the dogs, then shapes their will with conditioned response.

TAKES FIVE MINUTES

"In five minutes, said Dr. Miller, 38, "I can teach a strange dog to come to me on command."

A chain, the sort Barbara Singleton clinked to halt Ygor, does the trick. The chain is made of a special bronze-phosphorous alloy. Hanging on it is a tiny tuning fork. Explained Dr. Miller:

"The fork and the chain when rattled, vibrate at 34,000 cycles per second, in the uppermost range of a dog's hearing. It doesn't hurt his ears; it just interrupts anything the dog is thinking.

"If the dog is going to do something bad, it changes his mind.

"If you give the dog a command simultaneously with the clink of the chain, the command is impressed in the dog's thinking, and on his memory.

"By repeating the process, the dog can eventually be taught to respond to the owner's word alone, without the chain."

New Hearing Ordered For Quebec Member

OTTAWA (CP)—Gerald Martineau, a member of the Quebec legislative council, must stand trial for a second time on 11 influence-peddling charges involving $35,800, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled today.

Mr. Martineau, treasurer of the Union Nationale from 1944 to 1960, was acquitted of the charges in November, 1964, by Mr. Justice Albert Dumontier of the Quebec Superior Court.

He was charged under Section 102 of the Criminal Code with allegedly arranging commissions for Union Nationale friends or supporters of the party on Quebec government purchases from Sico Paints Ltd.

The Quebec Court of Appeal quashed the acquittal last May 31 and ordered a new trial.

Mr Martineau appealed to the Supreme Court, asking that it restore the judgment of the trial judge.

In Tuesday's judgment written by Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux and concurred in by the other four judges who heard the appeal, the Supreme Court said it agreed with the Quebec Appeal Court that the reasons for acquittal were ill-founded.

In acquitting Mr. Martineau, Judge Dumontier held that Mr Martineau was not a public official within the meaning of Section 102 of the Criminal Code.

Coverage Extended By MSA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dental surgery will be covered by the benefits of the Medical Services Association (MSA) beginning Jan. 1.

President Dr. D. S. Munroe said at the annual meeting Monday that services of osteopathic physicians will also be included in MSA coverage.

Dr. Munroe said the doctor-owned association does not plan to enter the field of dentistry, but rather cover the various forms of surgery.

In his report, Dr. Munroe said administrative expenses reached a record low of 5.23 per cent during the last year. Income was 2½ per cent higher than expenditures, he said.

The association covers one-third of the B.C. population.

Director R. F. B. Taylor said the MSA fund would provide four to five months' protection if revenue was suddenly cut off.

He made the comment in answer to claims by two labor leaders that the $7,535,000 fund is excessive.

The meeting turned down a motion that benefits include physiotherapy, chiropratic treatment and out-patient nursing. The motion was rejected because it was not presented in writing 30 days prior to the meeting.

During the year membership increased by 43,977 to 614,602. Utilization decreased.

Advanced Degree From Oregon For Uvic Man

An assistant professor at the University of Victoria has recently received an advanced degree from an American university.

James F. Hendrickson, 1791 Feltham, received his doctor of philosophy in history from the University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore.

A native of Camrose, Alta., Dr. Hendrickson received his BA from the University of Saskatchewan and his B.Ed. from the University of Alberta in Edmonton.

He took his masters degree at Oregon and has been on the Uvic faculty for two years.

Topic of his Ph.D. thesis was Joseph Lane, an Oregon politician who was first governor of the territory, a U.S. Congressional representative and ran as a candidate for vice-president against Abraham Lincoln.

Dr. Hendrickson's specialty is U.S. history, and he teaches courses on 20th century history and the American West at Uvic.

'SPY OPERATIONS'

Military Role Seen For Soviet Trawlers

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union is causing concern among Western defence organizations by using more and more of its merchant ships in a naval role, says Jane's Fighting Ships.

It says the United States, however, is still the world's greatest sea power and predicted that the Royal Navy, once the ruler of the waves, will cease to exist except as a minor force unless new vessels are built soon.

Japan is described as a resurgent sea power in the Far East.

The authoritative British publication on the world's navies singles out Soviet trawlers, frequently accused by the West of carrying out spy operations off shore. It says the "ubiquitous" Russian fishing boats "seem to appear on every trade route and on every scene of naval activity."

SHIPPING FLEET

The newly published 1965-66 edition, which came out Monday, says:

"There is no doubt that the U.S.S.R. regards her merchant shipping fleet not only as an essential element of the national economy at all times, but as a vital fourth arm of defence in emergencies. . . .

"It is not only the growth of Soviet merchant shipping which is of some concern to the principal (maritime) powers. The chiefs of the NATO, SEATO and CENTO (Western defence) organizations are tending to think not specifically about the Soviet naval forces proper, but broadly about all the U.S.S.R.'s sea vehicles. . . ."

Jane's says the Soviet Navy had concentrated recently on production of missile-firing destroyers, anti-submarine frigates and nuclear-powered submarines.

It says the Soviet naval strength now is estimated at 22 cruisers, 150 destroyers, 35 nuclear powered submarines, 390 conventionally powered submarines, 100 frigates and 700 minesweepers.

Smaller Soviet craft include 250 escort and patrol vessels, 350 motor torpedo boats, 550 motor gunboats, 130 landing craft, 300 auxiliaries and 200 service vessels.

Street Roller Considered For Oak Bay

Oak Bay works committee Monday night recommended purchase of a small street roller for $2,992.

The successful bid was submitted by Air Equipment Services Ltd. of Vancouver.

The Vancouver firm's bid was the third highest.

The firm which submitted the lowest bid would not provide a demonstrator model and the second-lowest bidder's machine did not comply with specifications.

Committee also agreed in principle to purchase another van or jeep for the works department.

Epidemic Kills Eight

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Eight children have died in an epidemic now under control in the salt works community of Guerrero Negro, 350 miles south of Tijuana, an official said Monday. Another 72 children have been treated for the intestinal infections since Dec. 3. Contaminated canned milk may have caused the epidemic, a doctor said.
